Abandoned Baby Back in Mother's Arms

LITTLE 'GENEVA' FOUND AT GRADY BY OWN PARENT

Baby Was Left at Hapeville Orphanage by Mother's Husband, According to Attorneys.

FAMOUS MIXED BABY CASE STILL IN COURT

Attorney for Mother of One of Babies Says the Case Will Be Tried Soon.

BY H. H. WIMPEE.

Little 4-weeks-old Geneva Tuesday afternoon was again enfolded in her mother's arms, after a separation of two days and nights, during which hundreds of people have applied for the privilege of giving her a home, after the mother's husband had deposited it late Sunday afternoon on the lawn of the Georgia Baptist orphanage at Hapeville.

The baby was returned to her mother about 5 o'clock in the afternoon after the young matron, frantic with apprehension, had engaged the services of Attorneys E. R. Craighead and W. W. Tindall to negotiate the proceedings necessary to establish her identity. The child since its abandonment has been cared for in the infants' ward at Grady hospital.

It was revealed by Attorney Craighead that the mother knew nothing of her husband's intentions to place the baby in the orphanage, and that little Geneva was taken by him to the orphanage against the mother's wishes. The note pinned to the child's garments was written by the husband, according to Mr. Craighead, before leaving the child on the orphanage lawn. The note read, "Her name is Geneva. For God's sake take her and keep her until I can come back for her. Nobody else will help."

Names Kept Secret.

Attorney Craighead refused to divulge the names of the child's parents, stating that while the name "Fuller," as given by the mother to Grady hospital authorities on July 25 last, when the child was born, was fictitious, it would serve to protect little Geneva from embarrassment in future years.

That the mother of the child is "of a prominent Atlanta family" and closely "identified with church and religious affairs in the city" were admissions made by Mr. Craighead. He refused to discuss the marital estrangement which is said to have been the cause of the husband's actions in wishing to be rid of the child.

"It would not do the slightest good for me to reveal the identity of the mother of the child," declared Mr. Craighead. "This much, however, she is a member of a prominent Atlanta family and has been closely identified in church and religious work in the city.

"The baby was taken away from its home last Sunday evening by the husband, without the knowledge of the mother. Before leaving it on the orphanage lawn, he scribbled the note which was found pinned to the child's clothes.

Against Mother's Wish.

"In justice to the mother, she did not consent to the child's abduction, as it were, nor did she know that her husband had any intention of leaving the baby at the orphanage. Ever since the baby was taken away, the mother has not had a peaceful moment," he declared.

"When it was returned to her arms this afternoon, she passionately pressed it to her breast and cried out in happiness."

Mr. Craighead implied that the mother would keep her child "in spite of her husband's objections" and intimated to "shower the love and affection upon it that only its own mother could lavish." He refused to comment on whether the child's return would cause the husband to separate from his wife.

STILL DEADLOCKED OVER REPARATIONS

Commission Works Fruitlessly to Reach Agreement and Prevent Possible Breach in Franco-British Relations.

Paris, August 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—The members of the reparations commission still were deadlocked this evening after another strenuous day given over entirely to an effort to reach a basis for an unanimous agreement on German payments and prevent a split in the commission and a possible breach of Franco-British relations.

The failure of the German delegates, Herr Schroeder and Herr Bergmann, special envoys from Berlin, to bring with them any new concessions from the German government had a depressing effect in certain circles where it was hoped Germany might have formulated some new scheme.

Last Effort Made.

Herr Bergmann conferred this afternoon with members of the reparations commission and told them that the last minute proposal handed to Sir John Bradbury just before the mission left Berlin was the last effort of the German government to meet the French demands.

The reparations commission has again postponed for 24 hours its decision in the matter, but if it is apparent that no unanimous decision can be reached there may be a further delay.

The Belgian plan remains the most talked of solution but France will not consider it unless 200,000,000 gold marks are deposited in the Bank of England by Germany as a guarantee. It is not believed that Germany will consent to this.

Urging Moratorium.

Sir John Bradbury is still urging a moratorium based on the guarantees which have already been exacted. It is thought that this resolution calling for a moratorium without further guarantees will be the first proposition voted upon by the commission Thursday. This will be voted down, according to present indications, after which some form of compromise which the delegates hope to arrange before Thursday will be considered.

The German delegates denied that Hugo Stinnes was in Paris. They declared that he had no plans for coming here, so far as they knew. Herr Schroeder, through his secretary, told the Associated Press that he could not discuss the details of Germany's latest proposal before he had appeared before the commission, but it was intimated that Germany was pessimistic over the situation.

Montreal Flappers Rebel Against Longer Skirts

Montreal, August 29—Twenty of Montreal's smartest and prettiest girls, rebelling against the attempt of style creators to foist long skirts on women, have formed a "no longer skirt league." Members are pledged to cling to the abbreviated variety and do all they can to induce other young women to keep their skirts short.

Kimalists Launch Offensive Against Greeks, While Jugo-Slavs Mobilize on Austrian Frontier.

ITALY HAS WARNED JUGO-SLAV ALLIES

Ready for All Emergencies and Declares She Will Not Tolerate Violation of Austrian Territory

ONLY SPARK NEEDED, WARNING OF HOUSE

E. M. House, who was confidential adviser to President Wilson, warned of the danger of a crash in Europe, in an exclusive interview with the United News, given after a two months' trip on the continent. Only a "spark" is needed, House warned, to bring a "general crash."

"No one knows what may happen in Europe, such is the situation at present," said House.

"There is a process of gradual disintegration going on. Only an ignition spark is needed now to precipitate a general crash, the consequences of which would be impossible to estimate."

London, August 30.—The menace of war in the old world has suddenly appeared in two places.

The Kemalists have launched a big offensive against the Greeks in Asia Minor, in which ten divisions are participating. The attacking forces are equipped with powerful artillery and an abundance of ammunition. The Greeks have called to the colors all classes of reserves which have not yet been mobilized.

An equally menacing situation has developed with the mobilization on the Austrian frontier of Jugo-Slav forces, which are reported to be preparing to march into Austrian territory. Italy is ready for all emergencies, and has warned the nations of the little entente that she will not tolerate a violation of Austrian territory.

The Italian cabinet, meeting in Rome, is considering the possibility of intervention in behalf of Austria.

Children Disinherited, But Adopted Daughter Is Left Big Fortune

New York, August 29.—All of his children, including Mrs. Dorothy Caruso, widow of Enrico Caruso, were disinherited by the will of the late Park Benjamin, filed for probate today.

Anna Bolchi Benjamin, an adopted daughter, was left $60,000, the residue of the estate going to the widow, Mrs. Ida E. Benjamin, whose address is given as Goshen, N. S.

Upon Mrs. Benjamin's death the principal will go to the adopted daughter.

Mr. Benjamin gave as his reason for cutting his children off as unfilial conduct of the children toward their father. The children opposed the adoption of Anna Bolchi Benjamin, who was at one time Mrs. Caruso's governess.

Ford Automobile Contest

Contestants Flood Mails With Entries in Event

To Close at Noon Today

With the Fordson tractor contest to end at noon today, the avalanche of mail for the contest editor's desk has continued to pour in until it would appear that every home into which The Constitution goes will be represented when the judges begin the work of deciding the winners.

Seven states are now represented in the thousands of answers which have been received following the announcement of the opening of the contest, though most of the answers have come from Georgia.

Every section of the state is represented. In last night's final mail delivery were letters from Blue Ridge and Waycross, Macon and Savannah. It is expected that when the contest closes at noon today several hundred others will have been added to the list, providing hours and days of work for those who will decide the winners.

There's an automobile to every ten people in the country, Henry Ford, maker of the first prize in the contest is quoted as saying, and it is safe to assume that should all those competing in the Constitution-Fordson tractor contest win one, Georgia, at least, would be over her quota by several thousand.

SECOND PRIMARY TO SETTLE RACE IN SOUTH CAROLINA

JOHNSON AND MOORE CLOSE IN CALIFORNIA

Columbia, S. C., August 30.—Incomplete and unofficial returns from all counties in the South Carolina primary compiled by The State at midnight showed Cole L. Blease continuing to lead in the six-cornered race for governor, with Thomas G. McLeod second and George K. Laney third. The figures as announced at midnight were: Blease, 40,204; McLeod, 38,768; Laney, 10,097; Coleman, 2,038; Duncan, 1,218; Cantey, 656.

E. B. Jackson continues to maintain a lead over J. K. Owens and E. C. L. Adams for lieutenant-governor.

In the race for state superintendent of education in which two women are in the field of six candidates, Mrs. Bessie Rodgers Drake has taken the lead with 7,493 votes against 7,225 for J. E. Swearingen, the incumbent. J. H. Hope is only some 60 votes behind Swearingen.

Charleston, S. C., August 29.—With 67,099 votes reported from today's democratic primary, The News and Courier's figures gave Cole L. Blease 30,135 and T. G. McLeod 24,849. It appeared certain there would be a second primary between Blease and McLeod.

PLANS APPROVED ON FOUR SCHOOLS

Nichols, George, Krebs and Southern Ferro Concrete Co. Win Contracts for School Buildings.

Contracts for four new school plants to be erected in Atlanta under the $4,000,000 program, were approved by the bond commission at a meeting Tuesday afternoon. The contracts, which have already been approved by the board of education, were for the Roach-Mitchell, Summer Hill, Ivy-Calhoun and Virginia Avenue schools.

In addition, the commission approved awarding of contracts by the joint committee from bond commission and bridge committee of city council for the Spring street viaduct. Contract No. 1 for steel to be used in the construction of the viaduct, calling for an expenditure of $102,925, was awarded to the Virginia Bridge and Iron company, while contract No. 2, for the erection of all construction and other work on the viaduct and approaches, with an estimated expenditure of $513,877.50, was awarded to the Nichols Contracting company.

The Ivy-Calhoun school plant to cost $143,432 was awarded to W. H. George, general contractor, on the cost plus system. It is estimated that this system will save the city approximately 10 per cent of the contract estimate.

The Southern Ferro Concrete company was the successful bidder on the Roach-Mitchell and Summer Hill school plants. The former school will cost approximately $211,003.86 while the latter calls for an expenditure of $103,372.

A. G. Krebs Contracting company, was awarded the contract for the Virginia Avenue school building. The bid accepted on this school calls for an expenditure of $182,075.

The commission approved a recommendation by the sewer committee to appropriate $16,053.50 for the construction of a sewer on Jefferson street, from the Southern railway tracks to Ashby street.

A contract awarded to B. F. Meeks, for the construction of a trunk sewer on Tumlin and State streets, to cost $14,325, was also approved.

COAL PRIORITY ORDERS RELAXED

Bituminous Production Shows Gain of 100 Per Cent Over Month Ago. Northwest to Get Coal.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington, August 29.—A formal relaxation of some of the interstate commerce commission priority of coal distribution and preparation of official estimates that soft coal production for the week is rising above 8,000,000 tons, or 100 per cent more than a month ago, were among the elements that emerged today out of the government's actual contact with the industrial situation. Other developments included publication of federal safety inspectors' survey of railroad engines and a decision to investigate alleged illegal stoppages of transportation in the far west.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers who has been dominant in the deadlock that has kept the anthracite coal fields tied up arrived here today and began a succession of conferences, while house expressions today indicated that settlement of the hard coal strike was looked for at once.

Priority Rules Modified.

The decision of the government to relax control on coal shipments was carried into effect by an interstate commerce commission order modifying priority requirements hitherto imposed on consumers. Hereafter, on special designation by the commission and its agents, coal will be shipped first to the northwest and to railroads whose needs are pressing.

A second class of shipments will be maintained as entitled to priority, when proof is furnished railroads that the coal is meant for public utilities, public institutions, domestic and building heating, supply of common carriers, and manufacture of foodstuffs, medicines and containers therefor.

Secretary Hoover, who has guided the voluntary coal distribution, met today with the members of the temporary administration, assisting to wind up its affairs. Estimates were made available to the session that 25,000 cars of bituminous had been produced yesterday, which at the average loading amounts to 1,500,000 tons, or a production rate considerably in excess of that maintained last year. The government now estimates that 90 per cent of the bituminous mines are in operation or resuming operation.

The arrival of Mr. Lewis in Washington was marked by conferences in which he met Senator Pepper, Pennsylvania, and Secretary of Labor Davis, both of whom entered the anthracite negotiations earlier this week. Leaders of the anthracite mine operators were also summoned to Washington, in the continuation of endeavors to bring about the desired solution there.

Inspection of Engines.

There is "a very general let-down in the matter of inspection of locomotives by carriers which gives cause for concern," the interstate commerce commission reported to the senate today, answering a resolution brought out by the controversy between strike leaders and the railroads over safety conditions of equipment since the shopmen walked out. The railroads are failing to make all the inspections required by law, the report continued and managements are reporting inability to do so because of the strike while the commission's own staff of inspectors are merely sufficient in

ONLY SIX SAVED AS STEAMER SINKS WITH 322 ABOARD

Santiago, Chile, August 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Only six persons, including two passengers, out of a total of 322 on board the Chilean steamship Itata were saved when the vessel sank today off the Chilean coast near Coquimbo.

New York, August 29.—The Itata, the Chilean steamship which sank off Coquimbo today, was a coastwise steamer, usually plying between Valparaiso and Arica, according to information obtainable here. Agents for Chilean lines said she was owned by the Naccional de Vapores, which does a coastal passenger and freight trade.

Also Passes Land Reclamation Amendment Providing for Drainage of Southern Swamps.

FINAL VOTE ON BILL TWO OR THREE DAYS OFF

Amendment Authorizing Use of Debt Interest Also Intended to Quiet Talk of Cancellation.

Washington, August 29.—Without a record vote the senate approved today the use of the interest on the foreign debt in financing the soldiers' bonus. Also it substituted the Smith-McNary $350,000,000 reclamation bill for the land settlement option in the house measure. Then it quit for the day with a final vote on the bonus measure at least one and perhaps two or three days distant.

The amendment authorizing the payment of the bonus charge with the interest on the eleven billions of dollars owed the United States by the allied nations was proposed by Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina. He and Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, and other members urged it as a means not only of meeting President Harding's requirement that the bill carry a means of financing, but also of silencing the talk about the cancellation of the foreign debt.

A roll call on the proposal was demanded at first, but this demand was withdrawn, presumably because of the apprehension of leaders that a quorum could not be obtained at the then late hour. A division was had instead, 33 senators signifying their approval of the amendment, and one, Senator New, republican, Indiana, his disapproval.

Vote on Land Amendment.

The Smith-McNary reclamation amendment was agreed to by a vote of 43 to 26. Party lines disappeared on the roll call, 23 republicans and 20 democrats supporting the amendment and 18 republicans and eight democrats opposing it.

For the Amendment—Republicans: Borah, Bursum, Cameron, Edge, France, Gooding, Jones, of Washington; McNary, Nelson, New, Newberry, Nicholson, Oddie, Pepper, Phipps, Rawson, Reed, of Pennsylvania; Shortridge, Smoot, Stanfield, Sterling, Wadsworth and Warren—23. Democrats: Ashurst, Broussard, Dial, Fletcher, Heflin, Hitchcock, Kendrick, King, Overman, Pittman, Pomerene, Ransdell, Reed, of Missouri; Shields, Simmons, Smith, Trammell, Underwood, and Walsh, of Montana—20. Total, 43.

Against the Amendment—Republicans: Ball, Brandegee, Colt, Cummins, Curtis, Dillingham, Fhelinghuysen, Hale, Kellogg, La Follette, Lenroot, Lodge, McCumber, McLean, Sutherland, Townsend, Watson, of Indiana, and Willis—18. Democrats: Gerry, Glass, McKellar, Robinson, Sheppard, Swanson, Walsh, of Massachusetts, and Williams—8. Total, 26.

The Smith-McNary amendment would provide for the reclaiming of swamp lands in the south by drainage and arid lands in the west through irrigation, the work to be done un-

SENATE REJECTS NOMINATION OF JOHN F. CURRAN

Washington, August 29—The senate late today rejected the nomination of John F. Curran as postmaster at Savannah, Ga. The nomination was opposed by Senator Watson, democrat, of that state.

Action on the nomination was said to have been taken within a few minutes after the senate went into executive session. Senator Watson previously had announced he would inform the senate that Mr. Curran was presonally objectionable to him. There was no record vote on the question.

Mr. Curran was one of three nominations of postmasters in Georgia over which there had been controversies. The other two, nominees for the places at Tennille and Dixie, previously were rejected by the senate. It was concerning the three nominations that Senator Watson and Senator Phipps, republican, Colorado, nearly engaged in a personal encounter several months ago.

MAY GIVE HARDING RIGHT TO OPERATE ROADS AND MINES

Will Be Proposed in House Today by Congressman Johnson as Amendment to Coal Control Bill.

AUTHORITY WANTED BY THE PRESIDENT

Will Not Make Formal Demand on Congress, However—President Thinks Situation Clearing.

Washington, August 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Smouldering official opinion in favor of a presidential authorization to take over railroads and coal mines not operated at their highest efficiency was revived in congress today when it was made known at the white house that President Harding still held that such a grant of power was desirable, although without any idea of using the authority except in a case of direct public necessity.

One result of the renewed discussion of government operation was the prospect that the house might be called on at short notice to put itself on record in the matter.

Representative Johnson, republican, South Dakota, announced his intention to offer tomorrow an amendment to the administration coal control bill which would give the president the authority he was said to desire. Several other representatives indicated that they also would submit similar amendments. Congressional leaders predicted no such legislation would be passed for the present.

Wants Power to Act.

As he explained at the white house, the president's attitude is that the administration's hold on the situation would be measurably strengthened if it had as a foundation the power to take over carriers, or mines, which had failed to render full service, white house spokesmen emphasizing that Mr. Harding had no immediate intention of using the suggested power and foresaw no prospect that it would have to be used.

Mr. Harding, it was declared, believed today that the bituminous coal industry was working out its own problem under the Cleveland agreement and that the anthracite strike would be settled shortly.

The railroad tangle would then be left as the only major industrial knot and in this connection the administration policy was said to be constructed on a strict enforcement of existing laws which guarantee safe and necessary public service.

Bituminous Coal Report.

A less optimistic view of the fuel situation was taken by Chairman Cummins, of the senate interstate commerce committee, in his report on the coal control bill.

The report declared that unless the railroads succeeded in increasing their facilities for handling coal, the situation would be the same as though the bituminous strike was still in progress. Some operators "and many dealers," the report continued, are taking advantage of the shortage of fuel and declared congress must approve legislation such as that being reported or permit the public to be plundered.

The senate committee approved an amendment to the bill which would limit the authority of the controlling commission to one year.

The house interstate commerce committee, in reporting the Winslow bill for federal coal control, announced that the proposal for a federal fuel agency had been definitely abandoned and that "the president is in accord with this conclusion."

Bill Warmly Supported.

Representative Anderson, republican, Minnesota, announced tonight, however, that he had prepared an amendment by which the president would be authorized to take over coal mines if necessary and to create a national agency for buying from the mines and selling direct to the consumer.

Some leaders declared tonight that both the Johnson and Anderson amendments probably would be thrown out on points of order. The six hours of debate on the bill had not been concluded when the house adjourned tonight. The measure will be taken up again tomorrow and leaders said they would press for a vote tomorrow night.

Warm support was given the bill during the debate today as an administration measure, and as affording a means of preventing profiteering. It was opposed by republicans and democrats who contended that, while it might deal with a profiteering operator, it offered no protection to the consumer against the dealer.

ATTORNEY GOES TO CARROLLTON TO SEE HARDWICK

EFFORT HOPELESS WITHOUT REPRIEVE

Governor Reviews Entire Case in Refusing Clemency "to Save Other Youths" From Crime.

H. A. Allen, attorney for Frank B. DuPre, youthful "Peachtree bandit," whose plea for commutation of sentence from death to life imprisonment was denied by Georgia's chief executive yesterday, will leave Atlanta early this morning for Carrollton to ask Governor Hardwick to grant a 30-day reprieve in the case of the youth sentenced to hang next Friday morning.

Attorney Allen, ascertained that Governor Hardwick returned to Atlanta late last night in place of spending the night at Lafayette preparatory to making an address in Carrollton today. Due to the governor's plans which called for an early start today, Attorney Allen said he did not expect he would have an opportunity to see him in Atlanta but would go on to Carrollton where he could have a sufficient time to present his plea for a reprieve.

This decision followed the refusal yesterday afternoon of Judge John D. Humphries, of the criminal division of Fulton superior court, to grant a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by Attorney Allen shortly after the governor's refusal to interfere in the case was announced. A bill of exceptions to Judge Humphries' ruling will be filed and an effort made to carry the appeal to the supreme court of Georgia, should Governor Hardwick grant a reprieve.

Without a reprieve being granted, all hope to save DuPre from the gallows is lost, according to Attorney Allen. Before DuPre goes to sleep tonight it is probable he will know positively whether or not he is to die.

Now in Death Cell.

DuPre is now in the death cell at the Fulton county jail, where, he announces, he is "ready to go." Strengthened by his religion and with the constant association of his father and brother, in addition to the many ladies whose interest in preventing his hanging has not abated, the youth, graver now than when he shot Irby C. Walker, Pinkerton detective, to death and seriously wounded B. Graham West, city comptroller, last December, continues his preparations to meet his Maker.

Sheriff James J. Lowry is now completing preparations for the execution of DuPre as well as Luke McDonald, negro, sentenced to die on the same day as DuPre for the murder of a negro woman. The appeal for clemency on behalf of McDonald was also denied by Governor Hardwick yesterday. While under the law the presence of four deputy sheriffs is necessary, it is understood that Sheriff Lowry will personally direct the execution, or executions, as the case may be.

In his plea for a writ of habeas corpus, Attorney Allen based his appeal upon the same points which have characterized the hearings before both the state prison commission and Governor Hardwick. One additional point contained in the plea, however, was from Section 1, Paragraph 4, of the state constitution, which provides that "no person shall be deprived of his right to prosecute or defend his own cause in any of the courts of this state, either in person, or by an attorney, or both." Attorney Allen claims that DuPre has not had this constitutional guarantee because of the fact that the state supreme court did not decide the case, but affirmed the verdict of the trial court by operation of law.

Supreme Court Divided.

The fact that in two points the supreme court was equally divided, different justices making the divisions, has served as the basis of the appeal for clemency by Attorney Allen both before the prison commission and Governor Hardwick.

Should Governor Hardwick grant a reprieve to DuPre, Attorney Allen will immediately file a bill of exceptions before Judge Humphries and again attempt to carry the case to the state supreme court. The effort already made will have been worthless should the reprieve be denied. The decision now rests solely with Governor Hardwick.

Governor Hardwick issued a lengthy statement setting forth in detail his reasons for refusing to commute DuPre's sentence. He reviewed the case from the time DuPre fired the fatal shots that snuffed out the life of Irby C. Walker until the state prison commission handed the governor a decision denying DuPre's appeal for clemency.

No Doubt of Guilt.

The governor declared there is no doubt of the guilt of DuPre. He said the condemned man is not insane and that his counsel had admitted that he could not prove insanity of his client in court. He said DuPre's claim that he was drunk when the deed was committed was refuted by the evidence in the case. As to the claim that DuPre is of weak mentality the governor asserted that this can be said of nearly all members of the criminal class.

In his statement the governor reviewed the history of the case relating how DuPre entered the jewelry store of Nat Kiser on Peachtree street December 15, 1921. He told of how DuPre snatched a $2,500 diamond ring from a salesman and attempted to escape and how Irby C. Walker, Pinkerton detective, sought to stop him. DuPre shot Walker and ran into Peachtree street. He was pursued by a crowd of people and darted into the Peachtree street entrance of the Kimball house.

Immediately after he entered the Kimball house DuPre whirled and shot three times, two of the shots striking Graham West, city comptroller of Atlanta, according to the governor's review. DuPre then walked into a haberdashery in the Kimball house and purchased a necktie while a score of policemen and detectives were searching for him.

After escaping temporarily DuPre bargained with a taxicab driver to take him to Chattanooga, Tenn. Arriving in Chattanooga he pawned the diamond ring for a nominal sum and went to Norfolk, Va. He narrowly escaped capture at Norfolk and later went to Detroit. While in Detroit he wrote The Constitution a letter in which he ridiculed the efforts of the Atlanta police department to capture him. The governor reproduced this letter in his statement.

Relates Capture.

The governor then told of the capture of DuPre in Detroit and of his return to Atlanta. He was tried at the January term of the Fulton superior court before Judge H. A. Mathews, of Fort Valley, sitting for Judge John D. Humphries. The jury returned a verdict of guilty without recommendation and the court gave him the supreme penalty. On August 11 the prison commission of Georgia heard DuPre's application for a commutation and by unanimous vote declined to recommend clemency. The case was then sent to the governor.

After telling all the details of the case and the evidence the governor said:

Such is the case. Of his guilt there is no doubt. Of his desperate determination to slay as many human beings as was necessary in order to escape apprehension and punishment of the crime of robbery and to escape with the fruits of his theft, there can be no doubt. Of his mental responsibility, under the law, there is no question. A short time before the commission of the crime, he stood successfully the mental and physical tests necessary to enter the United States navy.

Of course, I am not without sympathy and respect for the views of many tender-hearted persons—largely women—who have urged executive clemency for the applicant. I understand and appreciate the human sympathy and the deep and true Christian charity which animates them in this matter. My own heart is touched by their appeal; but, because of my honest judgment and conscience, I cannot yield to sentiment of this kind, without being absolutely false to my duty, to society and to the public. The sympathy in this case should not be entirely aroused in behalf of the youthful bandit who gloated over his deeds of theft and murder until he was actually to face the penalty, whose repentance came when he was in the clutches of the law, and not before he was apprehended. What of the faithful, law-abiding man, Mr. Walker, who sleeps in an untimely grave, sent there by DuPre's act? Is there no sympathy for him? What of the little woman who is widowed by his act? Is there no sympathy for her? What of the seven-year-old orphan, made so by him? Is there no sympathy for her? Is there no sympathy for the fatherless girl who has been deprived of the support and of the protecting care of her father through all her life? If DuPre was motherless, he has made this little child fatherless. If DuPre was young, he was at least a man old enough to enlist in the navy of his country and to meet all of its mental and physical tests in doing so, and is at least considerably older than the child whom he made fatherless.

But my action in this case does not rest on the law of "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth." It rests on a broader, deeper, truer principle than that. Unless our boys, who may even now have embarked on a similar path to that pursued by this applicant, who may be filling themselves with cheap and poisonous liquor, who may be associating with gamblers and prostitutes, are checked in their mad courses of crime, who can tell how many orphans will be made in Georgia by their conduct? Who can tell how many innocent men—even innocent by-standers—may lose their precious lives before the time appointed by Providence? It is to protect society, to save these other women from being made widows; these other men from being slain; these other children from being made orphans, that it is necessary—and absolutely necessary—that the supreme penalty of the law be executed upon this applicant. It is to give to them and to all of them in this state and throughout this country the most solemn and impressive warning that can be given in the name of the law and in the name of civilized society, and in the name of organized government. An appalling and increasing number of violent crimes, of every sort, are occurring in our midst—a crime wave, world-wide in its sweep, has not spared or missed our state. While the situation is not worse in Georgia than in other states, nor in this country than in other countries, it is appalling, everywhere, and the sternest measures are necessary to check it.

The supreme penalty of the law has been passed upon this man by an impartial jury of twelve honest men of Fulton county. It has been upheld by an able, upright and impartial judge. It has been upheld by the supreme court of Georgia, and, lastly, by the unanimous recommendation of the three able and upright men who constitute the prison commission of Georgia, acting on a board of pardons. To all of these findings I must give weight. Nothing has developed since the trial to in any way affect or alter the case. Guilt is still undisputed, still undenied and still proven. Under these circumstances, I feel it to be my sworn duty, before God and man, to allow the law to take its course.

This August 28, 1922.

(Signed) THOMAS W. HARDWICK,
Governor.

McDonald Must Hang.

Governor Hardwick Tuesday also declined to commute the death sentence imposed on Luke McDonald, a negro, to life imprisonment, and the negro will be hanged Friday in the Fulton county jail. McDonald was convicted in the Fulton superior court on a charge of killing a negro woman. In declining to commute the death sentence of McDonald the governor issued the following statement:

Applicant was convicted at the December term, 1921, of Fulton superior court of the offense of murder, without recommendation, and given the extreme penalty of the law. He is under sentence to be hanged on September 1, 1922.

The facts, in brief, are: On October 3, 1921, the applicant went to a house in which a colored woman named Minnie Cowan lived, and asked her to get in an automobile and go to ride with him. She refused, and after he repeated the invitation once or twice, and she refused, he said: "If you don't get into the car, I am going to kill you," pulled out a pistol, shot and killed the woman.

It is a case of deliberate, cold-blooded murder, so far as the record in the case discloses or suggests. No reason whatever that is worthy of consideration has been suggested for any modification to the extreme penalty of the law.

On the 11th day of August, 1922, the prison commission of Georgia, acting as a board of pardons, unanimously declined to recommend clemency in this case, and I am constrained to follow their recommendation, and to decline to interfere with the execution of the sentence of the law.

INTEREST ON FOREIGN DEBTS FOR BONUS

Veterans of the world war, the Spanish-American war, and the Philippine insurrection, would be given first opportunity to obtain homesteads and also in working on the various projects.

Opposition to the amendment was voiced by Senators McCumber, republican, North Dakota, in charge of the bonus, and Robinson, democrat, Arkansas. The charge was made that opponents of the bonus were supporting this proposition in the hope that it would furnish an added reason for the president to veto the bonus.

Also, it was contended that the reclamation project was important enough to stand on its own merits without, as Senator Lenroot expressed it, "being taken to court on the backs of the ex-service men."

Watson Voices Disapproval.

Interwoven with the debate on the reclamation feature was discussion of the bonus itself, with Senators Williams, democrat, Mississippi; Watson, democrat, Georgia, and Dial, democrat, South Carolina, voicing opposition and others supporting the measure.

Senator Williams declared that the years given by the soldiers either at home or overseas were not years sacrificed, as he said had been claimed, but "years glorified and years sanctified." He said the men received the equal of a "university course" while in the army and those who returned home sound were much improved in body as well as in mind.

While announcing his support of a bonus for the soldiers, Senator Watson said he would not support the kind of bills proposed. He favored immediate relief for the needy veterans and described the bank loan provision of the house bill as providing "a picnic for the strong bankers, but little relief for the soldiers." He contended that he could see "the shadow of the land speculators" in the reclamation schemes advanced.

Thirty years ago the general death rate of New York state was over twenty for every 1,000 persons, while last year it was only twelve, or a gain of eight lives saved to every 1,000 persons.

League of Women Voters Consider Local Candidates

At a meeting of the League of Women Voters Tuesday about 40 questionaires recently sent out by the league to the candidates for state, county and city offices, were taken up and examined. The result will aid the women voters in casting their ballots in the coming elections, members of the league said.

The league sent out 132 questionaires in all, 80 of which have been returned filled out by the candidates.

The meeting was presided over by Miss Eleonore Raoul, president. The league, in accordance with its custom, will not indorse any candidate as a body, but the questionaires will be used by the individual members in deciding on which candidates deserve their votes, said the president.

Junior Order Meets.

All members of Clara Council No 15, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, are requested to meet at the order's quarters on Hemphill avenue Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock for the purpose of attending the funeral of Joshua Poss.

THIEVES SNATCH GUN FROM VICTIM'S HAND

G. A. Chapman, groceryman, of 110 Cooper street, was held up and robbed by two negroes in his store Tuesday night. Mr. Chapman reached for his gun immediately upon learning the designs of the robbers, but they were so close upon him that he did not have a chance to use it. The gun was taken from him and the negroes fled. The money in the cash drawer was overlooked in the flight of the bandits, the Colt revolver being the only thing taken.

Harvey Aiken, of 80 Robbins street, was captured immediately after breaking into the Isaac Weinkle Bag company, 140 Peters street, Tuesday night. He had stolen a number of articles of clothing, including shoes, which he had packed into a suit case.

GASTON CONFIDENT WALKER WILL WIN

As the day for the primary election draws near Clifford Walker grows stronger and stronger in his race tor governor and he will defeat Governor Hardwick in the primaries by an unprecedented majority on September 13, according to the mid-week political statement issued at Walker headquarters Tuesday by Joe Gaston, campaign manager.

Mr. Gaston's statement follows:

In spite of the frenzied and frantic efforts of the governor to square himself with the people by taking the stump in all parts of Georgia his efforts are too late to stem the tide of defeat which is sweeping toward him and which will engulf him on September 14. Three months ago the governor boasted in his office that if Clifford Walker ran against him that the opposition would be negligible. He boasted that he could sit in the governor's office and be re-elected without lifting his hand and without making a single speech.

Has Neglected Business

We are willing to leave it to the people of Georgia as to whether or not the governor has remained in his office in this campaign and whether or not he has made a single speech. The fact is the governor at last has realized that he is a defeated man and is making now a last ditch fight in the hope that he will be returned by a narrow margin.

The facts in the case are that the governor's woeful failure to accomplish anything during the two years he has been in office and his boastful statements that he has saved the state from financial ruin when all he did was to discount the rentals of the state railroad have convinced the people that it is far better to make a change in governors now than to wait two years more.

Resents Pension Veto

The governor's act in vetoing the pension bill is also being resented in all parts of the state. Confederate veterans are sending letters to headquarters every day denouncing the governor for vetoing that part of the bill which appropriated $226,000 to the old soldiers when this money actually belonging to the old soldiers was in the treasury to their credit. They are particularly resentful of the fact that the governor has seen fit to take this money and use it to pay appropriations made to various state institutions.

There are dozens of other reasons why the people are against the governor and are for a clean-cut man like Clifford Walker. From the reports we are receiving from the most conservative men in the state we are certain that Clifford Walker has the race won now and that his majority will grow from day to day until he sweeps into office by one of the biggest majorities ever given a successful candidate on September 13.

LAND NAMED NEW HEAD OF VOCATIONAL WORK

Fort E. Land, of Macon, was elected director of the vocational education work in Georgia under the Smith-Hughes federal law to succeed Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, at a meeting of the state board of vocational education held Tuesday in the office of Dr. M. M. Parks, state school commissioner. Dr. Brittain resigned to devote his entire time to his work as the head of Georgia Tech. Mr. Land has served as one of the supervisors in charge of the rehabilitation work.

Members of the board present Tuesday were Chancellor David C. Barrow, Athens, chairman; Dr. M. M. Parks, state school commissioner, W. C. Vereen, Moultrie, Judge Max L. McRae, McRae, R. W. Trimble, Trimble, Ga., Judge A. B. Lovett, Savannah, and Ross Copeland, Augusta. Resolutions of appreciation of the work of Dr. Brittain as director were adopted.

Big Growth In Work.

The work has grown during the four years of its operation from an expenditure of $50,000 to $200,000, annually. The federal government by this law does not give aid to general education, but to three technical departments of it: Agriculture, shop trades for boys and home economics for girls. From the federal treasury half of the expenes involved is given, leaving the rest to be met by the local authorities. Besides the twelve district agricultural schools, thirty-three other high schools in the different parts of the state have been given this help in the establishment of strong agricultural departments. In addition, thirteen negro schools have been aided in this field.

The plan is for half of the time of these students to be given to school work, and the other half to practical agriculture. In one of the schools at Forsyth last year, the fifty boys, besides getting good high school training, made a profit and deposited in the bank over $5,000.

The shop work has naturally been developed in the larger centers like Atlanta, Savannah, Columbus and Augusta. The teaching is done under careful technical regulations given by federal authorities, and divided into day work, part time and evening training. In more than thirty high schools of the state, classes have been formed for trades in woodwork, auto mechanics, etc.

Three Thousand Students.

Altogether more than 3,000 Georgia boys and girls, above the age of fourteen, have been given the advantage of this sharp practical training this year, and the work has grown and been approved as perhaps the best of the southeastern group of states. A recent letter from C. H. Lane, of the federal vocation board at Washington, to the Raleigh state department of education praises the management of this work as the "most complete and satisfactory of any state in the south."

Mr. Land, the new director and executive, has been one of the supervisors in charge of the industrial rehabilitation department, and has made quite a success in the training of people injured in industry.

The former director stationed the agricultural supervisor, Paul W. Chapman, at the State College of Agriculture; placed J. F. Cannon, supervisor of trades, at the Georgia School of Technology, and Miss Epsie Campbell, home economics supervisor, at the University of Georgia.

Congress gives the Georgia vocational board this year $111,038.48. The legislature was able to make only a small appropriation for this work, though in consequence of the successful management by the Smith-Hughes board in this state, there has been no difficulty about getting the local authorities to raise their part of the funds, and there are more applications than the board is able to supply.

ATLANTA BOYS WIN AT HIGHLAND LAKE

In a competition in which more than 200 boys took part this summer at Camp Highland Lake, Georgia Military Academy's summer session, near Hendersonville, N. C., out of the 13 first honor places for gold eagles, the emblem of highest excellence in scholarship and deportment in Georgia Military academy, four Atlanta boys were winners.

The names of the winners are W. R. Massengale, Jr., Richard Walton, whose parents are living at the Georgian Terrace, and Richard and Edward Kane. Cadet Rives was awarded first prize in the final declamation contest. O. H. Jones was also awarded a medal for distinguished work in another department.

There were in camp from Atlanta about 18 boys.

WILLIAM DONALDSON DIES AT SANITARIUM

William H. Donaldson, aged 62, well known employee of the city sewer department, died Tuesday afternoon at a private sanitarium, following an illness of three weeks. He had lived in Atlanta more than 40 years. His residence was 910 Peachtree street.

Surviving him are three sisters, Mrs. E. J. Donaldson, Mrs. M. C. Langford, and Mrs. C. C. Chapman, and two brothers, R. A. and George P. Donaldson.

Bandits Get $82,000.

FINANCE PROGRAM HIT BY GOVERNOR

Walker Would Bankrupt State, Hardwick Declares in Speech at LaFayette Tuesday.

LaFayette, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—Declaration that Cliff Walker's announced advocacy of expenditures would bankrupt the state was made by Governor Hardwick in his speech here today.

"Walker could not possibly add on millions of dollars of expense, cut out the tax and keep the state out of bankruptcy," said the governor. "Mr. Walker not only does not offer any plan to raise additional revenue to meet his proposed new appropriations, but says he is in favor of repeating the present tax-raising system and that he is opposed to any new tax laws. Now, isn't that ridiculous?"

The governor compared his idea of a business-like administration with what he termed Cliff Walker's "ruinous financial policy."

Overcame Deficit.

"When I took office," he said, "the state had a deficit of $3,000,000, most of which was due for confederate pensions and school teachers' salaries. I paid these obligations, arranged so the state institutions would get only one-twelfth of the appropriations each month, except in case of emergency, and was bending my efforts to have the legislature pass a budget and audit law so that a proper check and balance could be kept upon the state's finances.

"I have been doing all I can to eliminate waste, extravagance and stealing."

He said the pension bill he vetoed carried a million and a quarter dollars for an entirely new class of pensions, such as confederate veterans who had moved into Georgia from other states, and widows of veterans who married after 1870.

Legislature Condemned.

He pointed out that the bill in question did not affect the 10,000 pensions of the old classes, all of whom are to continue drawing $100 a year.

The legislature was strongly condemned by the governor for passing appropriations "when it knew there would be no revenue with which to pay them."

Colonel James Rosser, prominent young lawyer, introduced the governor for his speech here. Court was adjourned by Judge Moses Wright, of Rome circuit, to hear the governor.

47 Miners Trapped By Gold Mine Fire, Believed All Dead

Jackson, Cal., August 29.—Rescue crews are clearing out tonight a caved-in tunnel leading from the Kennedy to the Argonaut mine in the hope of reaching 47 miners trapped by a fire in the main Argonaut shaft. It is expected that the work will take two days at least, but mine experts say it appears to hold out the only hope for the imprisoned men.

The rescuers have figured that the tunnel will come below the lowest fire level in the Argonaut.

Hope for rescuing the men through the main shaft was abandoned when it was determined that the fire was gaining. The tearing out of considerable timbering at the 2,500-foot level did not seem to impede the flames, according to government experts, and the fire was making its way toward the shaft car tonight.

An appliance for detecting any sounds or signals that may be made by the entombed miners, if they are still alive, was to be put into the tunnel.

Superintendent V. S. Garbarini and those who have come to his aid refuse to abandon hope. It is barely possible that the miners imprisoned in the 4,300, 4,400 and 4,500 foot levels of the deep gold mine, may have succeeded in preventing the gas fumes from flaming timbers from penetrating the underground chambers where they were working.

A. M. Wolfin, superintendent of the bureau of safety, expressed the hope that there may be pure air enough at the bottom of the mine to keep the men alive until they can be rescued. The timbering at the 2,500 and 2,600 foot levels of the Argonaut is being torn out to check the flames.

Tracks are laid in the tunnel now being cleared and this is facilitating the work there. The men are working in four six-hour shifts.

Canary birds told the rescue workers the futility of attempting further descents into the shaft of the Argonaut mine. The birds gave their lives in warning of the danger of the descent.

They were lowered into the shaft by rescue workers from the state bureau of mines at Berkeley. The strings paid out as the canary cages were let down were carefully measured. The tests showed that the descent to 2,700 feet could be made but that farther was perilous.

YOUNG JOHN HARRIMAN WEDS ALICE LAIDLEY

New York, August 29.—The marriage of John Harriman, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, to Miss Alice A. Laidley, also 19, daughter of Mrs. William H Laidley, of Chicago, at Port Chester, N. Y., on August 12, was made public today.

LIFE SNUFFED OUT EVERY SIX MINUTES BY CARELESSNESS

Detroit, August 29.—Careless America's toll of accidental deaths during 1920 was 76,000, a life snuffed out every six minutes, according to a report of the national safety council at the eleventh annual safety congress here today.

While the 1920 toll from all public and industrial accidents—representing a population the size of that of the state of Nevada—was a decrease of 3,300 over 1911, the beginning of the decade, the balance on the credit side of the 1920 ledger was only 400 over the 1919 figures.

Automobile accidents were held responsible largely for the unfavorable experience of 1920. In that year there were 1,200 more deaths from that cause than in 1919. Thirty deaths a day, a total of 11,000, was the record of automobile fatalities in 1920. Reports now available indicate an increase in 1921 in the number of deaths from auto accidents.

HERRIN WITNESS BALKS ON STAND

Marion, Ill., August 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—The veil of secrecy that has been thrown around the grand jury investigation of the Herrin mine war of June 21, causing 26 casualties, was drawn tighter this afternoon, not even the names of the witnesses being divulged.

This stringent action followed the report that one witness had declined to testify. The witness, whose name would not be given out, was turned over to the sheriff, but given an opportunity until tomorrow to reconsider his refusal, when he will again be called before the grand jury.

More than two score of witnesses were called in to the grand jury during the day, the chief witness being Alton P. Findlay, of Chicago, a timekeeper of the Southern Illinois Coal company, owners of the mine during the trouble. He was constantly guarded during his stay here. Findlay was shot twice during the massacre that followed the surrender of the mine employees and only his presence of mind saved him by feigning death when the "clean-up" squad of the mob went over the battle ground.

It is understood that he furnished the grand jury valuable information as to the apparent leaders of the mob.

Employees of an electrical railway running between Herrin and this city also were among the witnesses of today, and it was said that they too had given valuable testimony that furnished a strong link in the evidence the jury is trying to link about those who are suspected of being responsible for the massacre.

Reports coming from authentic sources described the testimony of some witnesses heard during the afternoon session, as disappointing to the investigators, in that the witnesses seemed to "have forgotten" facts which the prosecution had chiefly relied upon as being the basis of the inquiry.

Attorney-General Edward J. Brundage, who has charge of the investigation, announced today he would expedite the investigation in view of the fact that the first two days of the inquiry had already produced an abundance of evidence.

Judge Hartwell in charging the jury said:

"We might as well be frank with each other in all that we say here referring to this matter.

"You and I and everyone else know the newspaper reports concerning the sheriff and everybody else in authority in this county and state. Now the sheriff in this matter has voluntarily stepped aside and renounced his prerogative of selecting the grand jury."

Judge Hartwell said he was anxious that this jury should be above all possibility of criticism and reproach.

DECLARES CAMP SHOT SHAW WHILE FISHING

Lafayette, Ga., August 29.—R. B. Shaw, member of a prominent family, was placed on trial here today charged with the killing of Robert B. Camp, a neighbor, on May 5, 1922, all testimony being taken and arguments began.

John Pilgrim, the principal state witness, testified as to seeing Camp shoot Shaw while the latter was sitting on the bank of Chickamauga creek fishing. He said the body fell into the creek, when Shaw looked at it and then turned and entered his home.

Shaw testified that he had gone to the creek on the day of the killing to look after a raft and that while there he had shot a rabbit, but denied seeing Camp or knowing anything about his death until his body was discovered the next day.

AGED MAN CHARGED WITH MURDER OF GIRL

Yarmouth, N. S., August 29.—Omar Roberts, a 60-year-old widower, was arrested today charged with the murder of Flora Gray, his 19-year-old housekeeper, who was found dying from burns in a fire which destroyed Robert's house last night. The girl in a statement before she died, the police said, accused Roberts of entering her room after she had retired. When she found him, the police said he threw gasoline about the bed, and lighted it.

SUGGEST VETERANS FOR PENSION POST

Names of seven well-known Georgians were mentioned Tuesday for the position of commissioner of pensions to succeed the late Commissioner John A. Lindsey and it is reported that several other prominent men will apply for the place. Those mentioned Tuesday were H. H. Cabannis, John F. Methvin and R. J. Jordan, of Atlanta; Former Governor Nat E. Harris, Judge John J. Hunt, Griffin; Judge Robert Stone, Moultrie, and Sam Askew, chief clerk of the pension department.

All of the mentioned are veterans except Mr. Askew, who has served for many years as chief clerk of the department. Mr. Askew is not an applicant for the place although several of his friends have suggested that he be appointed.

It is expected that Governor Hardwick will take some action in the case as soon as he returns from a speaking tour. The governor spoke at LaFayette, Ga., Tuesday and will speak in Carrollton Wednesday. He is expected to return to the capitol the latter part of the week.

Hammer Type Feed Mill Attracts Attention at Big Tractor Exhibition

Hundreds of people that visited the tractor exhibition yesterday were attracted to the Hammer Type Dixie Feed mill which is in operation on the tractor grounds. The mill is of the unusual type and will grind anything from the smallest seed to the hardest stone.

The Southern Machinery company is putting on the exhibition and besides the mill, are making a demonstration of the new two-speed mower which is pulled by a Fordson tractor. This is one of the many local firms that have booths at the big tractor show now being held by the Ford Motor company and their dealers.

Actress Denies Story of Duel In Bergen Case

Edgewater, N. J., August 29.—The story of Miss Alice Thornton, the young movie actress, who has revealed what preceded the slaying of "Dare Devil" John Bergen at the home of George Cline, the film location man, last Friday night, today led Bergen county authorities to announce they were ready to present the case to the grand jury on September 8.

Miss Thornton's story, told last night after a search for a "mysterious blonde," which ended at her New York apartment, was supplemented by Joseph Iurilo, of Grantwood, N. J., who also was at the Cline home when Bergen met his death. It was stated Cline's story of a duel was discredited by their testimony.

The movie actress said she had been summoned to the Cline residence to be present when Bergen was confronted with charges that he had attacked Mrs. Cline at Saranac Lake, N. Y., recently. Iurilo, a movie fireworks expert, was there to discuss a contract with Cline, he said.

Both told how Bergen, accused by Mr. and Mrs. Cline, admitted his guilt. According to their version of what followed, Cline appeared with a revolver. Bergen fled from the house, was brought back, at the point of Cline's pistol, and herded up the stairway toward the attic, Bergen being unarmed.

A few minutes later, Miss Thornton is alleged to have related, they heard a shot and Bergen staggered down the stairs to the street where he was found dying. Iurilo corroborated her story.

ATLANTAN HELPS BUNCO ROUNDUP

Denver, Colo., August 29.—Denver, more than ever today, resembled a clearing house for the "bunco" activities of the nation.

With state and local officers from more than half a dozen states, special investigators from as far distant as Atlanta, Ga., and victims of confidence games from a dozen cities gathered here, activities of an alleged ring of swindlers are being sifted to the bottom. Officers have arrived here from Iowa, Oklahoma, Kansas, Idaho, Texas and New Mexico, since arrests were made last week of 35 alleged members of the "ring."

Albert Donaldson, of Atlanta, Ga., is also on the job today working in conjunction with postoffice inspectors, and District Attorney Van Cise, who conducted last week's raids, said today that Postoffice Inspector E. Graham, of New York, is on the way here.

The outstanding development today was the surrender to postoffice officials by the district attorney's office of Harry D. White, arrested last Saturday.

According to Postoffice Inspector Nelson, of Denver, White will be held to face a charge of using the mails in an alleged $35,000 swindle in Jacksonville, Fla., in February, 1920. The victim of this alleged swindle was a man named D. B. Stone, Nelson said.

J. Homer French, one of the alleged leaders of the confidence "ring" who is under indictment in connection with an alleged $120,000 confidence game in Miami, Fla., is now charged in the local district court with defrauding J. J. Perkareke, of Oklahoma, of $10,000.

DONALDSON NOT WITH BOYKIN.

Albert Donaldson, of Atlanta, is not connected with the office of Solicitor General John A. Boykin, according to a statement made at the solicitor's office Tuesday. It was stated that the solicitor's office has no information as to the activities of Donaldson. During the "bunco" probe in Atlanta last year Donaldson was one of the witnesses to appear against the men alleged to have been connected with the operation of a "pay off store" in Atlanta.

DISCIPLES OF CHRIST HOLDING CONVENTION

Winona Lake, Ind., August 29.—The Christian religion has nothing to fear in the presence of findings of modern science, declared the Rev. Stephen E. Fisher, of Champaign, Ills., president of the International Convention of the Disciples of Chirst, in his address opening the convention this afternoon. Rev. Mr. Fisher discussed at length the controversy over the question of higher education, the dissension that has crept into the church. He declared that the Disciples of Christ have not escaped the "distressing blight."

Reports submitted today showed a substantial growth in membership during the year.

HELD ON GUN COUNT IN STRIKE TROUBLE

A. S. Derdon, tool checker at the Atlanta Joint Terminal roundhouse, was bound over to the grand jury today, charged with carrying concealed weapons.

He was arrested Monday night after, according to his testimony in the police court, he had chased J. O'Neil, a striker, from the terminal premises with a heavy club.

The arresting officers testified that Derdon had a pistol concealed under his jumper when they arrested him. He showed the court a permit for carrying a pistol.

BAUMSTARK PROVES HIMSELF "PEEWEE" POLITICIAN TRYING TO BECLOUD ISSUES WITH PETTY PERSONALITIES

A. A. Baumstark, candidate for the legislature, is well aware that he uttered an absolute falsehood when he says I called him a "Yankee" and unfit for that reason to hold office. I did say that he was from Wisconsin and might have said that he was a "Yankee." But it would be highly inconsistent for me to term any man unfit to hold office because he was a "Yankee," because I am a Klansman, and to a Klansman there are no sections—North, East, South or West—but one Country, one and indivisible.

Baumstark bleats pathetically about challenging me to a debate on the merits of the Ku-Klux Klan. While I refused to dignify his campaign by accepting his challenge, he was afforded a splendid opportunity to discuss or even debate the Klan with me at a rally held Saturday night and attended by more than two thousand voters including many of Baumstark's own faith.

Baumstark was invited to be there as were all other candidates, who accepted. He was accorded the place of first speaker on the program. For some reason best known to himself he failed to appear.

There have been more than 36 meetings held in Fulton County during the present campaign. Twelve of these almost every candidate addressed. Baumstark cries for an opportunity to speak, and yet he has never appeared at a single meeting.

Baumstark questions my legislative ability on the ground that I was once a waiter in a public restaurant. Let me say that I was not only a waiter, but a clerk. I was forced to seek employment and I did so in an honest and honorable manner.

I was the youngest of a large family of children when my venerable father died at the age of seventy-eight years. I had not finished school and it was necessary for me to contribute to the support of my family. I worked in a restaurant three years to make enough money to complete my education.

Baumstark has overlooked other modes of employment which I followed. He failed to charge that I was incompetent to serve as a member of the Legislature because I earned money "jerking" soda, clerking and doing other things no less degrading to earn an honest dollar.

Baumstark well might envy me some of the warm personal friendships I formed over the counters of that restaurant and from behind that soda fountain. Some of the biggest men of Atlanta were my patrons and became my personal friends. These friends today are among my warmest supporters in my campaign. They have grasped me by the hand on the street, in my office and at political meetings and told me they were going to vote for me.

I am proud of the fact that I completed my education by such honest means; I am proud of the friendships I made, and I am happy to know that these friends are the most loyal of friends.

J. O. Wood,
Candidate for the Legislature.

MOTOR CLUB TRAFFIC PLAN WORKING WELL

Within 10 days the new "No Left Turn" signs, recently authorized by city council, will have been erected in addition to all other traffic guides. The work is a result of resolutions passed at the last meeting of the Atlanta Motor club.

The signs will be suspended across the street at all points affected, thereby giving the careful motorist a chance to obey the law and the careless ones a distinct warning, according to the committee. "No parking" areas will also be posted.

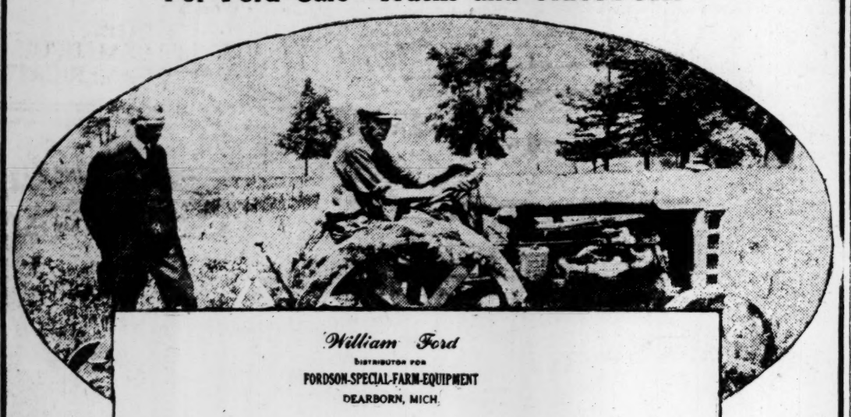

The new ordinance affecting Peachtree, Pryor and Carnegie way, which was sponsored by the club, was reported as showing great benefit to the traffic at street intersections. It was shown that there has been no evidence of congestion since the ordinance went into effect and that the drivers are experiencing no inconvenience. Traffic has been systematically distributed through the proper channels, it was shown.

Police Commissioner Dr. C. J. Vaughn, Edward H. Inman and I. M. Sheffield were the guests at the meeting and luncheon, which was held at the Ansley hotel. President J. M. Van Harlingen, presided.

TO Authorized Ford Agents & Ford
Car and Truck Owners:

There are so many lubricating oils on the market claimed to be superior for the lubrication of the Ford Motors that we think that it is no more than fair to the Warren Refining and Chemical Company, the manufacturers of Warco Motor Oils, Warco Tractor Oil and Warco Gear Lubricant, to say that of my own accord, I have secured samples of these products and had them tested in our Experimenting and Testing Laboratories at Dearborn, and also our farm in Dearborn, Michigan, in the different machines and have found them very highly satisfactory. As a matter of fact, I am advised by the chemists of the Laboratory, that these are the highest grades of lubricants that they have ever analyzed.

Inasmuch as far inferior products on the market are being sold for more money than is asked for these especially high grade oils, I think every Ford Agent and every user of Oil should interest themselves in the sale and use of same.

Yours very truly,

Muse Company Honors Memory Of Aged Negro

The George Muse Clothing company will be closed from 1 to 2 o'clock today because Henry Derricotte, a negro, is dead.

The old negro has been an employee of the Muse company for 38 years—a year longer than W. W. Orr, chairman of the board of directors, who has had active charge of the store since the death of Mr. Muse several years ago.

Derricotte's popularity did not confine itself to the Muse employees, all of whom will go to the funeral today in a body. Throughout the city the kindly old negro was known to thousands, both white and black, who sense a regret at his passing.

"Henry," said Mr. Orr yesterday, "was one of the best people in town. He owned his home out on Crumley street and he has reared a family of seven boys and a girl. The daughter is a teacher in the Atlanta public schools and all of the sons have been reared to take their proper places in life."

There's hardly a patron of the Muse store who has not seen the negro grow from a boy into an old, gray-haired man still employed by the same organization.

There was no bigger nor more beautiful wreath at any man's funeral than that which was placed yesterday at the head of the casket from the men and women with whom the old man had worked for many years. And today they are going to close up shop for an hour and pay their last tribute of respect to him as he is carried from the home that he has worked and paid for, back to the soil from which he came.

Say Pension Act Sought to Prolong Office, Not Term

It now seems apparent that the act of 1920 which, through its ambiguity has been interpreted to mean that the commissioner of pensions might hold office indefinitely, or until the general assembly might otherwise provide, was intended to prolong the office, or position, as a part of the state machinery, of a commissioner of pensions, and not the "term," as used in the text of the act.

The author of the bill is dead, but the fact that the office of a pension sommissioner was created as an elective office in 1896 by an act which limited the period for which created to 25 years, has led to the conclusion that the author of the 1920 act intended to extend indefinitely, and until otherwise provided by the assembly, the office itself, and not the term of the incumbent commissioner or his successor.

FRANK JACKSON REPORTED DEAD BY OWN WEAPON

Thomasville, Ga., August 29—(Special.)—Reports have been received here of the finding of the body of Frank Jackson, Thomas county farmer, living near Coolidge, in a thicket near his farm yesterday afternoon with a gunshot wound through the heart, and the gun lying near.

From testimony gathered, it was pronounced suicide by the coroner's jury. No reason could be ascribed for the act, for when Mr. Jackson left home at noon yesterday he was in good spirits and robust health.

He was 45 years old and leaves a family.

CATTLE MAN DIES IN THOMASVILLE, GA.

Thomasville, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—Albert Holman, one of Thomasville's best known citizens, died here today after an illness of two weeks.

Mr. Holman was known throughout this and other sections of the country in connection with the Thomasville Live Stock company, which he formed here some years ago, and the splendid Jersey cattle which have attracted visitors from all parts of the United States and Canada.

He was a native of Ozark, Ala., and was 39 years old. He came to Thomasville 15 years ago and engaged in the live stock business and became an influential citizen. He is survived by his wife and seven brothers, M. M., J. D., H. L., and Y. A. Holman, of Ozark, Ala.; J. C. Holman, of Rartford, Ala.; Marvin Holman, of Dothan, Ala.; and R. E. Holman, of Pelham.

The body will be taken to Ozark early tomorrow morning for interment in the family burying ground near there.

AIRPLANES ARE SOLD AT SOUTHER FIELD

Americus, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—A large quantity of government surplus property was sold at auction at Souther field Tuesday, with many bidders atetnding the sale. Airplanes of antique pattern and other air service property were sold.

Prices, it was stated, compared favorably with government estimates as regards values, made previous to the sale.

CONTEMPT OF COURT LAID TO STRIKERS

Macon, Ga., August 29.—(Special.) Charges of contempt of court against three striking shopmen were heard here today before United States Commissioner W. E. Martin, the defendants being accused of having assaulted E. E. Ross, and H. C. Pippin, non-union workers. The three defendants were L. C. Jessey, B. S. Witten and Bill Towery.

Only the direct evidence of the plaintiffs was heard today, but it is generally understood that an effort will be made to establish an alibi for each of the defendants. Both Ross and Pippin testified that they were assaulted at the end of the Bellevue street car line on the night of August 22.

Parent-Teachers.

The regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers association, of the Marion Smith school will not be held Wednesday at 2 o'clock, but has been postponed indefinitely, announced Mrs. Arthur Moore, principal of the school Tuesday night. There will be a call meeting sometime within the first month after school opens, she announced further.

PROBE BIG BLAST THAT DESTROYED SHOPMAN'S HOME

Waycross, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—In an explosion set off by unidentified persons about 2:30 o'clock last night a negro house in north Waycross was wrecked and the occupants badly shaken up, though not seriously hurt.

The shock of the explosion was felt for two blocks and the report was heard in the old mine district on the opposite side of town. An investigation early this morning disclosed broken pieces of a glass jar buried in the dirt where the explosion occurred and it is generally believed that the charge was placed in the jar and set off with a time fuse.

Occupants of the house claim that it was done in an attempt to take the life of Emmett Brown, an employee in the A. C. L. shops. Brown was sleeping less than two feet from a spot where the flooring was torn away by the violent jar.

No arrests have been made, but an investigation is being conducted.

August to End Fair and Cool, Prophet States

This Has Been Pleasantest August in Years, Says von Herrmann.

The month of August will end with cool, fair, pleasant weather after one of the most moderate 31 days that this month has brought to the city of Atlanta in several years, C. F. von Herrmann, in charge of the local weather bureau, stated Tuesday. Mr. von Herrmann said that Wednesday and Thursday would be much the same brand of weather as Tuesday, which registered a maximum temperature 83 degrees Fareheit.

The month just passing had 13 days with slight rainfall, nine of them registering less than one-tenth of an inch. The total rainfall for the month is 2.72 inches, which is 1.76 inches less than the average total for August, the average total being 4.48.

The average temperature for August has been about a degree Fahrenheit cooler than normal, said Mr. von Herrmann. The mercury has registered 90 or above but six times during the month; however, the record maximum temperature of the summer was made August 2 when 93.6 was recorded. The lowest temperature was recorded the past Monday when the mercury fell to 60.9 about 6 o'clock in the morning.

VICTORY RESULTS FOR REGISTRARS IN VOTING PROBE

Tifton, Ga., August 29.—(Special.) The controversy between the board of registrars and Tax Collector George Tucker, of Irwin county, was brought to a close when Judge Eve ruled in superior court that a name once placed on a registration book can not be taken off and that the books shall be kept open for inspection by the registrars or any other citizen.

Trial of the case was the outcome of charges made by Tax Collector Tucker that two members of the board, Joel J. Harper and J. H. Little, had added to the list of registered voters the names of 196 persons who had not registered, when they inspected the books at Ocilla several weeks ago.

Following a hearing before Judge Eve, who summoned the accused members of the board upon reading a newspaper account of the charge, the registrars were given a clean bill.

When the registrars asked for an injunction to prevent interference in the exmination of the registration books, Tax Collector Harris asked the court for removal of the 196 names alleged to have been illegally added. The plea was overruled and the registration list as it now stands will go into the primary September 13.

A number of personal encounters occurred over the controversy.

DIPPING VAT GUARDS RECEIVE EQUIPMENT

Valdosta, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—Equipment for use of the guards on duty at the dipping vats in Echols county was received here this morning and will be forwarded to the camp today.

The equipment consisted of three motor trucks, one automobile, two machine guns and a general supply of rifles and pistols. The men on duty have horses for range duty and with the new paraphernalia the camp will be completely equipped.

Since the guards are stationed in the trouble zone little hindrance has been encountered, and the work of dipping the cattle has been going on in an orderly manner. The equipment was furnished by the government.

VALDOSTA MENACED AS OIL STORE BURNS

Valdosta, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—The store of Stump Bros., dealers in paints and oils, was gutted by fire about three o'clock this morning and for a while the entire block in the heart of the business section of the city was threatened.

The fire was discovered on the second floor where a large stock of oils was stored and soon spread rapidly. Effective work by the fire department confined the flames to the one building.

The origin of the fire has not been determined and no estimate has been made as to damage.

EIGHT CANDIDATES ENTER IN LOWNDES

Valdosta, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—With the closing of the period for entries in the primary of September 13, eight candidates for the legislature from Lowndes had qualified. For county commissioner there are 11 candidates and Judge W. E. Thomas, incumbent, being the only one offering for judge of the superior court. The following are in the race for the legislature: W. H Stafford, W. S. Johnson, E. E. Dekle, J. E. Webb, (incumbent); J. B. Copeland, J. H. Powell, A. B. Smith and P. M. Cheney.

THREE MEN ATTACK AUGUSTA SHOPMAN

Augusta, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—H. B. Moody, an employee of the Georgia railroad shops, was attacked and badly beaten on the street this morning by three white men. When he was on his way to work the three men jumped from an automobile and attacked him.

Federal authorities are investigating. Moody has given a thorough description of his assailants to the officers, though he says he knows none of them by name. He is not badly hurt.

COCHRAN ADDRESS... VOTERS OF ROCKDA...

Conyers, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—Ralph O. Cochran, candidate for congress, addressed the voters of Rockdale county Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the courthouse in Conyers.

Mr. Cochran will addres sthe voters of Douglas county at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, at the courthouse in Douglasville.

JAMES G. WOODWARD

An Appeal to the Thinking Men and Women of Atlanta

Issues---Not Personalities

The present campaign for the office of Mayor of this city has already become so clouded with mud slinging and frothing at the mouth that the real issues are completely lost sight of. It is the purpose of this article, and such future articles as may appear from time to time, to avoid this. The general public cares less than nothing about what one candidate thinks of another.

Regardless of your station in life, if you are a resident of Atlanta and a taxpayer here, what concerns you principally is the FITNESS of the man you select to hold the office of Mayor. We submit to you that of the present group of men running for this office, James G. Woodward is far and away the BEST QUALIFIED. He has been Mayor before, and the office was never used as a stepping stone in politics, or for the purpose of self-advertisement. Within the next two years there will be many millions of dollars of your money spent in public improvements, and it is up to you to select the man who will best protect your interests.

We submit to you that Jim Woodward is a capable and an honest man; otherwise he could have been a millionaire during the long years of service he has given to Atlanta. Some of the most constructive work ever undertaken and carried through by this city has been under his administration. He did not enter this race of his own accord or wish, but literally at the last minute agreed to run at the earnest solicitation of business and professional men and wage earners of all classes. He is the candidate of no corporation, no special class or clique, but of the public as a whole.

We ask you to think this over seriously, compare the RECORDS OF SERVICE, compare the MEN from a standpoint of capability and COMPETENCE, and we leave it to you if WOODWARD is not the man to vote for.

OUR FOREIGN ACCOUNTS.

The people generally, irrespective of party affiliations, will not accept very heartily the suggestion of William J. Bryan that the European war debts due this nation, amounting to around eleven billions of dollars, shall be canceled "in order that the world may settle down to a peace basis."

Certainly no mercenary position should stand in the way of so idealistic a sequence as universal brotherhood and amity and all that sort of thing, but with the league of nations functioning, with every major power on earth enlisted except the United States, not even a dreamer of altruisms can conceive any plan that will assure such a happy state by the mere cancellations of just and honest obligations to the taxpayers of a country that suffered in war as did the others; and especially while that same country has refused to enter into any kind of an international agreement looking to peace, and continues to stand itself as a menacing bulldog at the front gate of every nation that is a fighting power on land and sea.

Nor will the country quite agree with Mr. Bryan, by the same token, that the league is "impossible" while it is using the league every day, although not identified with it, for furthering many of the great betterments that the world demands in the name of humanity and righteousness.

The people no doubt will agree with Mr. Bryan that the league is not and should not be made an issue in the forthcoming campaign, and certainly not while the nation is threatened with domestic problems and perils that strike direct at every business and every hearthstone; but certainly they will not admit that the issue is even now without merit, nor will they ever admit it so long as the human heart burns with an innate love for brotherhood.

The league of nations is doing a great international moral work today, and if this nation were a member of it the question of international peace would automatically be settled. As it is, it is powerless in that direction for the reason that any major power that is a non-member can only be construed as a possible foe to all at any time that circumstances might arouse.

A nation may be prostrated by the menacing activities of a dozen different organizations of insurrectionists, as has been the case in Mexico for several years. The leaders of every faction may get together, and all sign a peace and disarmament agreement but one faction. The failure of that one would destroy the force of the whole undertaking. No faction would disarm while one had thus been left at liberty to pursue its course of banditry and destruction.

A community might be menaced by a half dozen maddogs at one time. Five of them might be caught and killed. The safety of the community would not be assured so long as one remained.

But those facts do not mean that any constructive effort to make safety universal, from internal strife, or community jeopardy, or international disagreements, is without merit, or "impossible."

The acceptance of the treaty of Versailles by this country is water that has passed over the wheel, but the principle of international brotherhood did not die with it.

And the American people will not be quick to vote to wipe out the European debts due them upon some unproven theory that it will keep Europe good, and the rest of the world better.

MISS BANKHEAD'S WORK.

Southern folks in Washington are crowding the Belasco theater in that city this week, so the dispatches say, to see Miss Tallulah Bankhead, who is leading in "The Exciters," a melodrama written for her portraying all of the beautiful characteristics of a typical southern girl who is pretty, smart, quick, instinctively a lady, and yet a "regular" girl who does about as she pleases and yields to no boss but her conscience. Not so much interested are the southerners of the capital in the character Miss Bankhead interprets as they are in the little actress herself, who left Washington only a year or two ago as a debutante, and returns "from Broadway" as a polished, accomplished and highly successful actress of the type that commands the admiration and the esteem of even the prosaics who too often appear to think that the stage is "the first step to hell." It is such types as Miss Bankhead that stamp it as a profession in which can be blended all of the "sweetest virtues of womanhood."

Miss Bankhead is a daughter of the late United States Senator Bankhead, of Alabama. Her father was for many years in the house before his election to the senate, and the district in which she was born is represented in the house today by her brother.

Few public men of recent years have left a firmer imprint upon the constructive development of the south than Senator Bankhead. He was the father of highway development; and the Bankhead highway, linking the two oceans, will live forever as a monument to his enterprise and far-seeing judgment. Navigation of the Warrior river was made possible through his endeavors. He was a public servant for the good he might do, and his children reflect the progressiveness and the aggressiveness of their father.

The south is sending many young women to marked stage successes. Miss Hanson and Miss Clark and many others from Georgia are upstanding examples of what the profession offers to those who work hard, and who choose the profession for the attainment of a worthy ambition, just as the painter or the sculptor or the musician chooses his.

GENERAL HARRIS, RETIRED.

Next Thursday Major General Peter C. Harris, the adjutant general of the United States army, will have completed his four-year term in that responsible position, and by provisions of law will go on the retired list.

He is now in Europe resting from the strain imposed upon him during and after the war, his office having been the clearing house for the stupendous details revolving around the war department during those trying years, and in the management of all of which General Harris rendered valuable and efficient service.

He will be succeeded as adjutant general by Major General Robert C. Davis, who was the adjutant general in the expeditionary forces overseas.

General Harris is a Georgian, and Georgia is proud of him. He is a native of Polk county, and a brother of United States Senator William J. Harris, Dr. Seal Harris, of Birmingham; Professor Harris, president of the School for Deaf and Blind at Cave Spring, and Major Hunter Harris in charge of the army recruiting offices in Atlanta.

He was assigned to the adjutant general's department in 1914, and appointed the adjutant general on September 1, 1918. For his services in this department during the world war he was awarded the distinguished service medal by the government of the United States, the legion of honor (commander) by France and the Order of the Crown (commander) by Italy.

Senator Morris Sheperd, of Texas, read into the Congressional Record a few days ago a memorandum of service of General Harris issued by the war department officially, and on the whole it was a remarkable tribute to the zeal, energy and judgment, in war and in peace, of a man who has served faithfully and conspicuously in one of the most difficult positions attached to the great machinery of that department.

That memorandum of several pages concludes with the following striking paragraphs:

"The records of the world war today, three years after the signing of the armistice, are far more nearly complete than were those of the civil war thirty years after its close and are equally as accessible as were the records of the civil war after they had been carded and assembled in individual jackets at a cost of many millions of dollars.

"During the Spanish-American war General Harris was nominated by the president for brevet captain for gallantry in battle at Santiago de Cuba, July 1, 1898.

"In addition to duty with troops and in the adjutant general's department, General Harris has served on the general staff and represented the war department at the Buffalo exposition.

"He was born at Kingtson, Ga., graduating from the United States Military academy in 1888, from the Infantry and Cavalry school in 1895 and from the Army War college in 1908."

Georgia has furnished a large number of men who are prominent today in army and navy circles, in Washington, and throughout the world where Old Glory flies, but none of them have attained higher rank or been more prominently identified with the activities of war than has General Peter C. Harris.

It seems that the former allies are only willing to admit that they owe us a debt of gratitude.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution)

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.

The best advice for the average young woman who discoveres hairs on her skin is that she leave them alone. A woman's skin is covered everywhere with fine hairs, except only the palms and soles, and it is unwise to attempt to remove these practically unnoticeable hairs which are discovered only by the closest inspection. It is true that the temporary removal of hairs by any of the various depilatory remedies—all of which are of course but temporary solvents, and none of which will permanently destroy hair—or by the razor, which is as efficient and rather less irritating than chemical depilatories, tends to make the hairs heavier and more noticeable when they grow out again.

A common error is the belief that the use of this or that cosmetic or cold cream causes hair to grow on the skin. Nothing except the depilatories will do that.

For the removal of hair from the armpits a small safety razor is preferable to any other means, although it is not advisable to remove the natural hair growing in the armpits. It serves a useful purpose there in carrying the perspiration and aiding in its natural evaporation.

Electrolysis is the only method which permanently destroys hairs on the face without risk of injury. Hairs otherwise may be permanently destroyed by X-ray treatment, but the risk of a burn is such that competent operators seldom if ever use X-ray treatment for this purpose about the face, except perhaps to epillate a bunch of hairs from a local lesion such as a mole or a patch of ring worm.

Forty to fifty coarse hairs may be removed at each sitting; from one half to one tenth of these will grow again, not having been destroyed by the current. Nothing but a single needle can be safely used, that is, with any degree of efficiency and without causing any scar formation. The use of the electric needle for destroying hairs does not stimulate the growth of the finer or invisible hairs of the region treated. Sittings should be about a week apart, where a considerable growth is to be destroyed, such as a beard on a woman's face. Hairs here and there should be selected for removal, and not a bunch in one spot. More or less irritation and sometimes swelling follows the treatment and lasts for several hours, but this subsides by next day, provided—

Provided the operation has been conducted in the same aseptic manner as a competent surgeon employs in all operations. Attempts at such treatment by unqualified persons sometimes bring disaster. Women seeking such treatment should bear in mind that even digging for "dead hairs" by the barber is a frequent cause of septic infection and grave consequences for the man so reckless as to submit to that kind of barber surgery.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Weak Ankles.

I turn over on my ankles very often, sometimes with much pain. Is it likely to cause permanent injury? I never wear high heels and I prefer low shoes or slippers.—Mary O.

Answer—Probably you need general physical training and special exercises for the feet, ankles and legs, such as the heel and toe drill—rising slowly as high as possible on toes, then slowly sinking to floor, from 10 to 50 times each night and morning, barefoot, toeing in. Tennis, running and hiking are good, and so is ballet dancing and esthetic dancing. Low shoes or no shoes are best. Some girls in their 'teens, with weak ankles or pronated feet, need the help of careful support by adhesive plaster strapping of the feet and ankles for a few weeks. This of course requires medical attention. The other movement of the heel and toe drill consists of rising in the same manner on the heels, toeing in.

No Harm in Being Stung.

We raise bees, and in working with them I frequently get stung. The sting causes a swollen spot which remains quite sore for a few hours. Will this poison, or whatever it is, ultimately cause any trouble? Of late I have felt run down and had a large abcess—P. L. N.

Answer.—No. More likely the abcess caused you to run down.

Flaxseed Habit.

I saw your answer about flaxseed for constipation. How much do you take and now often?—Mrs. H. W.

Answer.—I suggested taking a rounded teaspoonful of whole (unground) flaxseeds once daily, either washing it down with water or other beverage, or mixing it with any cereal when about to eat.

Texan Writes of Senatorial Result In That State

Editor Constitution: As a native of Texas, I was much interested in Mr. Holloman's article on the Texas senatorial race in this morning's paper. At the end of this article he mentions that Congressman Mayfield has secured the nomination. The democratic nominee, Earle Mayfield, is not a congressman and never has been. For many years he has been one of the members of the Texas railroad commission.

The press has been claiming that Mayfield's nomination is a victory for the Ku Klux Klan. This is not exactly a correct deduction from the actual facts in the case. It is true that the Texas Klan supported Mayfield, both in the first and second primaries, but his victory was more the result of a combination of circumstances. In the first primary there were six candidates—Earle Mayfield, Senator Culberson, Clarence Ousley, Cullen F. Thomas, James E. Ferguson and Robert L. Henry. Henry was an avowed member of the klan, but the klan had the good sense to throw its support to Mayfield as the man more likely to win. The better element in Texas divided on Culberson, Thomas and Ousley, any one of whom would have been a credit to Texas in the United States senate. This gave Ferguson and Mayfield the lead in the first primary.

Ferguson was impeached while governor of the state, and was altogether undesirable. This left the people of Texas no other alternative than to vote for Mayfield as the best of the two offering. While Mr. Mayfield's record and attainments would not seem to qualify him for a seat in the United States senate, at the same time, Texas seems to be in the same boat with other states; the calibre of public men all over the country is steadily declining. Personally, I do not think that Mayfield's klan connections will work to the injury of the people of Texas, but the result over there ought to serve as a warning to other states. Unless the people unite on the best man available for public office, we may expect to see such offices continued to be occupied by self-seeking politicians, rather than statesmen. Thousands of the best people of Texas today are bitterly regretting the result in that state, but unless they take more interest in public affairs, a far worse man than Mayfield will be forced on them.

ATLANTA FIRM BUYS STEWART BOND ISSUE

Lumpkin, Ga., August 29.—(Special)—Sealed bids were received today by commissioners of Stewart county, and the $30,000 bond issue was sold to J. H. Hilsman and company, of Atlanta, they being the highest bidder.

Bonds brought a premium of $1,700 and accrued interest from September 1, proceeds from sale of these bonds to be used in rebuilding and furnishing Stewart county court house.

BITS OF LONDON LIFE

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

London, August 20.—The London music hall! It has been glorified in song and story. Patrons of small time vaudeville in America would yell "Get the hook!" or walk out at any music hall performance. Most of the music halls are in the East End, near Soho, and are patronized chiefly by slummers and denizens of the section.

The one at Battersea Park, which I attended, was notable chiefly for its vulgarity and the labial technique of the audience in booing the performers. Not a single act was applauded. But they went on gamely amid the jeers.

Americans here tell you of the dislike of the English for the yankee. The only evidence I have seen is at the music hall. An American performer was the central figure in a sketch. He was really amusing, but in the middle of his act he said: "I will spend every dollar I have to find her." The audience stood up and mouthed its disgust.

An American, who has lived here, said the word "dollar" proved his origin. Had he said "pound" instead there would have been no demonstration. I think he was right for an old Englishman behind me—a sort of Bruce Bairnsfather's Old Bill—shouted "A yankee rotter!"

Between acts the audience leaves the stalls and drifts out to the bars where they are served with beer and ale for three-pence a glass. Young toffs in silk toppers—really clerks on parade—imitate the dandies of Picadilly and actually suck the heads of their canes. And all wear white spats.

The music hall audiences are partial to the old timers who reigned in the days when the music hall was an institution. They shout to them to sing old favorites. Most of them wanted to hear "Say No, John" and "The Top of the Hill," but no performer sang these ditties.

The nearest contact I have had with nobility was to be seated at an adjoining table in a Strand cafe to the Duke of Manchester, who married an American girl. The duke is now almost white haired but his companion was an extremely young and pretty girl. I noticed that the duke was very careful in adding up the amount of his check and that his tip was an amount that a haughty New York waiter would not deign to pocket.

This morning my wife and I rode atop of the gaudy sign plastered London buses past Buckingham palace, where George and his wife reside when they are in town. A bobbie stood at each iron gate and up and down marched the red coated, plush batted sentries. I saw two men in high hats and frock coats walking along a walk to the entrance. I wanted to shout that there was nobody home for I read in The Times this morning that the king and queen were entertaining at their country home. But after all they might have thought it impertinent.

Getting a haircut over here is like going to court, except you don't have to wear knee breeches. There are no barber poles or barber signs, merely the words, "Hair Cutting." The barber slips you into a long white shroud and then hands you a menu so that you may select just what you want. Being broad-minded I picked a "Shropshire Cut" to see what it was like. There was nothing to it—he merely cut my hair—but it cost six pence extra. Afterward the barber brushes you off, gets your hat, follows you to the entrance and salaams you out. Then probably laughs until the next sucker arrives.

PITHY PARAGRAPHS

As the editor doffs his eyeshade and listens to business hum in the Pithy Paragraph office, his grin broadens.

He likes to see so much of Georgia life flowing in the direction of humor. He knows that a city that laughs a lot and keeps happy is always right at heart.

So the editor feels like thanking all those guilty—and his lucky stars, too—for getting the Pithy Paragraphs idea going. And he's ready to laugh and grow fat with the rest of 'em.

NOTHING STIRRING.

'Twas the night before payday,
And all thru my jeans—
I hunted in vain
For the price of some beans;
Not a quarter was stirring,
Not even a jit;
Not a dime could I find
The milled edges had quit.

Forward, oh forward,
Oh time in thy flight,
Make it to-morrow
Just for to-night.

He was frequently interrupted by the members of the congregation saying "Yes, Lord," "Please, Lord," etc. As he proceeded he said "And Lord, we ask you to curtail the Devil," when one old sister in the back of the church chimed in "Yes, Lord, cut it smack off." "I sure do, and the fellow that printed it certainly knew what he was talking about."

"Mother," asked little Johnnie as they entered the capitol grounds, "who is that man on the horse?"
"That's General Gordon, he's dead."
"Well, who is that on the top of the capitol?"
"That's Liberty."

UP-TO-DATE.

You may think she's just a dapper little flapper—
A little over-fond of her bobbed curls,
The latest, up-to-datest thing in girls—
Fashion's newest ultra move
She'll heartily approve.
But!— She hankers for
The same old fashioned Love!
It may fill you with surprise
To see her use her eyes
So different from grandma—thus and so—
But let me tell you, honey—
I'll bet a bit of money—
She'll use the kiss they used
A hundred years ago.

A POEM.

The night is falling fast, they say,
And soon will come the break of day,
Just as I thought;
The stars come out because you know
They have no other place to go;
They do not do it just for show,
Nor yet for naught.

The birds are twittering in the trees
While all unknowing sighs the breeze;
'Tis ever thus.
The dew is falling on the ground
And spreading wetness all around,
Yet hear we not a single sound—
A lack of fuss.

Why do I feel so sad at heart,
As though we two too soon must part?
Ah love, I rue it.
Yet fate has said that I must leave,
And all alone forever grieve,
If this be so, then I believe
I will not do it.

COUNTY POLICE CAPTURE CARAVAN OF CORN WHISKY

Information furnished the county police that a caravan of liquor was headed for Atlanta, resulted in the capture Tuesday morning, of 343 gallons of whisky, two automobiles and two men near Center Hill on the Mason-Turner road.

The men, both white, gave their names as Will Jones, and Jake Cohen. A third escaped.

The cargo approached Center Hill at about 1 o'clock. County Officer Atkinson, Donehoo, Gates and Head, who were lying in wait, ordered the first car, driven by Jones, to halt.

The rum runner speeded away. The officers gave chase and overtook the fugitives after a two-mile race at break-neck speed. When the officers neared the car, Jones' companion leaped to the road and disappeared in the darkness.

The officers returning later met Cohen. He, too, tried to get away, but was overtaken after a chase that ended at Stewart avenue. Nearly 100 gallons of liquor was found in his car. Jones, driving the largest of the two cars, carried the greater portion of the contraband.

Both men were released on $500 bail. They will be tried before Judge Andrew Calhoun.

LIONS WILL HEAR TALKS BY SUTTON AND M'WHORTER

Professor Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, and Major Fonville McWhorter, prominent local American Legion man, will address the weekly luncheon of the Lions club Wednesday at the chamber of commerce dining hall at 1 o'clock. The meeting will be marked predominantly with education and education week. Music will also figure in the program, as well as the regular drawing for prizes.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution)

YOU CAN'T HAVE EVERYTHING.

A failure is one who keeps stumbling over the obvious and doesn't think that the simple things count.

It is quite often the case that he who has won much, soon or later comes to the conclusion that he has lost most.

You win power and responsibility. You get fame and listen to the tinkle of applause—only to grow tired and long for the simple things of the old home and the sincere expressions of those who understood and loved you.

You learn one of the final lessons of life—that you can't have everything, and that but a very few vital things count at all.

I know a man to whom success and recognition came late. His hair was white and he grew tired very easily. But the money rolled in. He bought a beautiful home and servants waited upon his every wish. His faithful wife was decked with gorgeous gowns and precious stones of the finest quality were presented to her for her fingers. But she looked out of place in them. They seemed to spoil the beautiful setting of her simple, motherly ways.

How happiness hovers about the simple settings of life!

With great fame waving its wand about you, there is given to you something very difficult to live up to. But with the simple sincerities of everyday life-building ideals about you, you are able to laugh at the sham of material show and appreciate to the full the warmth of a friend's fine understanding.

There are only a few things worth while striving for.

One of the biggest of these is to earn your own respect. Do but this and you demand respect from others—no matter what their opinion may have been of you.

You can't have everything—but you can have some things.

Lecky says "men continually forget that happiness is a condition of the mind and not a disposition of circumstances, and one of the most common of errors is that of confusing happiness with the means of happiness, sacrificing the first for the attainment of the second."

And Dugald Stewart says that "the great secret of happiness is to study to accomodate our own minds to things external rather than to accommodate things external to ourselves."

A happy temperament is a rich inheritance!

You can't have everything, my friend. And many of the things which you earn are not liable to stay long in your possession.

So, therefore, take what happiness and opportunity of circumstance is yours—and appreciate it to the full.

N., C. & ST. L. BREAKS AUGUST RECORD

The shop force of the N. C., and St. L. railway is 90.2 normal, G. B. Harris, division passeger agent of the company, stated Tuesday.

Mr. Harris stated further that despite the strained industrial situation, the road handled twice as many cars this month as in the corresponding period last year.

The road handled 48,112 loaded freight cars, an average of 2,292 a day, during the first three weeks in August. The average for the same period in 1921 was 1,405 cars per day and in 1920, 2,027. In addition, the average of 600 empties were handled each day during August this year.

On June 30, the day before the shop strike began, 2,205 shopmen were on duty. At the end of the third week in August there were 1,989 or 90.2 per cent of the old force.

The new men have organized "The Association of Shop Employees of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway," have negotiated an agreement with the road as to wages and working conditions, following substantially the decisions of the United States railroad labor board, putting themselves under the operation of the transportation act. This action was suggested by the board in its first proclamation covering the strike.

THE PERISCOPE

Let's have a National Grouch Week so everybody can take part.

It's getting to be a long time between Constitutional Amendments.

It might be worse. There's still time to pray for a mild winter.

As the months pass, Flyers break fewer and fewer records. And necks.

You can't always tell. Not every man who uses perfume knows how to do tatting.

"When will the next war break?" asks a statesman. We don't know when, but we know whom.

The meanest thing about the fly is his uncanny knack of alighting on something you don't wish to break.

Germany must understand, however, that a moratorium is a stay of execution, not a pardon.

It isn't difficult to teach the children good manners. Much easier, in fact, than to show them.

Senators may have their little faults, but in the matter of obtaining pork they give an aye for an aye.

And so they would make policemen polite. Well, that would be an effective disguise for plainclothesmen.

It probably didn't take Eve long to discover that she could make Adam happiest by listening while he bragged.

Our opinion is that you can measure the decline of a civilization by the annual consumption of anti-fat nostrums.

We still live in hope that some genius will invent a lather to make lawn grass easy to cut.

Strange how things outlive their usefulness. We've had bath tubs for years, and perfume is on the market still.

The reason public concerts are popular is because none of the initiated sending stations have adopted C. O. D.

The chief difference between ancient and modern authors is that the moderns don't hold their breath so long between periods.

A writer says you can go to Europe for $800. But you'd probably have no better luck than when you go to your local bank for it.

If we knew how many young girls there are in the country, we'd know how many parents are warning them not to act like the flappers.

SERMONS TO LIVE BY

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY

How To Take Life.

Text, "In everything give thanks." I. Thess. 5:18.

Cease to resist life, accept it.

There is a Great Father who has launched you into life and He will as surely see you safely through it here and out of it into The Beyond, if you trust him, as He guides the migrating birds from the far north to tropic isles of bounty and beauty.

That you have life is His will for you and it is the will of Infinite Love—it is not only good will, it is the best will.

He who thus trustingly takes life as God's will for him, is at once so adjusted to all the universe of both discovered and undiscovered forces in all human and spirit worlds and in material realms as to find all things working together for good to him.

He has grasped all experience by the smooth handle. He is at the focus of all really good fortune.

"Two men looked through prison bars, one saw mud, the other saw stars."

Shriners Vote On Class Tonight for Big Ceremonial

This evening at 5 o'clock the Nobility of Yaarab Temple will gather at Shrine headquarters to pass upon a long list of applicants for membership in the Shrine, those who survive the Moslem test being eligible to cross the hot sands of the desert at the ceremonial session to be held in the Automobile building at Lakewood at 1 p. m., on Friday, September 1.

The ceremonial session is only a part of the big day planned by the Shriners, for while the nobility is assisting in the rites that will make a large addition to the number of the faithful in this Oasis, the members of Shriners' families will be having a great time at the big basket picnic and outing.

Potentate Bayne Gibson, having purchased the park for the entire day will turn it and every amusement facility over to the guests, and they may enjoy themselves to the limit without a cent to pay. The big program as published in a recent official announcement will go through just as planned with the exception that The Constitution will not give a radio concert at 1:30 p. m., on account of the installation of the new powerful sending apparatus planned for Friday will not be in readiness before evening.

Lakewood will be closed all day Friday to everybody but Shriners, and it will require the 1922 Shrine card or a family ticket issued by Recorder Argard to gain admission to the park. This announcement is made so that no one may be embarrassed or disappointed.

HOUSER IS NAMED FOR HOTEL BENEFIT

Fred Houser, secretary of the Atlanta and Georgia Hotel Men's associations, was appointed vice president of the Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit association for the state of Georgia Monday by B. B. Morton, of Houston, Texas, director for the southern states of the association.

The association is the largest of its kind in the world, it is said. It has as its aim the cementing of friendship among the hotel men of the country and of the world.

New Orleans Visitors.

A. H. Seaward, of New Orleans, accompanied by Mrs. Seaward, their son and daughter, Gordon W., and Miss Bertha M. Seaward, were in Atlanta Tuesday and visited the chamber of commerce. Mr. Seaward is an officer in the New Orleans Chamber of Commerce, and is president of the Louisiana Manufacturers' association.

Sutton Implores Parents To Keep Youths in School

An appeal to parents to insist that their sons and daughters continue in school as long as possible was made by Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, Tuesday, in connection with the education week campaign that is to be waged before opening of the coming school year. His appeal is addressed to "the fathers and mothers of Atlanta" and is as follows:

"The open school door on September 11 is the golden opportunity for the youth of Atlanta. The old idea that the child drags himself lazily to school and enters upon his school duties as if scourged to a task, is the wrong conception, for both parent and child, of the open school door. Of course, every father and mother expects to send the smaller children to school, but there are those who are older, and some of these have reached years of accountability where they commence to think for themselves.

Many of these children who are what we call early adolescents, ranging from 12 years up to 20, have decided that they will drop out of school and go to work. Each one constitutes a problem to himself or herself. What shall be the attitude of father and mother toward the boy or girl who is inclined to drop out of school and go to work? This is a question which I cannot answer for you. I can only suggest that every means known to man should be used to show the young man or young woman the error of his or her way, and encourage them to get back into the line where opportunities will come.

Ask to Get Back.

"The 26 cases of young boys about 18 to 20 years of age who have appealed to me during the past ten days, asking that I help to devise some way whereby they may be able to get back into high school, constitute sufficient argument in themselves that every parent should do his utmost to see that every boy and girl of high school age gets back into school. Several of these boys have stated to me that when they were 14, they could have continued in school, but now the father is dead, and there is a widowed mother. In some cases other smaller children are dependent upon them. They have been at work for four or five years and now realize that advancement is an absolute impossibility.

"What can be done, that they may help both the family, and at the same time continue in school? Perhaps if the parents had been insistent, these boys might have continued in school. There is a deep and lasting responsibility resting upon the fathers and mothers to see that these older boys and girls are kept in school. The future welfare of the family depends upon them, the wealth and happiness of the children depend upon it, the usefulness and service to society is at stake, and most of all, the usefulness and service to society rests upon the decision of the boy or girl to remain in school or to drop out.

"The individual human brain is not the product of one age. Our ideas, our conceptions, our thoughts, the possibilities that are within us, have been wrought out by generation after generation. Our ability to learn, to study, to reason, to work out the problems of life has come down to us through the suffering, the prayer, deprivation, the hardships of the generations of the past. Shall our children add to the sum of human knowledge? Shall our children add to the possibilities of the human brain? Or shall they retrograde? The responsibility is on the parent.

"I sincerely trust that this message will not sound presumptuous. It is given from the heart and life of one who feels deeply the responsibilities that are laid upon him. One who thinks of his office as superintendent of schools as of a great obligation to see that a city is trained and prepared for better citizenship and for higher and nobler service to the community. As superintendent of schools, I am deeply interested in every child in Atlanta. I wish every one of them in school. I feel and appreciate how keenly the mother, in particular, thinks of the welfare of her children. I appeal to each mother and to each father, regardless of what seems to be the inclination of the boy or the girl, that they give to this boy or girl every encouragement to re-enter school."

MORE FUEL ASKED FOR COTTON TRADE

Having Secured Better Rating for Oil Mills, Boifeuillet Works for Gins and Compresses.

John T. Boifeuillet, state fuel distributor, declared Tuesday that he is hopeful that cotton gins will be placed in class one or class two of the coal priorities list for coal shipments following receipt of news that cotton compresses have been moved up on the list. The instructions relative to compresses were received Tuesday by the distributor.

Since the recent favorable action of the federal distributor in moving forward cotton oil companies on the priority list Commissioner Boifuillet has been working in behalf of the cotton gins and he said he had noted indications which pointed to the fact that the gins also would be favored for coal shipments during the coal crisis.

"It is certain that the federal distributor is giving careful attention to the claims of all industries connected with cotton and that he realizes the necessity of providing coal to meet all emergencies that might develop in reference to the movement of cotton and its preparations for shipment," he said.

Mill Forms Forwarded.

The act of the federal distributor in putting compresses in class one was based on the condition that the state commissioner prepare certain forms and submit them to the Washington office. These forms were prepared Tuesday and sent to the federal distributor, Commissioner Boifeuillet stated.

In reference to the compresses being placed in class one Commissioner Boifeuillet said:

Some days ago one of the large compress companies in Georgia made application to the state fuel distributor for coal for compresses in a number of cities in the state.

In forwarding the applications to the federal fuel distributor at Wasnington, the state fuel distributor addressed a letter to him in which the following language was used:

Transportation Phase.

"The compress company believes it is entitled to priority on shipments of coal, virtually along with the transportation lines, inasmuch as cotton compression is so closely related that it is, in fact, a part of transportation. If the operation of compress plants is prevented on account of lack of fuel, the movement of the cotton crop will become impossible and the results will prove disastrous not only to the railroads, but to the whole industrial fabric of this and other states. In addition to the necessity of handling cotton shipments at compresses, the compression of cotton enables the railroads to save equipment, which is of prime importance at this critical time.

"Allow me to state a fact, which you already know, that compresses were placed on the priority list, along with the railroads, in the extremely critical coal crisis during the war, and this action was taken by the fuel administration because of the fact that compression is essential and a part of transportation."

The state fuel distributor has just been notified by Mr. H. B. Spencer, federal fuel distributor, that he "will be pleased to place a priority No. 1 on these compress orders," if the state fuel distributor will submit to him certain forms per instructions. This has been done, and the applications are now on their way to Washington.

HEARING SEPTEMBER 2 IN ALBRITTON CASE

Birmingham, August 29.—Earl Albritton was released last night under $5,000 bond for his appearance before a federal commissioner at a preliminary hearing September 2, in connection with the disappearance of his father E. S. Albritton, Gadsden automobile dealer, two years ago when a report was circulated that the elder Albritton had been drowned.

ABANDONED BABE BACK WITH MOTHER

of Grady hospital, following deliverance of the child to its mother, stated he was satisfied that the mother's claims were legitimate and he was glad to restore the baby to the person to whomit was rightfully entitled.

Many families, some of which resided out of Atlanta, attempted to adopt little Geneva following the stories of her abandonment in the Constitution Monday and Tuesday. The telephones at both Grady hospital and the Georgia Baptist orphanage were kept busy during the two days by persons who wished to give the child a home.

Other Baby Case.

It developed Tuesday that the Garner-Pitman baby case, which created such intense interest in the latter part of 1920, when it was alleged by Mrs. Garner that she was given the wrong baby shortly after its birth at Grady hospital, has not been finally decided, as was stated in The Constitution Monday, but is still pending before Judge George L. Bell in superior court.

William E. Arnaud, attorney, who represents Mrs. Garner, in a statement to The Constitution, declared the case has simply been deferred in its final hearing because of the delay on the part of James W. Austin, attorney for Mrs. Pitman, who filed a motion to have the court dismiss the case. Mr. Arnaud's statement follows:

When the Garner-Pitman case was tried in October, 1920, the plaintiffs adduced evidence showing that the new-born babies of Mrs. Garner and Mrs. Pitman had been exchanged. The evidence for the plaintiffs also showed that no identification tags had been placed upon these babies, prior to the alleged exchange. Judge Bell referred the issues of fact to a jury, and favored an early trial at the next term of court. The defendants' attorney filed exceptions, claiming that the court had committed error in referring the case to a jury.

Trial Postponed.

The defendants' attorney later filed a motion to dismiss the plaintiffs' case, on the ground that it could not be changed from a habeas corpus action to an equitable proceeding, to determine the parentage of the child, Louise Madeline.

When the defendants' motion to dismiss was not heard within a reasonable time, the plaintiffs' attorney placed the case itself on the trial calendar; and when the case was reached for trial, the defendants' attorney called attention to his motion to dismiss, which if sustained, would dispose of the case. Accordingly, the case was taken off the calendar for a trial on its merits, pending a decision on the defendants' motion.

The trial of the "mixed baby" case is being delayed by the failure of the defendants' attorney to have his motion to dismiss set down for a hearing and determination.

Ask Early Hearing.

Mr. Arnaud stated Tuesday that he will ask the court to take up the case immediately.

"My client has not for one moment given up hope of recovering her own child," asserted Mr. Arnaud. "We believe our case to be greatly strengthened despite the delay, for the child in the meatime has grown considerably and is now almost two years old. Its resemblance to Mrs. Garner's other three children is so striking that anyone not connected with the case at all can immediately see the identical similarities in the Garner children with the baby now in the possession of Mrs. Pitman."

number to supervise and test the carriers' inspection system. Nothwithstanding, interstate commerce commission inspectors during July inspected 4,085 locomotives on 162 railroads finding 2,456 defective, and 169 unsafe to operate. Many of the defects noted, it was said, were of no importance, but 992 engines still in service were found to have defects in need of prompt attention.

It was pointed out that the condition of disrepair indicated did not, in the judgment of the inspectors, affect the safety of operations exeept in the case of the locomotives put out of service. It was, however, impossible, the commission said, for its inspection staff to report on the changing conditions of the 70,000 locomotives now in service where safety requirements are established by law.

Disorder in West.

Attorney-General Daugherty announced that a separate investigation organization would be built up immediately in Los Angeles, in charge of Hiram C. Todd, United States attorney for northern New York, who is to resign his position at once to accept this special appointment. It will be Mr. Todd's duty, it was said, to conduct inquiries into the possible criminality involved in the series of train stoppages and interruptions to interstate commerce in the west. Likewise, the attorney-general sent formal instructions to all federal district attorneys to follow up any violations of federal court injunctions obtained by railroads to prevent strikers and their sympathizers from molesting operations in shops and yards. The law, Mr. Daugherty said, must be "impressively enforced" in the matter.

The 1920 wage schedules will be reestablished. The operators agreed to attend the joint conference at Cleveland, October 2, where a new wage scale to become effective after March 31 will be discussed.

Since the Cleveland conference, which marked the beginning of the end of the bituminous coal strike, companies, large and small, have fallen into line with one exception. The Pittsburg Coal company has refused to discuss any settlement proposal which included the check-off and this organization resigned from the Coal Producers' association yesterday.

The Pittsburg Coal company is operating a number of mines on a reduced scale with non-union labor.

According to district officials of the United Mine Workers' the settlement reached with the Pittsburg Producers' association, means that 90 per cent of the 45,000 miners who went on strike have been authorized to return to work.

NEW PLAN MAY END ANTHRACITE STRIKE.

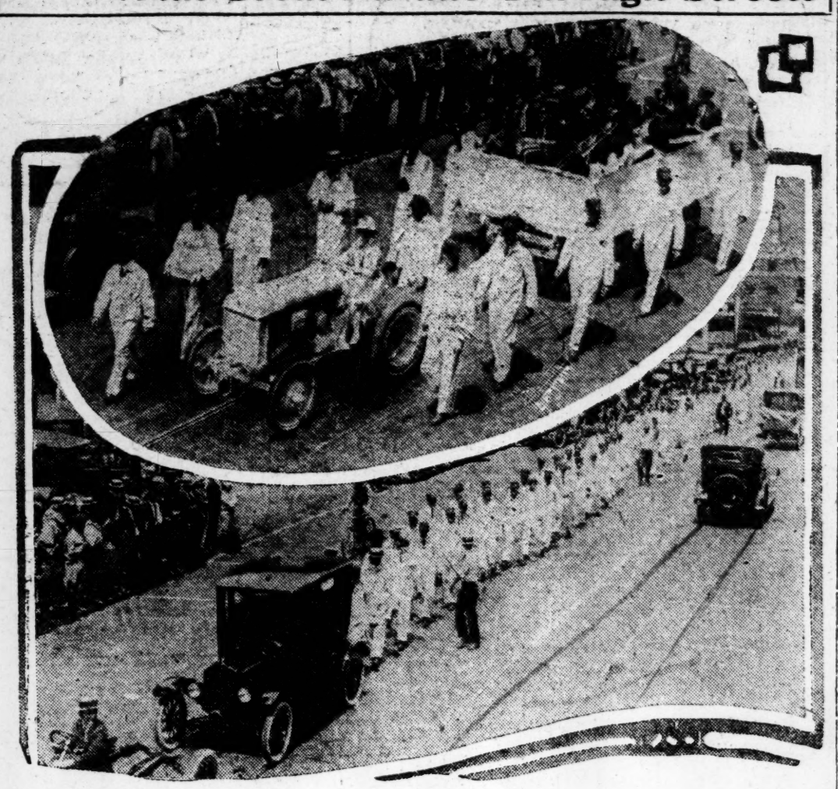

Washington, August 29.—A proposal that the strike in the anthracite coal fields be settled immediately on the basis of the wage scales in effect last April was advanced through Senator Pepper tonight at a conference of representatives of operators and mine union officials. Some of those participating in the conference expressed belief that the proposal offered hope of ending the long continued suspension in the hard coal fields.

Under the proposal, the controversial issue of arbitration as a means of reaching agreement on wages would be set entirely aside, and the only important question to be decided would be that of how long the compromise would be effective.

SOFT COAL MEN SIGN AGREEMENT.

Pittsburg, August 29.—The Pittsburg Coal Producers' association tonight accepted the terms of the Cleveland agreement and signed a supplemental agreement with the United Mine Workers' organization to immediately reopen 54 mines employing more than 10,000 men. This action practically ended the strike of miners in the bituminous field which began April 1.

Open Fordson Tractor Exposition With Great Parade Through Streets

Scenes from the magnificent procession of Fords and Ford workers with which the big three-day exposition was opened here Tuesday. Above, Wedemyer's band, which led the procession pulled by a Fordson tractor. Below, The Constitution's Ford and some Ford employees.

The Southeasten Fordson industrial exposition opened yesterday with an unusual parade as has graced Atlanta's streets in a long time, and as it entered the business district it found a large and interested crowd awaiting it.

At the head of the parade, driving a white enameled tractor, rode Miss Lucy Hale, of Winans, Ga., drawing a trailer on which rode the band. Miss Eva Stinson, of Atlanta, also dressed in white, rode a white enameled tractor pulling a trailer on which was mounted a printing press turning out hand-bills.

The long columns of Ford employees dressed in their working uniforms, the silo filler, which chewed a roll of crepe paper by the armful and distributed them around the street, the mule on which was fastened a sign "Old Maud is Leaving the Farm," all created much comment while the float entered by the Citizens and Southern bank and the display of the Goodyear Rubber company were perhaps the most artistic features of the parade.

Key Lauds Ford.

Mayor James L. Key, on the return of the parade to the exposition grounds, spoke of the accomplishments of Henry Ford and of what they meant to the country at large, making for more employment, greater efficiency and a larger degree of prosperity than existed before.

The mayor referred to Mr. Ford's success in railroading. Taking a bankrupt railroad, he at once increased wages, thereby securing greater efficiency, while at the same time he decreased freight rates. The result has been a great example to the rest of the railroads.

In concluding the mayor spoke of Mr. Ford's offer to take over Muscle Shoals and how the development by him of this project would put a million men to work, and he added that if he were sent to congress he would do all in his power to bring about acceptance of Mr. Ford's offer.

250 Dealers Meet.

In the evening a dinner on the roof of the Ansley hotel was attended by nearly 250 Ford dealers from the territory covered by the local branch. The purpose of this meeting was to add stimulus to the campaign for further increasing the use of the Fordson on the farm and in industry. The speakers at this meeting were W. W. Mitchell, manager of the local Ford branch, who presided: Slocum Ball, manager of the Jacksonville, Fla., branch; J. W. Holt, manager of the Charlotte, N. C., branch and H. O. Mainzinger, sales manager, Whitehead and Kales company, Detroit, Mich.

Today has been designated as banker's day in honor of the large number of bankers visiting the exposition. The outstanding feature of the day will be a luncheon to be given by the officers of the Fourth National bank at noon at the Hotel Ansley. Among the speakers will be H. B. Rogers, of the Fourth National bank; A. W. Vaughan, of Cartersville, Ga., and W. W. Mitchell, of the Ford Motor company.

Following the luncheon the visiting bankers will be taken to the exposition grounds and later will be conducted through the local Ford assembly plant.

Record Crowd Here.

Long before the parade formed yesterday a record opening day crowd thronged the exposition grounds at Ponce de Leon avenue at Penn. As the day wore on it greatly increased, reaching its maximum in the evening when the large lot was almost overcrowded. It was estimated that over 10,000 people were present during the day.

Chief among the attractions for the evening crowd were the picture show, the electric power plant and the prize Ford to be given away by The Constitution at the exposition later in the week.

A special tent has been erected for the use of the moving picture show and its seating capacity of 500 people was crowded to the limit the entire evening.

The Constitution prize Ford car had grouped about it constantly a large crowd. Its new lines, with one-man top and slanting windshield, attracted much comment. This car will be given away later in the week when the result of the word list and essay contest is announced.

The exposition is scheduled to continue until Thursday night of this week, but already rumors seem to indicate the possibility of extending to Saturday night, although no official announcement has as yet been made. It is open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. No admission is charged.

Ford Officials Here.

Slocum Ball, for a long time assistant manager of the Atlanta branch of the Ford Motor company, and for the past two years manager of their Jacksonville branch, and J. W. Holt, manager of the Ford branch at Charlotte, were among the officials of the Ford Motor company who arrived at the big exposition Tuesday. S. A. Ryan, a brother of the general sales manager of the Ford Motor company, and one of the largest Ford dealers in Florida, was with Mr. Ball from Jacksonville. Mr. Ryan is the senior member of the firm of Ryan & Knight, at Miami.

Among the prominent factorymen, from among the Fordson accessory manufacturers, to arrive Tuesday were S. Sanders, of the Newell-Sanders Plow company, at Chattanooga; Donald McDonald, of the B. F. Avery and Sons company, of St. Louis, and H. M. Wood, of the Trailmobile company.

Instead of being directly connected to its motor, a new electric ventilating fan is driven through a belt by a smaller, high speed motor.

State Death Rate Is Bettered Only By 2 More States

Constitution Bureau.
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, D. C., August 29.—(By Special Leased Wire.)—With the exception of Wyoming and Montana, Georgia had the lowest annual death rate of any state in the union, according to provisional mortality figures compiled by the bureau of census for the first quarter of 1922, announced tonight.

The death rate for the state during the first three months of 1922 was 10.3 per thousand annually. Wyoming, with an annual death rate of 9.6 per thousand, based upon figures for the quarter, showed the lowest record of the country, while the highest was found in the District of Columbia, which showed a mortality rate of 17.6.

On the whole, figures for the first quarter indicated higher death rates than the corresponding period of 1921. In Georgia there were 7,539 deaths for the quarter, being represented as follows: 2,563 in January; 2,327 in February, and 2,644 in March. Figures for the corresponding period in 1921 for the state were not given due to the registration area not having been extended to Georgia that year.

Vibrations of automobile frames, airplane wings and other moving objects are measured and recorded by a new machine of French invention.

Operating on the rocket principle, a hose nozzle has been invented that drives its way through clogged sewers by forcing water behind it.

SWINE CONVENTION ON AT CARROLLTON

Statewide Attendance Expected at Hog Raisers' Annual Meeting Which Opens Today.

Carrollton, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—Swine growers from all parts of the state are moving on Carrollton tonight for the opening tomorrow of the 1922 convention of the Georgia Swine Growers' association.

The convention will open at the chamber of commerce Wednesday morning and will close Thursday afternoon.

Governor Hardwick and Dr. A. M. Soule, head of the State College of Agriculture, will address the meeting. The meeting will be further marked by one of the most elaborate exhibitions on Georgia-raised swine in the history of the industry. There also will be a great hog sale.

Reports from all parts of the state indicate that interest in the work of the swine growers is keen, and a record attendance is expected.

H. B. Balls, Jr., president of the association, announces that a motorcade of eight cars will attend from Turner county. Local organizations have been in active preparation for the coming of the swine men, and now all is in readiness for what close observers believe will be an event giving great impetus to one of Georgia's most rapidly developing industries.

CHAPTER II.

In the Dead of Night.

The temptation was very great. But what would Father Anton say? What would Madame Garneau, with whom she lodged think? To go out at this time of night! It was long after midnight.

Marie-Louise drew her cloak a little more closely around her, as she leaned on the casement of her open window. Irrelevantly, it seemed, her thoughts turned on Hector, the concierge, and his fat wife whom he so ridiculously call Mi-mi! For Father Anton's plan had been carried into effect, and she was at Jean's studio every morning early.

But Marie-Louise had seen so little of the studio, so very little! In the three mornings she had been there, there had always been Madame Mi-mi to fuss around her, and if it were not madame, then it was Hector—and often it was both. And she had so wanted to be alone there—just to be alone for a time with Jean's things around her, to be very quiet.

Why should she not go now? It was not a sin that she would commit. No one would ever know. Jean would be upstairs asleep, and Hector and his wife would be downstairs in bed.

She turned from the window and tiptoed across the little room, and took the little black velvet turban with her, and stole then to the door and out into the hallway, and to the front door. And so she went out into the night, and across the city, and to Jean's studio. The street, she had thought, was deserted, and suddenly it seemed as though someone hiding across the street had stepped out of concealment, and as suddenly had disappeared again. She caught her breath and stood gazing. And then at last she smiled a little tremulously. It was only a shadow. Then she mounted the steps and unlocked the door. Walking slowly across the room, she parted the portieres, and stepped into the atelier.

How bright the moonlight poured in and bathed everything in its soft glow. She moved forward, closed the door quietly, and went then and uncovered the clay figure.

She sat down on the little modeling platform. It thrilled her, this strong, magnificent figure of womanhood, this torn and tattered soldier girl. It seemed to be the call of France, the call to victory and glory or to death, perhaps. But not that alone held her enthralled. It was the face, with moonlight full upon it now. It was beautiful, it was glorious—but there was something more. There was something familiar in the face.

If she could only watch it until it was finished! If she could only do that—afterwards she would go away. If she could come tomorrow night and the nights after that until it was finished just as she had come tonight! Yes, she would come!

And so she sat there, and the hours passed, and the gray dawn crept into the room—and Marie-Louise aroused herself with a start. It was morning—too late to go home. And then she smiled happily—there was no need to be dismayed. Presently she would go about her work—to which she had come early, that was all. And at her lodging, madame would find the bed made, because it was always made before she left there in the morning, before Madame Garneau was up.

Late the following night, after a day in the country, Jean alighted from his automobile at his club.

"Pardon, Monsieur Laparde!"—the doorman was bowing respectfully. "Monsieur Valmain is in one of the private writing rooms—the one at the head of the stairs, monsieur."

Jean stopped his humming, and stared at the man.

"Well—and what of that?" he demanded.

"But, monsieur!" murmured the man, a little abashed. "Monsieur expects to meet Monsieur Valmain, does he not? Monsieur Valmain left word!"

Paul Valmain! What did the man want?

Jean went upstairs, knocked upon the door indicated, and, without waiting for an answer, opened it rather brusquely, stepped inside—and, with an exclamation of angry surprise, gazed at the man who seemed literally to have rushed across the room to confront him. Paul Valmain's face was positively livid, the eyes burned; the hands shook, and the tall form quivered.

"Ah, Monsieur Jean Laparde!" Valmain cried out. "You have come at last! You saw fit to absent yourself today! I have been five times to the studio? But you thought it better to answer my message finally, eh?"

Jean eyed the other for a moment, contempt struggling with bewilderment.

"You have perhaps been drinking," he said coldly. "I received no message until I entered the club here an instant ago. If you are drunk, apologize; otherwise—"

"Otherwise!"—the word came like a devil's laugh from Paul Valmain; and before Jean could move, the flat of Paul Valmain's hand had swung in a stinging blow across Jean's mouth. "You—hound!"

The blood came surging into Jean's face, and with a bound he had the other by the shoulders—and then he found himself laughing in contemptuous rage.

"You—hound!"—Paul Valmain was repeating hoarsely, his lips twitching in his passion. "I watched last night outside your studio. I watched, and O, God!—I saw her enter."

Jean's hands dropped from the man's shoulders in blank amazement. Yes, certainly, the man was either drunk or mad!

"There was no one who entered my studio last night," he said almost pityingly.

"You liar!"—Paul Valmain was like a man beside himself, demented. "You liar! I saw her! I know now who this secret model is, you black-souled libertine. I saw her go in at 2 o'clock in the morning—and at daylight she had not come out again."

Jean shrugged his shoulders.

"You poor fool!" he exclaimed irritably. "So you know who it is, do you? If it brings you so much grief, why did you let her go in?"

"It was too late"—white to the lips, Paul Valmain raised his clenched fists—"it was too late—after months of it! I could save her only one thing—the knowledge that I knew her shame. I was across the street—I saw her—God pity me—I loved her—the black cloak and hat she wore only a few days before when we were together! I have lived in hell and torment and fear that it might be so since that afternoon—that afternoon—did you think I did not see the key in your hand, and—"

"What do you mean?"—there was a sudden blackness curiously streaked with red before Jean's eyes. "What do you mean?" he said again between his teeth.

"I mean," Paul Valmain answered, "I mean—damn you, you know what I man; I mean that from 2 o'clock in the morning until daylight Myrna Bliss was in your rooms, and—"

"You devil from hell!" Jean shouted—and leaped at the other's throat. If the man struggled he did not realize it. "I will kill you for that!" he whispered. "Tonight, at the studio—you can find a friend downstairs to act for you—I another."

"Where you will!" retorted Paul Valmain. "Where you will—so there is no delay!"

Marie-Louise glanced quickly up at the house. Yes; it was all dark! She had scarcely dared to look, for fear that she had come too soon, that Hector perhaps was still up, that Jean perhaps might be with some of his friends in the salon. But it was all dark. She was quite breathless, for she had run nearly all the way from Madame Garneau's in her eagerness. It was much earlier than it had been last night. She would have so much more time there in the atelier with the wonderful figures that Jean made.

She looked hurriedly about her, then opened the doors, stepped inside, and crossed noiselessly into the salon. She slipped between the portieres into the moonlit atelier and—she could not wait even to take off her cloak and turban—mounted upon the modeling platform, and threw back the white damp cloth, revealing the clay statue. Stepping back to look at it, she stood suddenly transfixed, her hands pressed tightly against her bosom, her face white with fear. Someone was coming! The front door had closed; there were footsteps in the hall, a number of them it seemed; and—and that was Jean's voice.

"The salon, messieurs, if you please!"

They were coming! They were entering the salon! She looked wildly, helplessly around her—and then, with a little grasp that mingled relief and trepidation her eyes fixed on the door of the model's dressing room. She began to steal toward it, holding her breath. And that was Jean's voice again, this time from just on the other side of the portieres.

"The atelier will serve us better than this polished floor, messieurs."

She could hear them out in the atelier now in a muffled sort of way; they were walking around, and it sounded as though they were moving things about. She listened intently, almost expecting to hear Jean cry out about the covering of the "Fille du Regiment," but they still seemed to be moving around a great deal, and the voices were indistinguishable, and she could understand nothing of what they were saying, except only a name that she caught because it was repeated several times—the name of Paul Valmain.

Would they never go! And what were they doing there? It was very strange! They seemed to keep on tramping and even running around, and there was no sound of voices now—only a most peculiar sound that made her think of Papa Fregeau when he stood in the kitchen of the Bas Rhone and sharpened his carving knife on his long bone-handled steel.

She pushed the door open a crack, an inch. There seemed to burst in upon her, in upon the contrasting utter darkness, a blinding light that dazzled her so that she could see nothing; and to burst in upon her horrible riot of noise—heavy, panting gasps for breath, quick shuffle of feet upon the floor, the grating, the ring, the metallic grinding of rapier blades.

In terror, she pushed the door open another inch—and held it rigidly, as, suddenly, her heart seemed to stop its beat. Then came a gurgling moan—then—then an instant's deathlike silence—and then, with a wild cry, she flung the door wide open. She stretched her arms before her like one who was blind, and stumbled across the atelier. That was not Jean who stood holding a rapier in his hand it was Paul Valmain. And the man beside Paul Valmain was not Jean. And there were two other men, but neither of them was Jean. But they held a silent, gray-faced, unconscious form in their arms that they were lowering to the floor—and that was Jean.

"Jean! Jean;" She was crying his name passionately, piteously.

And he made no answer—only lay there white and still. And then someone took her arm and tried to draw her away—and someone spoke to her.

"Mademoiselle must permit me," the voice said gravely. "I am the doctor."

They took Jean from her, and the man who had said he was the doctor bent over Jean—and, still on her knees, she watched them. Why should they take him from her—now? She lifted her head quickly, far back until the white throat and her bosom lay bare; until the pure face, with its wonderful contour, its beautiful lips, tense with grief, looked full into another face that was suddenly thrust before her. It was Paul Valmain.

"Look! Look!"—his face ashen, Paul Valmain was pointing to the unwrapped figure on the "Fille du Regiment." "The face—the lips" he whispered hoarsely. "The lips—it is you who are his model. It was you—last night! That hat! That cloak! My God!" he cried out, and the rapier, falling from his hand, clattered upon the floor. "My God, what have I done!"

She rose quickly to her feet, clenching her hands. And then the doctor was speaking in quiet tones:

"I need hardly say that if Monsieur Laparde recovers we are in honor pledged to secrecy, messieurs. Monsieur Vinailles and I will carry Monsieur Laparde upstairs to his bed."

On the landing at the head of the stairs, they halted for a moment to open a door, and then for the first time, the doctor appeared to notice Monsieur Vinailles. "As I shall not need you any more for the moment, I think you had better go and tell Monsieur Bliss what has happened."

"Sacre—no!" ejaculated Vinailles. "I prefer someone else should do that. And I do not think he has returned to Paris yet."

"Then Mademoiselle Bliss," insisted the doctor quietly. "It is all one. I consider that she, or Monsieur Bliss, or both of them, should know."

"You mean that Jean is—"

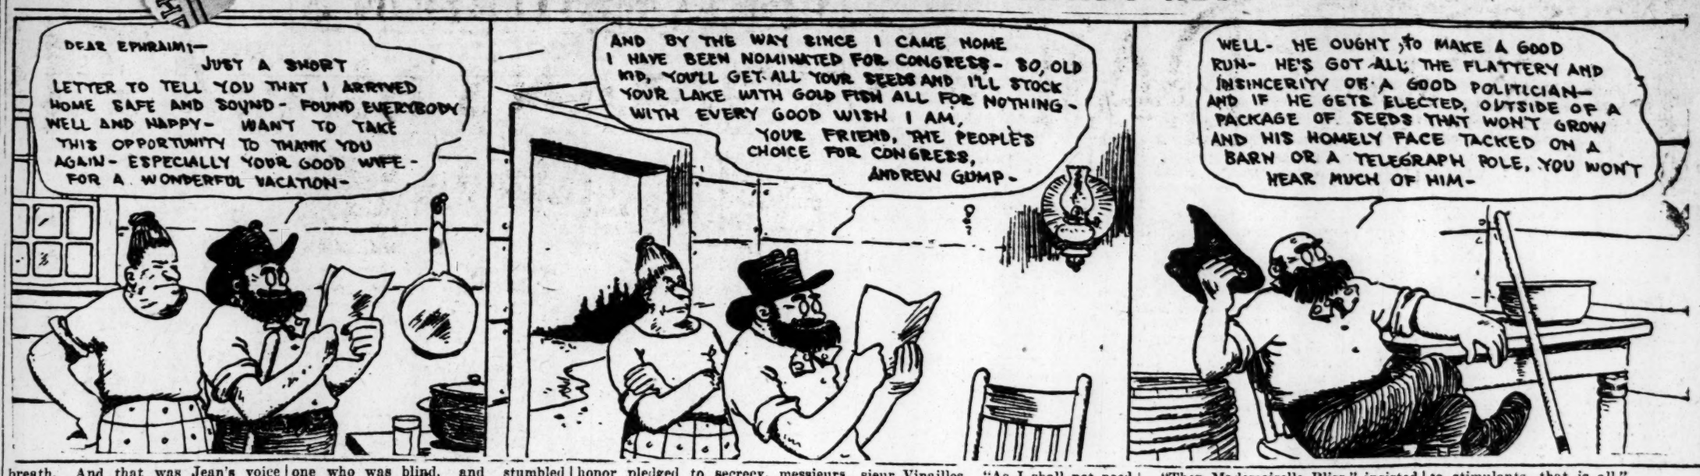

"I mean nothing!" replied the doctor bluntly. "He is a long time unconscious, and he is not responding to stimulants, that is all."

"Very well," Vinailles agreed, a little reluctantly, and left the room.

What did the doctor mean? Marie-Louise crept timidly around to the opposite side of the bed where she could see Jean's face, too.

The United States produces only 0.43 per cent of the world's fuel briquets; the industry being developed chiefly in countries where a large part of the available coal is of low grade and unsuitable for use in the raw state.

Small coal gas producers to be carried on motorboats or automobiles to provide fuel instead of gasoline have been invented in England.

Harold Lloyd to Be Featured at Children's Matinee

Due to the generosity of the management of the Howard theater, "Grandma's Boy," featuring Harold Lloyd, the picture showing the entire week at that theatre, will be the headliner for the boys' and girls' matinee Friday morning. This is a first run photoplay and is a comedy of the highest rank, showing this popular star in a picture that is sure to delight every boy and girl who views it Friday morning.

"Grandma's Boy" is filled with comic situations which should prove entertaining to children of all ages. The better films committee is particularly pleased to have a first run picture of this type to show to the patrons of its children's performances. A first run picture of this type could never be booked under other circumstances at the modest price of 10 cents, the admission cost to these morning matinees, and every boy and girl in Atlanta is invited to take advantage of this unusual opportunity.

The balance of the program as well is an excellent one. "Down the Rio Grande" with Burton Holmes is the travelogue feature scheduled. There will also be the usual one-reel comedy.

Mrs. Victor Kreigshaber, well known philanthropist will be in charge of the children from the Hebrew Orphans' home who will attend this performance as the guests of the better films committee.

Mrs. John M. Cooper will direct the Girl Scouts in the singing of a number of patriotic and popular songs, accompanied by Organist Lewis. All children who attend the matinee are invited to join in the singing, which is proving a popular feature of the program.

The chaperons in charge of Friday's performance, who will be in attendance early to look after the youngsters will be Mrs. W. P. Lemmon, Mrs. Jlian Harris and Mrs. Andrew Stewart.

Miss Brandon Honor Guest.

Miss Elizabeth Brandon, of Virginia, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brandon, was honor guest Tuesday evening at a buffet supper given by Joe Duckworth at his home on Myrtle street.

Mrs. J. W. Leroux Gives Supper For Bride-Elect

Mrs. J. W. Leroux entertained Tuesday evening at a buffet supper in compliment to Miss Rebecca Correll, whose marriegs to William Hughes will be an event of this evening.

The color scheme of orange and gold was attractively carried out in the lovely flowers which decorated the house.

Her mother, Mrs. William Correll, wore dark blue georgette.

Mrs. Gilbert White, daughter of the hostess, who assisted in entertaining, wore a gown of gray and silver satin.

Mrs. Leroux was gowned in blue and silver satin.

Miss Spiller Is Entertained.

Miss Marguerite Spiller, a bride-elect of September, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Louise Granade, at her home on East North avenue.

The rooms in which the guests were reecived were bright with a profusion of garden flowers. Little Elizabeth Hanes dressed in bridal costume presented the honor guest with the beautiful gifts.

Mrs. Hanes, who assisted in entertaining, was gowned in blue roumaine crepe combined with satin.

Miss Granade wore dark Canton crepe combined with dark silk lace.

Twenty-five guests were invited.

"Earnest Day" Celebration At Camp Highland, Ga.

Plans are complete at the Y. W. C. A. camp at Highland, Ga., for the "Earnest Day" celebration to be held on Saturday afternoon, September 2. The celebration will be held in honor of Dr. J. G. Earnest, of this city, who formerly owned the Camp Highland site of 106 acres, and by his liberal terms of sale, made it possible for the directors of the Young Women's Christian association to purchase the picturesque place, as a camp site for girls.

Two hundred and fifty invitations have been sent to Atlanta's leading civic workers to attend the celebration. The party will leave the terminal station for Camp Highland over the Southern railway, at 2:30 o'clock, reaching the camp in one half hour. The program follows: Girls at camp will take part in a water carnival to be held in the new concrete swimming pool from 3:45 to 4:30 o'clock. From 5 to 6 o'clock the girls will assemble on the lawn to sing their camp songs. Over 100 girls are registered at camp for the week-end to take part in the "Earnest Day" gathering.

A fried chicken supper will be served on the camp lawn at 50 cents a plate. During supper, the camp counsellors and junior assistants will pronounce a welcome to Dr. Earnest. This will be followed by individual girls' portraying the different types of girls who visit the camp from the complaining, dissatisfied girl, to the one who is the good, all-round camper type.

The girls will also sing during supper and put on a camp stunt. At this time the announcement will be made of the girl who has won the annual loving cup that is being offered by William E. Arnaud, organist of All Saints church choir. The choir master recently visited camp and was so impressed by the wholesale spirit of the girls there that he offered a trophy to be awarded annually for the girl who has proved herself to be the best all-round camper.

The visitors will inspect the camp's equipment that includes beside the concrete swimming pool that is 45x90 feet long, club houses, the tents, the Louise Inman pavilion, the Annie Conklin lodge, the former Earnest farm house, that has been converted into reading and living rooms, the two new club houses that are owned by Y. W. C. A. clubs of business women, water and light system and the natural scenery of the camp that makes of it one of the most picturesque places in Georgia.

Those planning to attend the "Earnest Day" celebration are requested to telephone the Y. W. C. A. office, Peachtree Arcade, in order that the camp may make supper reservations. At 8 o'clock p. m. the party will arrive in Atlanta from Highland.

It is interesting to note that in the past the camp has been maintained strictly for girls. "Earnest Day" will be the first opportunity that Atlanta's men and the young men friends of many of the girls have had to visit the camp.

Two More Days! Save 10% to 40% in the August Sale of Linens

—Two more days will see the end of the August Sale of Linens and Blankets. On September first, current prices will be in effect, and all signs point to higher prices than for the past several months. There are two good reasons for the prophecy: The new tariff and the present high cost of raw material, which combination will, in all probability, induce American manufacturers to enforce higher prices.

—During the August Sale, savings on Linens and Blankets range from 10 to 40 per cent. It is only fair to urge you to buy today! —A few specials for today are:

—50 dozen 13x13 hemstitched doilies. Of pure Irish linen. Regularly $5. Special, dozen..... $3.95

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE GREATER MARVEL.

The number of people who are killed or injured in automobile accidents is a subject that people like to talk about.

And a number of people who are killed each year because of these engines that run the public highways with a speed of a locomotive and controlled sometimes by 16-year-old children, or octagenarians, is surely appalling. Though when you come to study the statistics you find there are fewer killed in automobile accidents than by simply falling in one way or another, down the stairs, or off a wall, or from a scaffolding.

Why Aren't They?

But I think there is one thing even more astonishing than the number of people who are killed in automobile accidents. And that is, the number of people who are not killed.

I do not refer so much to pedestrians, though that, too, is a marvel, as to the occupants of automobiles.

When you consider the intricacies of city traffic, the constant hazard of the other man's reckless driving, and the ever present chance of something going wrong with the mechanism of the machine, how marvellous it is that so few accidents, compared to the number of machines, occur!

But even more remarkable than that is the marvel that when accidents do occur the people in the car so often escape serious injury.

His Steering Gear Broke.

I have a friend who has driven tens of thousands of miles in the last ten years. He has had his steering wheel break on a hill, has had a wheel drop off his machine and twice has been run into by other machines, and he never has been injured except for a slight scratch.

The other day when I was driving in wet weather, I saw at the foot of a hill, on a sharp curve, a sedan turned upside down with the top smashed and the glass splintered. Evidently it was some time after the accident, for there was no one by the scene of the wreck. Later I inquired—with the horror one feels when one sees a thing like that instead of just hearing about it—how badly the occupants were injured and was told no one was hurt at all.

A Modern Miracle.

Near my home recently a machine with five women in it went off the road on a sharp curve, into the underbrush and then down a 40-foot embankment on to a railroad track. All killed? No, not one was hurt and the paint wasn't scratched on the machine. They couldn't possibly get up the embankment again so drove the machine down the track to the nearest station and then drove home a distance of 46 miles.

Think over the people you know who have driven many thousand miles in machines and I think you will marvel that so few have ever suffered the slightest injury!

I have found that mashed potatoes are far more tasty if one teaspoonful of onion juice is added to each quart of potatoes. Try adding this and then seasoning it with salt and pepper. You will find it a welcome change.

THE HOME IN GOOD TASTE

By Harold Donaldson Eberlein

No. 57—Queen Anne Furniture.

The furniture of the types made in the early part of the eighteenth century is called "Queen Anne" or "Queen Anne—Early Georgian." The shorter name, however, is the term usually applied, and in general covers the furniture styles in vogue till about 1735 or 1740. Although Queen Anne died in 1714, there was no very marked change in style until well on toward the middle of the century.

Furniture of this period is distinguished by the prevalence of curving lines in its design and is called "curvilinear," as opposed to the "rectilinear" or straight-lined types of furniture of earlier and later dates. The "cyma curve," shown in "A" of the illustration, was everywhere conspicuous as the basis of design. Two cyma curves, placed as in "B," formed the design of chairbacks, or gave the shape for the tops of mirrors or the heads of panels as in "E" and "F;" a single cyma curve supplied the motif for the cabriole legs of chairs, tables and highboys; two cyma curves, placed as in "C," formed the scroll top found on highboys, secretaries and cuboards; while two cyma curves, placed as in "D," formed the outline commonly given to the skirting or aprons of highboys, lowboys, tables and other pieces. The wood most commonly used was walnut.

A process for seasoning wood, which gives results in twenty days which would naturally take several years, is said to have been invented in France and consists of subjecting the wood to the action of a current of air ozone.

LAMBERTS GIVE CLOSE PERSONAL ATTENTION

Have you ever noticed how much better service—how much more courteous attention—and how much better everything tasted in a cafe or restaurant where those in authority were always on the job?—looking personally after the cooking, seeing to it that it was the best, and seeing, too, that every patron was satisfied. That is the secret of the success and the popularity of LAMBERT'S CAFETERIA, No. 1 Alabama street, Connally building. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lambert are constantly in attendance. They personally supervise all the buying and cooking and serving—and they see that it is done right. They will welcome you to lunch today. You can select a delightful meal from dozens of tempting dishes, home cooked, set right before your eyes. Their salads are the best in the south. Their prices are right. They serve an excellent 35c lunch, also breakfast and supper, if you want it. Lunch every day from 11 to 3, and music while you eat. Try LAMBERT'S today.—(adv.)

Will Take Part in Beauty Pageant

Miss Frances Gurr, of Macon, who has been selected to represent her city and the state of Georgia in the beauty pageant to be held in Atlantic City, September 6, 7 and 8, when she will be known as Miss Macon. She will compete with beauties from seventy-four other cities in the United States, who will be judged by a number of noted American artists. Miss Gurr visited Miss Henrietta Davis in Atlanta last winter and was an admired figure at many social affairs. The picture from which the above photograph was reproduced, was a pastel by John Bradshaw Crandall, a noted illustrator and artist.

As girl of many accomplishments, and possessing unusual beauty, Miss Frances Gurr, of Macon, will enter the national pageant and beauty tournament in Atlantic City, September 6, 7 and 8, where she goes to represent Macon, Ga., and to compete with 74 other famous beauties from every section of the United States. The judges selected Miss Gurr upon three points, namely: Beauty, grace, and general fitness to represent her city.

Miss Gurr graduated from Lanier High school in 1917, entering Wesleyan college in 1918, where she received her diploma in piano, and was a pupil of distinction in all of her music classes. Later on, she went to Gunston hall, a fashionable boarding school in Washington, D. C., where in the class of 1920, she was voted the best all around girl in the school.

When she made her debut in 1921, she was admired at all the social gaieties in Macon, and her brunette beauty made her a belle at the dances at Tech, University of Georgia, Yale and Harvard. It was while she was studying piano in New York, that such prominent artists as Charles Dana Gibson, Howard Chandler Christy, John Bradshaw Crandall and other famous artists invited her to pose for them.

During this summer, Miss Gurr has been swimming instructor at the Idle Hour club. Beside being an expert swimmer and diver, she adds to her list of accomplishments tennis, golf, horse-back riding, dancing, and to top all of these, she is quite a reader of high-class literature. She is the daughter of Mrs. Fort E. Laud, who is president of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, who will chaperon her upon her trip to Atlantic City.

Y. W. H. A. Will Hold Monthly Meeting

On Thursday evening, August 31, at 8 o'clock, the Young Women's Hebrew association will hold its monthly meeting at its clubhouse, 90 Capitol avenue.

All members are urged to be present as a very elaborate program has been arranged by the entertainment committee, one of the numbers being a specialty dance secured by Mrs. Kreigshaber.

AT WOMAN'S WINDOW

LET HIM BE KNIGHTLY.

I have before now in these columns commented on the sad decay of manners which appears during the married state, and I have suggested that women are often to blame by allowing themselves to give the bad example of slovenliness. But there is another direction where wives do not always take a course which will preserve in their husbands the courtliness which he displayed during the engagement. Very often a wife, meaning well, does far too much for herself. She loves her husband, so she does not want to burden him. She considers that his work takes enough of his energy, and so she ceases to make upon him demands which she ought to make.

She is wrong. If a man finds that a woman ceases to demand from him the service she used to require, he soon gets out of the habit of offering it. Most wives ask of their husbands that they should give them money. Few of them ask for service. For instance, a wife should see to it that her husband should carry her parcels in the street, that he should look after the children for a short time, that he should mend something broken instead of sending it to a shop. In other words, she should make him understand that though he has married her, he has not thrown off all responsibility for making her comfortable. She does a great deal for him. He must do it for her. Why? Because, providing she does not exaggerate demands, the wife who places herself under an obligation to her husband makes him feel a certain satisfaction in obliging her. It makes him realize: that he owes her something; it makes him think or her; in other words, it creates the conjugal habit of mutual interest.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

REDUCING YOUR IRONING.

Even if you use an electric iron, ironing is warm work in summer. The worst possible way you can go about reducing the size of your ironing in warm weather is to cut down on the number of clothes you have in your laundry basket every week. The best way to go about it is to have as many articles as possible of the sort that do not need to be ironed.

One sensible housewife eliminates smooth towels almost entirely during warm weather. She has a few guest towels in use, but members of the family are restricted to a plentiful supply of towels of bath-towel material. These towels in guest-towel size are suitable for hand towels. You may if you like buy bath towelling by the yard and cut it into small towels for this purpose. If you cannot afford a generous supply of these hand towels and larger towels for bath, you can easily arrange to have them washed twice a week.

You need hardly be told that every-day suits for children may be made of crepe that needs no ironing whatever. Little girls' play clothes nowadays almost always consist of bloomer frocks that need no petticoats. The bloomers worn beneath these frockse should be of crepe material if you want to decrease your ironing as much as possible.

Sheets need not be ironed at all. In fact many persons prefer to sleep on sheets that have not been robbed of their fragrance of fresh air and sunshine by the use of the flat-iron. If you take care to pull them straight before hanging them on the line and then fold them with care, they are fairly smooth without any pressing whatever.

You may like the feeling of underwear of muslin, but if you wish to reduce your ironing you would better select either knitted cotton or lisle or else cotton crepe. Stockings, of course, need no ironing. Bedspreads may be pulled straight and folded carefully so that they are presentable without ironing. One housewife has gone so far as to make napkins of a good quality of cotton crepe. She has found paper napkins unsatisfactory, but uses damask napkins only on festive occasions.

"ARE ALL MEN ALIKE?"

By Arthur Stringer

The Waffle Iron's Jaws Draw Closer.

Since thinness of skin seems to stand an immediate though unhappy corollary to blueness of blood, Theodora Lydia Lorillard Hayden, being an aristocrat, even if one under protest, found herself without that indurated armor which protects her humbler fellow-being from the buffets and shocks of fate.

She started nervously when her telephone bell broke the silence, an hour later, for that shrill of sound suddenly translated itself into something as ominous as the starting gong of undefined combat.

"This is William Shotwell, the senior member of the firm of Shotwell, Attridge & Bannister, speaking," a suave and dignified voice announced over the wire. "And I've been wondering, Miss Hayden, if it would be convenient for you to drop down to my office some time this afternoon for a short conference?"

"And what would be the object of that conference?" inquired Teddie, as coolly as she was able.

"That, I'm afraid, is a matter it would be inexpedient to discuss over the telephone," was the none too tranquillizing response. "But I might mention that the client whose interests I am compelled to look after in this case is Mr. Raoul Uhlan, the well-known portrait painter."

A cold chill crept slowly up through Teddie's body.

"I really don't think it would be possible for me to come down to your office," she said in an exceptionally controlled voice. She was going to add "either this afternoon or any other afternoon," but instinct told her to suppress the impulse.

"In that case," continued the suave voice, "perhaps it would be advisable for me to run up to see you, so that there may be no undue loss of time."

"Yes, that might be better," she finally admitted.

"I shall be up within an hour," was the crisp ultimatum with which the brief colloquy was concluded

It accordingly relieved Teddie not a little, when Mr. William Shotwell arrived to find him quite urbane and fatherly.

He appeared so reluctant to come to the point, in fact, that the none-too-patient Teddie was compelled to prod him on a bit.

"I'll be greatly obliged," cried Teddie, shouldered over the brink of patience, "if you'll tell me just what you're driving at."

"I'm driving at this," responded William Shotwell, with a slight evaporation of urbanity and a corresponding hardening of face-lines; "my client, Raoul Uhlan, is now under the care of a doctor, under the care of two doctors, I might add, as the result of an assault which he sustained in this studio some twenty-four hours ago."

"Through the injuries which he sustained in this assault, I find, he is unable to execute a commission for the portrait of one of Pittsburg's most prominent millionaires, before the latter sails for Europe. And through that, I regret to inform you, he has sustained a direct loss of exactly twelve thousand dollars."

"And there is a further claim of one thousand dollars for costs and medical services, which establishes the total claims at a round figure of twenty-five thousand dollars."

"So that was rather an expensive thump on the nose, wasn't it?" she observed, with the last of her meekness taking wing.

"Am I to understand, then, that you intend to contest this claim?" demanded the man of law, taking up his hat.

Teddie swung about on him, with a little flush of anger on her magnolia-white cheeks. Then, for once in her life, discretion put a hand on the sleeve of impulse.

About her rebellious young body she felt the phantasmal jaws of her Uncle Charlton's waffle-iron coming closer and closer together.

"I must decline to enter into any discussion of the matter until I have seen my attorney," she said with dignity. It was what was usually said, she remembered, at all such junctures.

"Then might I inquire just who your attorney is?" inquired William Shotwell.

And Teddie's dignity, for a moment, betrayed serious evidences of collapsing. She had no attorney. But she couldn't afford to betray her isolation.

"You will hear from him in due time," she said with what was plainly a valedictory smile, as she preceded her persecutor to the door.

She felt like a hothouse orchid that had been blown out of a coupelet window and was being trampled on by all the heels and run over by all the wheels of Fifth avenue.

She was awakened from that little reverie of self-pity by the repeated shrill of her telephone bell. So she crossed wearily to her desk and took up the receiver.

"This is Ruby Reamer speakin'," said the voice over its thread of metal, "and I guess I've got considerable speakin' to do with you."

How Teddie Had Declared Her Independence.

It must not be supposed that Theodora's world had entirely forgotten her. But while these events were transpiring, her father, able to gratify his tastes for astronomy with his multiple millions, was far away on an expedition that had little to do with the struggle for expression in Greenwich Village, and her mother found plenty to engage her at Tuxedo without following a daughter who did not desire (and probably did not need) maternal aid.

Uncle Chandler was at Hot Springs. He had visited her in her studio and was a bit shocked at the realization that a prize fighter's biceps had been exposed before his niece as a model.

The old major, a little out of breath from the stairs, was glad on this occasion of the chance to sit down and recover himself. He was also glad that he had found the roughly scrawled "Back at Two" sign on the door and the studio still empty, for when Teddie was about there was always small chance of studying anything beyond Teddie herself.

He took up an oblong of draughting-board and was studying a pea-green omnibus going under a cafe-au-lait Washington Arch which veered a trifle to the right when the door opened and Teddie herself came in with a big pigskin portfolio under her arm.

"Hello there, Teddie," he said guardedly, as he watched her unspear a turban thing of twisted velvet from her bobbed hair.

"Hello, Uncle Chandler," she responded as she put the pigskin portfolio on the cherrywood table. "How's the haute monde and your sciatica?"

"How's l'art pour l'art?" almost tartly responded her uncle, noting, however, with undivulged satisfaction the clear crispness of her movements and that she was thinner than usual, with an adorable little Lina-Cavaliera hollow in the center of the cheek where the butternut-brown had once more blanched into a magnolia-white.

"Young lady, I'm going down to Hot Springs tomorrow morning to get some of the acid steamed out of my knee-joints," said the major. "You're old enough to do as you like. I've always admitted that. And I've talked to your dad about it, before he got away. And he remarked that it wasn't a matter of such tremendous importance, after all, since he has just figured out that the planet on which we at present subsist will be completely obliterated in some six million years. And he seems to be more interested in Betelgeuse, at the moment, than he is in Greenwich Village.

"But you've come into a crooked part of this old island for any straight-cuts to freedom. You'll do just what the streets do down here: you'll get twisted up."

"But you're only croaking out of a swamp of prejudices," contended Teddie. "You don't understand our ways of living or looking at life. You try to gauge Greenwich Village, which was once good enough for Poe and Manefield, by Fifth avenue standards, and you get your numbers mixed."

He stared at her for a moment, shrugged his shoulders, and took up his hat and stick.

"You're all right, Teddie," he announced with decision as he solemnly kissed her on the cheek-bone. "But—but I wish somebody was looking after you when I'm down there being boiled out."

This made Teddie laugh. She not only laughed, but she extended her arms, like a traffic-officer stopping a jay-river, or a young eagle trying its wings.

"But I don't need any one to look after me, thank heaven! I'm free!"

The old major stopped at the door.

"And you feel that you can manage it all right? That you can—"

For reasons entirely his own he did not finish the sentence.

"I am managing it," the girl quietly asserted.

And Uncle Chandler, in finally taking his departure had experienced at least a qualified relief. The girl wrong, all wrong. And what was worse, she was much too lovely to the eye to remain unmolested by predaceous man.

But—she had a will of her own, had Teddie. And, what was more, she might have gone to Paris to "express herself," as she called it. Or she might have tried to find her soul by going on the stage. And the major knew well enough what that would have meant. After all, the girl would learn to scratch for herself. She would have to.

Why Are Some Women Popular, happy, beloved and successful, while others drag out a negative existence, of no use to themselves or anyone else? Except in a few cases the answer is to be found in a state of freedom from the troubles known as "female." The well woman radiates cheerfulness and serenity, while the ailing one repels because of her lack of these qualities. It is not necessary, however, to harbor aches and pains, and the "blues" that make one a detriment to society. The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought relief to such women, and given them a new lease on life. —(adv.)

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh

Author of "The Human Side of Retail Selling," "The A B C of Retailing," Etc.

If you are planning to buy a suitcase, you will undoubtedly consider one of those attractive, shiny black cases with bright brass trimmings that are so popular these days. (These are an imitation of patent leather, and are very practical and good-looking.) The prices of those black cases vary so that an inexperienced buyer can be easily deceived; it is well, therefore, to know something about them.

These cases are really nothing more than strong duck with a shiny enamel coating put on. Naturally they will, in time, chip, and the base is likely to show. This, however, may happen with a real patent leather case as well.

Study the edges of your case, and be sure to get one with corners and edges strongly bound, as this will greatly increase the wearing qualities of the luggage. It is well to buy one that has straps going all around the case instead of just at the closing part, because if the case falls open, the all-around strap will hold it together, whereas the little straps will not. Usually, the straps and bindings of these black duck cases are of strong black leather.

Note the hooks. See that they close well and firmly. Observe whether your hinges are put on strongly. Many of these traveling cases have a try inside, and it is well to observe whether the tray fits well.

One can buy a very cheap black enamel case or a high priced one, and to the laymen they look much alike. That is why it is essenital to stundy important points of difference, as these regulate the price.

Did you ever try to measure anything with a poor tape measure? If so, you will be interested in tomorrow's talk on buying the right kind.

DRESS

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

The Indian Turban Takes on a Long and Striking Feather as a Substitute for the Pearl Strands That Began the Spring Season, But There Is No Cessation of the Richly Colored Indian Embroidery.

PARIS,

When Irene Castle launched the huge decorative turban on a dance floor in the Bois she began a fashion that might become as universal in America as her bobbed hair. Exclusive French women insist that it is already too popular to be desired, but the American has a way of liking what is popular. She takes her clothes by the opinion of the masses rather than the fastidious individual.

Here is the situation regarding the Oriental turban as far as the observer can find it out: The milliners who cater to the American buyers and the stage will continue to make it for some weeks, and the belief is that it will kill itself by popularity in America. But will it? The Russian turban had a long, successful life. The Indian turban may have the same.

At any rate, there are milliners who refuse to build it for their clients. They say it is dead for the smart American. On the other hand women like Suzanne Talbot, who ranks among the best, have moderated the exaggeration of the original turban and continued to build it in a wearable and sizable form.

For example, the sketch shows a turban which Talbot makes for many Americans; it is of ruby velvet, the deep rich Indian red covered with exotic embroidery in blue, black and metal. Contrary to the Indian fashion, she places a gigantic feather at the back and lets it sweep forward.

The small Arab turban which was launched in the late winter retains its place in good society. It is wrapped somewhat closely about the head with broad short pieces of the fabric, fringed, falling over one ear. These are good in suede.

The sunshade hat may continue into the autumn, but the millinery collections show few such models. The jockey crown remains, its partitions sharply accentuated by cording in the same color.

Felt in any color leaps back into first fashion, especially for the small draped turbans, which, by the way, are not even first cousins to the Indian upstanding turban. There is more decorative arrangement of highly colored quills about the crowns of small hats than last season, and richly colored long feathers are used, but bows of the material of the hat or of ribbon in the same tone are most desirable for street.

THE HOUSEHOLD

Edited by Anne Rittenhouse.

Did You Know That

Separate enamel tops may now be bought at department stores to fit over any ordinary wooden table.

A Novelty.

Spanish onions are good stuffed with mashed potatoes and sausage meat, put together with a well-beaten egg.

Window Boxes.

Before putting the earth in the window boxes, paint the inside with whitewash. It will keep the box from rotting and prevent insects.

Detect the Flaw.

Screw the top of the fruit jar on the jar without the rubber and if the thumbnail can be inserted between the cover and the glass, the top is usually defective.

A Saving on Shades.

One housewife I know has crepe paper lamp shades for every lamp in her house, using the same colorings as her silk ones. Then in the summertime when the windows are open and dust and dirt are constantly coming in, she substitutes her paper shades for her silk shades and her winter lamps are always dainty and fresh.

State Rally Of Business Women In Savannah

The state rally of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., will be held in Savannah Monday, September 4, and the program for the meeting as partly outlined will be as follows:

Meeting at the Savannah clubhouse, 728 East Oglethorpe avenue, 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., meeting of the state executive board; 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., general meeting to which all interested are invited. Luncheon at the club at 1 p. m., with a drive in the afternoon. In the evening at 6 p. m. a dinner meeting will be held.

Miss May Doyle goes as delegate from the Atlanta Catholic Club of Business and Professional Women.

Miss Barnwell Is Honored at Dance.

Miss Bertha Barnwell, of Macon, the attractive guest of Mrs. J. R. England at her home in Druid place, was honor guest at an informal dance given Tuesday evening by Miss Jennie May Wright.

Garden flowers were effectively used in the decorations. Punch was served throughout the evening.

Miss Wright wore a lovely gown of black satin combined with black lace and Miss Barnwell was charming in pink georgette. Mrs. J. C. Wright, who assisted her daughter in entertaining, wore tomato-colored chiffon and silver lace.

The guests included:

Dance Given At Segadlo's

Friday evening, September 1, from 10 to 1 o'clock a dance will be given at Segadlo's hall for the college set. These dances will be given regularly by the college set on Friday evenings. The Southern Star orchestra has returned from an extensive trip and has been engaged to play for these dances.

The chaperons invited are Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Orme, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Davis, Mrs. Edward Van Winkle, Mrs. Charles Northern and Major and Mrs. A. L. Pendleton.

EXPORTS

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Takes the Nation's Principal Commodities to Gulf Ports

From Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia, the great mills of the nation pour their cargoes of export flour into Southern Ports, via the L. & N., for shipment to all consuming nations of the world.

From Gary, Indiana, Chicago and Ohio producing points—from the great Birmingham steel and iron district—and from other manufacturing towns of the Central West and South the L. & N. hauls great shipments of steel, steel products, pig iron, cast iron pipe, and machinery to shipside at all Gulf Ports, for export to Europe, South America, the West Indies and the Orient.

From Missouri, Illinois and points in the Central West, North of the Ohio River, the L. & N. Railroad handles quantities of export grain shipments, through the ports of New Orleans, Mobile and Pensacola.

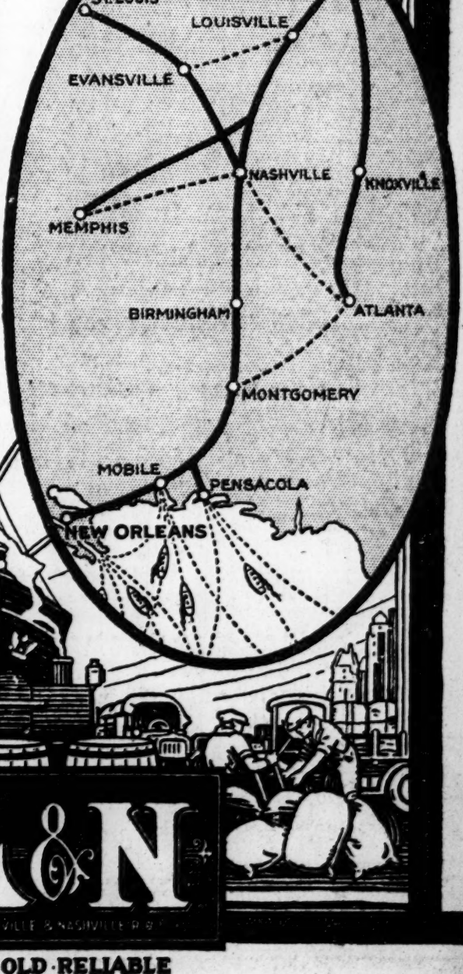

From Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Mississippi—the great Cotton Belt of the South—the L. & N. carries cotton for export to all the world.

Seventy-five per cent of the famous "White Burley" and "dark" tobacco crops of Kentucky and Tennessee is made along L. & N. tracks and largely transported by this railroad for export through the ports of New Orleans, Mobile and Pensacola.

From Alabama, Missouri, Georgia, Florida and Tennessee, large shipments of lumber are routed over the L. & N. to shipside at Southern Ports.

Many of these industries because of superior service offered by the L. & N. R. R., and freedom from congestion, select the ports of New Orleans, and Mobile, or Pensacola, in preference to those of the North Atlantic.

This condition, which makes for the general prosperity of the South, has been largely brought about by the efforts of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

THE OLD RELIABLE

Grudge Bouts Feature Next Card

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY

Wilson Is Promising Youngster

If you're one of those fans believing that there can't be any action in the prize ring unless there is some grudge element between the principals, the Labor day card being arranged by matchmakers for the American Legion should prove especially pleasing.

Two bouts have already been closed. Tim O'Dowd, who missed out by the fraction of an inch in defeating Pal Moore, takes on young Claude Wilson, if Birmingham, in the 12-round main event, while Freddie Boorde and Battling Barnett will renew hostilities in the semi-windup, which is scheduled to go the same distance as the headliner. Two 6-round affairs are being worked out.

Now there's plenty of grudge in the battles that have been outlined. The feud between Tim O'Dowd and Claude Wilson dates from the time when James Albertus Mayson, O'Dowd's manager, told the world that the Slagtown kid was an upstart, hardly worthy of passing note from such a fighter as Atlanta's Timmy, while Barnett and Boorde have been enemies for a long time; the cause: General Principles.

Since Mayson made his now-famous statement, Wilson has slapped Ashton Donza, the New Orleans rough boy; he has won a decision over Frankie Mason, of Indiana, former American flyweight champion, and has made things generally unpleasant for all of his little opponents.

Wilson Promising.

Of the southern fighters, Wilson is regarded as the only one likely to steer himself into a championship. How far distant this date has not been determined by Dixie dopesters, but Wilson's manager Tommy Tompkins, doesn't believe that it will be a year before his boy will be the world's bantamweight champion.

His carrer, thus far, helps Tompkins prove his point. It wasn't much over a year ago that Claude was an amateur, boxing sporadically around the Birmingham Athletic club. Shortly after he entered the professional ranks he placed himself under Tompkins' care and his success has been little short of remarkable.

He was sent in against stern material from the day he elected to take money for his services and has solved every one of his problems. Donza was one of them and Wilson was given little chance before the battle. Mason was Wilson's latest opposition and the manner in which the former champion was defeated was a caution for O'Dowd and the rest of the little fighters of the nation.

Wilson will weigh but a fraction over 114 pounds when he goes in against O'Dowd. This should give Tim the edge in weight by several pounds, as the articles of agreement call for him to weigh 117 at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the fight. Wilson couldn't stick on this much poundage before Labor day to save his soul.

It is a match that should prove the best Atlanta patronage has witnessed this season and that it will be backed up by the fine preliminaries is evidenced in the fact that Freddie Broode and Battling Barnett will form a portion of this section of the entertainment.

AUSTRALIANS LOSE MATCH

Longwood, Cricket Club, Chestnut Hills, Mass., August 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—W. T. Tilden, 2d, and Vincent Richards, the national lawn tennis doubles champions, successfully defended their title against the Australian invaders, Gerald L. Patterson and Pat O'Hara-Wood today. After the foreign Davis cup players had won the first set 6-4 the playing-through champions waded into win the next three, 6-1, 6-3, 6-4.

DUBLIN HIGH STARTS WORK

Dublin, Ga., August 29.—(Special.) With active football practice scheduled this week and the arrival of Coach Woodfin Rampley and his charges-to-be of the season of 1922, interest turns to the coming football season in which it is believed that the Dublin High school eleven will again play the role of "The Green Hurricane" in high school gridiron contests in this section.

The fine, fighting "Hurricane" of 1921 loses several of its best members. Kendrick goes to Tech; Ashe goes to Naval Academy; Wynne is in business in Florida; Sconyers will not re-enter school and J. R. Smith and Daniels graduated. Four line men and the regular fullback, and quarterback are out of gear for the start of this season. In addition, the subquarter and end of last year's team, Findlayson, is not expected to return.

With these men out, however, Coach Rempley has some good substitutes to throw in and some new raw material. The team will probably be heavier than last year's aggregation; will be faster and probably as versatile, but will lack the experienced men, particularly in the line. Experience, of course, is a big thing in football and will handicap the local outfit.

The complete schedule for 1922 has not been announced, although it includes games with Duval high, of Jacksonville, Fla., early in October; Savannah High in Savannah; Lanier High in Dublin; Athens High in Dublin; Griffin High in Dublin; Waynesboro High; Statesboro High and Statesboro A. & M.

This is perhaps the heaviest high school schedule of any school in Georgia, and the "Hurricane eleven" of 1922 will have to have a splendid team or suffer many defeats. Blackboard and signal running make up the principal work of this week with scrimmaging and intensive drilling to follow closely next week.

RUTH CLOUTS 27TH HOMER

New York, August 29.—Babe Ruth batted out his twenty-seventh home run of the season today in the fourth inning of the New York Yanks game against Washington.

Philadelphia, August 29.—Clarence "Tilly" Walker, of the Philadelphia Athletics, knocked out his 32nd home run of the season off Karr in the eighth inning of the game with Boston today.

WILLS KAYOES TUT JACKSON

New York, August 29.—Harry Wills firmly established his right to meet Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship of the world by knocking out Tut Jackson in the third round of their scheduled fifteen-round bout at Ebbets field Tuesday night.

Jackson started to fade in th second round when Wills caught him with two terrific rights to the jaw. He crouched in abject terror for the remainder of the round and Wills landed almost at will.

Pile driver blows at the beginning of the third round so weakened the swarthy challenger that he caved in He tried to hang on, but Wills beat his arms down and dropped him to the floor. Jackson lay quivering while the referee counted him out.

Wills did most of his fighting at close range. With a hard right hand to the jaw Wills flattened Jackson for the count after two minutes and fifty seconds of the third round.

Jackson, frightened pale when he entered the ring, did nothing but hold and he failed to land a blow that changed the smile that Wills wore all during the bout.

Signs of what was to come were evidenced just toward the end of the first round. As the gong was about to sound Jackson in orthodox fashion of diving grabbed hold f his nse and went to the floor for the count of six.

Jackson, however, in the second round took some punishment. Wills landed hard lefts to the body and rights to the jaw at will.

Wills entered the ring weighing 213.7 pounds while Jackson weighed 188.1 pounds.

MRS. MALLORY DEFEATS GIRL

Longwood, Mass., August 29.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, national woman's champion, gained another decision over Miss Helen Wills, the girl from San Francisco, today when she won the Longwood woman's singles, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Molla Mad Again.

Chestnut Hill, Mass., August 29.—"Never again will I play on a Boston court," declared Mrs. Molla Mallory, national women's tennis champion, after defeating Miss Helen Wills, of California, in the Longwood singles tournament Tuesday.

Mrs. Mallory's statement was prompted by the warmness of the crowd for Miss Wills and its coldness toward her. The galleries frequently applauded the girl player and cheered when Mrs. Mallory made errors.

The champion left the court in a rage.

AGOGA FEDS CHALLENGE

The sporting department of The Constitution is in receipt of the following letter from W. R. Cantrell, manager of powerful Agoga Feds baseball team, issuing a challenge to the Civic recreation Union's championship team to establish the city sandlot lot title for 1922:

"The Agoga Feds, champions of the Sunday School Athletic association, hereby challenge the champions of the Civic Recreation association to a three game series to determine the city championship for the year 1922.

"We, the Agoga Feds, feel that we have a just claim to the city championship unless this series be played, as our team was not invited to participate in the series now being played at Grant Field under the direction of the Civic Recreation association; in fact the Agoga Feds endeavored to enter this series but our applications was, for some reason, ignored.

"Now, we do not believe the Agoga Feds should be completely ignored in any series in which the championship of the city is to be decided, as we are the pennant winners in the National league and have since won the championship of the S. S. A. A., and until this challenge is accepted and the Agoga Feds defeated no team can claim to be champions of the city of Atlanta.

"W. R. CANTRELL,
"Manager Agoga Feds."

I. C. N. A. TEAM WINS IN INSURANCE LOOP

The feature game of the Insurance league was played yesterday afternoon at Piedmont park, when the Insurance Company of North America won from the strong S. E. U. A. team by the score of 5 to 1.

The relative strength of and the keen rivalry between these teams was manifested by the unsually large crowd which attended, this game being a playoff of a tie game played Monday the game being called at the end of the eighth inning on account of darkness, the score being 6-6.

The feature of the game was the pitching of Newman for the winners, who had the losers practically at his mercy throughout the game, giving up only two lone hits. The batting of Singleton for the winners and "Rabbit" Smith for the losers were also features. "Rabbit" also played his usual peerless game at short.

$500,000 IS PAID FOR LONG LEASE

Hotel Men Lease Luckie and Cone Corner—Plan to Build Big Office Building.

For an aggregate consideration of $500,000, the property at Luckie and Cone streets recently purchased by M. L. Hirsch from International Proprietraies, Inc., for $90,000, has been leased for a term of 50 years to C. R. Cannon, proprietor of the Cecil hotel, and J. G. Brandon, proprietor of the Scoville hotel, according to announcemen Tuesday by the real estate firm of Keenan & Chambers.

Except for an old dwelling at present used as a Chinese laundry, the lot is now vacant. It has a frontage of 61 feet on the south side of Luckie street and runs back 100 feet along the east side of Cone street.

Plan Office Building.

Plans for improving the site have not been completed, according to the lessees. It was intimated, however, that for the present a small structure will be erected at a cost of approximately $25,000, and that final plans call for the erection of a fine six-story building, the ground floor being devoted to stores and the upper stories to offices.

The corner is directly opposite the new Cecil hotel, and is within three short blocks of Peachtree street.

M. L. Hirsch, the owner, is secretary and treasurer of Hirsch Brothers, Whitehall street clothiers. He purchased the property from International Proprietaries, Inc., after they had owned it for one year, having bought it from Frank P. Rice, pioneer Atlantan.

$130,000 in Sales.

Realty sales totalling over $130,000 have been announced by M. E. Marshburn, of the Marshburn Realty company. Several other large sales will probably be announced by his agency shortly, he said.

The list follows.

Mrs. Victor McArthur, Ponce de Leon avenue, $30,000; Mrs. A. T. Noys, Ponce de Leon avenue, $16,000; J. H. Ewing, Springdale road, $15,000; Ulric Atkinson, Columbia avenue, $9,000; J. L. Bush, Highland avenue, $8,500; J. W. Walker, Fifth street, home, $8,000; James Lewis, Alta avenue, $6,000; T. J. Cheshire, lot, Highland avenue, $4,700; F. L. Knott, Lake avenue, $4,000; D. E. Westover, lot, Peachtree road, $6,000; E. T. Goodman, Piedmont road, lot, $4,000; Dan Williams, lot, Peachtree avenue, $1,500; Mrs. Langford, lot, Peachtree avenue, $2,750; L. J. Mitchell, lot, Peachtree avenue, $1,500; A. A. Stovall, lot, Peachtree avenue, $1,500; Frank A. O'Donahue, lot, Highland avenue, $2,500; E. T. Booth, lot, Lake View drive, $2,000; L. L. Marshburn, lot, Lake View drive, $2,250; J. H. Du Mar, acreage, Roxboro road, $5,000.

BOYS AND GIRLS OF CAMP DIXIE ENTERTAIN CROWD

Fresh and reanimated by a two months' stay in the mountains of north Georgia, the Camp Dixie party of over 200 arrived in Atlanta on a special train Tuesday afternoon, and delighted an audience at the Atlanta theater Tuesday night.

This sunburned and carefree party came from Clayton and Wiley, Ga., the very heart of the Blue Ridge mountains, where the camps for girls and boys are located 12 miles apart.

Nearly one-third of the states of the union are represented in the personnel of the two camps, beginning with Texas and Missouri on the west, and extending as far east as New York and Massachusetts.

For several years the two camps have been giving their shows at their respective camps, at Clayton and at Atlanta. The show at Clayton was a big success. The performance at the Atlanta was a repetition of both former successes and the theater was crowded.

Boys Who Appeared.

The following Atlanta Camp Dixie boys took part: Frank Maier, Roby Robinson, Joseph Stewart, Decatur; Henry Kingdon, Kenneth Campbell, Marietta; Ellis Arnall, Newnan; George Breitenbucher, Julius Covington, George Forrester, Eugene King, George Kohn, George Lawson, Julian Lake, Benjamin Napier, James Perkerson, Morgan Sutton, Randolph Wilkerson, Atlanta; orchestra, James Miller, William Callahan, Deneen McCormack, Houston White.

Girls Who Appeared.

FORD AUTO CONTEST WILL CLOSE TODAY

Rules of Contest.

The rules of the contest and additional information of interest to contestants follow:

Prizes will be awarded for the best lists of words formed from the letters in the name "Fordson Tractor," and the best essays on the subject, "The Value of the Fordson Tractor in Industry and Agriculture."

A board of judges, to be named by The Constitution, will take the lists of words and the essays submitted and, after careful consideration, will grade the contestants on a basis of 100 points with 90 points allowed on the longest list of common, singular, English nouns and 10 points allowed on the best essay, all lists and essays to be graded on the basis of 90 and 10. Essays must not be more than 300 words in length.

The contest opened Thursday and closes at noon Wednesday, August 30. The lists and essays must reach The Constitution not later than 12 m., Wednesday, August 30. This gives contestants just one week to work.

The contest is open to every man, woman and and child in the United States except employees of The Atlanta Constitution, of the Ford Motor company, authorized Ford dealers, and their families.

Each contestant will be allowed to submit but one answer, although different members of the family may send one answer each.

Only one side of the paper may be used in writing lists of words and essays. The words made from the letters in "Fordson Tractor" should be written in columns and each word numbered as:

No. 1, Ford.
No. 2, Son.
No. 3, Cat.
No. 4, Car.

Each letter in the two words may be used as many times as needed, but no letters not found in the two words may be used.

List of Prizes.

First Prize—Standard, new model Ford touring car, with one-man top, and slanting and ventilating windshield, and equipped with starter, demountable rims and a "Lowery Free Wheel" safety device.

Second Prize—One Badger "Light Master" spring bar bumper, to fit car of winner. Badger bumpers are distributed by the Osburn-Abston company, and sold by leading dealers.

In event of a tie each contestant will receive the full amount of prize tied for.

Announced by Radio.

The list of prize winners will be announced over WGM, The Constitution's radio broadcasting station, at 9 p. m., Thursday August 31, simultaneously with its appearance on the street in the first edition of the Friday Constitution.

The radio receiving set of the Capital Electric company will pick up the announcement from WGM, at the Fordson Industrial Tractor exposition grounds on Ponce de Leon avenue, between Pean avenue and Bedford place.

The prizes will be distributed at The Constitution's booth at the exposition, if winners are present. If winners should not be present, they will be delivered upon demand at The Constitution office any time after noon, Friday, September 1.

The prizes will be on exhibition at The Constitution's booth, at the Fordson Industrial Tractor show, on Ponce de Leon avenue, between Pean avenue and Bedford place, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Winner of the bumper or electric horn will be given the proper size to fit his car, or in event winner does not own a car a size may be selected to fit the car of anyone he may name.

Answers should be addressed as follows:

WEST END CIVIC CLUB WILL HEAR CANDIDATES TALK

Aldermanic candidates from the seventh ward will be given an opportunity to address the voters of the seventh ward at the meeting of the West End Civic club at the Lee street school buliding Thursday night at 7:45, and other candidates who will be voted on by the citizens of that ward will be introduced so the voters will have a chance to look them over, announced R. S. Lowrence, president of the club, Tuesday, who will preside at the meeting.

The announcement says that the primary object of the meeting is to have the candidates from the seventh ward appear and make speeches, but that if time allows the other candidates will be introduced to the voters.

MENACING WAR CLOUDS APPEARING IN EUROPE

latter have begun to counterattack. But apparently the Turks gained successes at the outset. A communique issued in Athens admits that "owing to a strong attack by the enemy the Greeks were forced to evacuate Afium Karahissar, an important key position. The battle is continuing.

The Greeks are massing troops before the outer defenses of Constantinople, which injects another element into the situation. The recent Greek threat against the city brought from the allies prompt and vigorous notice that such a move would be met with decisive action.

The situation in the Balkans and the near east has alarmed London. The Evening News reflects a widely prevalent opinion when it says, "Europe is confronted with the peril of a great new war, of which the near east would be the cockpit."

RACE IS CLOSE IN CALIFORNIA.

San Francisco, August 29.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson had 7,301 votes early tonight to Charles C. More's 6,705 in the republican senatorial nomination race on the face of incomplete returns from 462 precincts scattered, although the bulk of the vote was from Los Angeles. There are 6,695 precincts in the state.

State Treasurer Friend W. Richardson took the pole at the outset in the race for republican nomination for governor, the same precincts giving him 7,471 to Governor Stephens, 7,001.

Congressman H. S. Osborne and Walter Lineberger had comfortable leads over their opponents in the two Los Angeles congressional districts.

A tabulation of estimates and records from leading cities of the state, showed early tonight that approximately 60 per cent of the state's registered vote had been cast.

Some of the estimates were that 80 per cent of the voters in a given area had gone to the polls, others showed as few as half the registered vote cast.

Los Angeles, Cal., August 29.—Seventy incomplete precincts in Los Angeles and vicinity gave for senator:

Republican, Moore, 4,906; Johnson, 2,080.

Eighty incomplete precincts gave for governor:

RANKIN LEADS IN MONTANA.

Helena, Mont., August 29.—Early returns, almost entirely from city precincts, give Attorney-General Wellington Rankin a slight lead for the republican nomination for United States senator over Representative Carl Riddick.

DELAWARE DEMOCRATS NOMINATE BAYARD.

Dover, Del., August 20.—Thomas F. Bayard, of Wilmington, won the democratic nomination for United States senator today in the democratic state convention, receiving 115 votes to 94 for Judge W. H. Boyce.

Mr. Bayard is a son of the late Thomas F. Bayard, secretary of state in President Cleveland's administration.

Though the United States produced nearly 5,000,000 tons of salt last year the amount was 27 per cent less than the previous year.

To the Voters of DeKalb County

Decatur, Ga., August 29, 1922.—Mr. Robert W. Parris, Chairman, Decatur, Ga. Dear Sir: I beg to refer to your letter of this date addressed to me as County Commissioner of DeKalb County, which letter is as follows:

"Decatur, Ga., August 29, 1922.—L. T. Y. Nash, Esq., County Commissioner, DeKalb County, Georgia. Dear Sir: We have been informed that your office has refused to allow the Auditor, Mr. Stevens, to see all the books and vouchers that he claims is necessary to make the investigation requested of him. I trust this is an error; but will ask that you state if this is true, and what is the reason if this investigation is not allowed to be made.

"In your letter circulated under date of August 22, 1922, you state that the County owes less than $80,000.00. Mr. Freeman states that if the County owes less than $180,000.00 he will withdraw from the race and support you. If, after the proper reports are verified and published, this is a fact, I will ask Mr. Freeman to withdraw and we will all vote for you. We state further that this does not mean the $750,000.00 Bond indebtedness.

"The Investigating Committee has asked me to determine your stand in this matter and ask for a reply direct from you. Yours very truly,

"ROBT. W. PARRIS, Chairman."

Also, I wish to refer to my letter in reply to your letter, which also bears this date, and is as follows:

"Decatur, Ga., August 29, 1922.—Mr. Robert W. Parris. Dear Sir: Yours of the 29th, 1922, at hand. Relative to your request, will say that the books have been turned over to your committee, as we thought you requested. You demanded that we allow your committee verify the Audit made by Womack, which has been done. As there has been no audit made later than June 30, there is nothing to verify. Yours, Etc.,

"L. T. Y. NASH.

"P. S.—As this committee is a political committee, I think that the Grand Jury or Judge of Superior Court should be the proper one to order a re-audit of the books. Therefore, I decline to have this committee appoint a re-audit of the Commissioner's books.

I recognize the right of any citizen to inspect any public record at any reasonable time and in a reasonable manner when such inspection will not interfere with the operation of the duties of those conducting the office, but I do not recognize the right of a committee for political purposes to go to any public office and demand to make an audit. The law requires that the Commissioner of Roads and Revenues shall have his books and accounts audited twice a year, and shall "cause the same to be published in the newspaper carrying the Sheriff's advertisements." The law also requires the Commissioner to lay before the Grand Jury at the regular Spring and Fall terms of the Superior Court said audit or report, and all minutes, records, books, etc., of said commissioner shall be open to and regularly inspected, examined and approved or disapproved by the grand juries at such terms of court. I have complied with this law, and the books in my office are always open to the Grand Jury. See Acts of 1906, pages 408 and 409.

In your letter of August 29 above referred to, you used the following language:

"In your letter circulated under date of August 22, 1922, you state that the County owes less than $80,000.00. Mr. Freeman states that if the County owes less than $180,000.00 he will withdraw from the race and support you. If, after the proper reports are verified and published, this is a fact, I will ask Mr. Freeman to withdraw and we will all vote for you. We state further that this does not mean the $750,000.00 Bond indebtedness."

It will be seen that you quote me as saying that the County owes less than $80,000.00. Anyone with ordinary intelligence can read my letter below quoted and see that no such statement is made. On the contrary, what I said was that "when I took the office, our County was in debt nearly $310,000.00, and that this debt has been cut down by my administration to less than $80,000.00." My letter speaks for itself—the language is plain. What was referred to was "this debt," which clearly refers to the $310,000.00 indebtedness of the County left by Mr. Freeman when I took charge of the office. This is a burden that Mr. Freeman left on the County, which I, as his successor, had to shoulder, and which I have reduced, as stated in my letter, to less than $80,000.00.

In my letter of August 22, quoted in full below, there is a comparative statement at the bottom taken from the audit of Womack, Harper & Bansley, of December 31, 1921. In your letter of August 29, above quoted, you, in substance, make me say that the County of DeKalb does not at this date owe more than $80,000.00. This clearly is a misinterpretation of my letter, as any fair-minded, intelligent person can see.

My letter of August 22, which you refer to and misinterpret, is as follows:

"Stone Mountain, Ga., August 22, 1922.

"L. T. Y. Nash,
County Commissioner, DeKalb County, Ga.

"To the Voters of DeKalb County—My Fellow Citizens: I am a candidate to succeed myself as Commissioner of our County, and write to solicit your support, and your vote in the coming election.

"I do not need to mention the peculiar difficulties of the past four years. We all know them from personal experience. And, as your Commissioner, I have had to meet them at every turn. If, despite these difficulties, I can submit a good record for my first term, I believe that fact will be very strongly in my favor, and that you will show your approval by electing me for another term.

"A public servant is to be judged more by what he does than by what he says. Promises are easy, but it is performance that counts; and facts are stubborn things.

"In an office like mine, financial facts are of first importance; and hence I invite your careful attention to my financial record. That you may have an accurate and official statement of the general financial results of my four years' work, I submit a summary from the audit of Womack, Harper & Bansley, Certified Public Accountants, which shows that, when I took office, our County was in debt nearly $310,000.00, and that this debt has been cut down by my administration to less than $80,000.00. If you think—as I do—that that speaks well for my integrity and efficiency, I hope you will say so by voting for me in the coming election, September 13. And I shall try to give you even better service during my second term. Sincerely yours, L. T. Y. NASH."

(Signed) WOMACK, HARPER & BANSLEY.

In my letter of this date in reply to your demand for your political committee to make audit of the County's books, I declined to allow you to do this. I wish, however, to say that you or any other person has a right to inspect the public books, as I stated to you and your committee when you called on me. I am willing to go further than that: If your committee will select any reputable, certified public accountant, I will select a certified public accountant, and the two in conjunction may audit the books of the County in my office, from June 30, 1922; provided you will do this at once so that an audit can be made and published before the date of election—I fix June 30 as a point of beginning, because you had heretofore requested that your auditor be allowed to verify the audits of the County's books heretofore made by me; this, you have already done.

If you decline to co-operate with me in having this audit made, I shall have it made and published, regardless.

Please let me have your immediate answer, so that work may begin at once. Very truly yours,

L. T. Y. NASH.

AMERICAN AMATEUR GOLFERS WIN WALKER TROPHY

Roger Wethered Beaten By Bobby Jones 3 and 2; Guilford Trims Tolley

Americans Win By Comparatively Larger Scores, Ouimet Defeating Aylmer by 8 and 7; Evans Defeats Caven 5—4.

Southampton, N. Y., August 29.—America's leading amateur golfers, by winning five of eight singles over the national course in Shinnecock Hills from England's foremost simon-pures today carried off the George H. Walker cup, in competition for the first time as the international amateur team trophy.

The five victories of the Americans today added to their three in the four Scotch foursome yesterday gave them a total of eight matches to the English players' four. The Englishmen entered today's competition needing six of the eight matches for victory and they made a brilliant effort. The steadiness and accuracy of the Americans, however, offset the brilliant game of the invaders. The Englishmen were best with wood but their approach shots were wild and their putting was erratic.

Jesse Guilford, of the American team, won from Cyril Tolley, of England, 2 and 1. Tolley's driving was marvelous and his putting terrible. He missed six foot putts on no fewer than ten holes. He had a medal of 79 in the morning round against Guilford's 82 and Guilford went into the afternoon round two down. The American squared the match at the third hole and was 2 up at the turn. Tolley took a 39 going out.

Tolley cut the lead to 1 up at the 33d hole. On the 34th Guilford, for the first time, had the best drive and his approach dropped eight feet from the pin. Tolley's second shot, from the rough, fell 40 feet from the pin, his third stopped four feet away from the cup. Guilford missed his first putt for a birdie three, then Tolley missed his four foot putt and conceded the hole and the match.

Bobby's Fine Work.

Robert T. Jones, by accurate driving and fair putting defeated Roger Wethered 3 and 2. Wethered started out with long drives and had Jones two down at the first turn, Wethered had holed 20 foot putts in taking the two holes.

Jones squared the match at the 12th and was one up at the end of the morning round. In the afternoon Wethered evened the score at the 27th, going out in 35, two under par. Jones had a par medal for a birdie three to win the 13th and clinched the match at the 33d when Wethered sliced into the rough and twice took a five to get on the green. He then conceded the match.

In the 37 hole match won by C. V. Hooman, of England, from Jesse Sweetser. Sweetser was two down at the end of the first eighteen and then he steadied, to make a number of freak shots that gave him a medal of 34 going out in the afternoon. Hooman then was two down. He evened the match at the 34th. They halved the 35th and 36th and Hooman took the 37th with a par four. Sweetser went into a hedge on his second shot and his third carried into the automobile park. He conceded the match after his fourth shot, then holed in seven.

Steadiness Wins.

The steadiness of the three former American champions, Charles "Chick" Evans, Francis Ouimet and Robert A. Gardner, carried them through to easy victories.

Evans defeated John Caven, five and four; Ouimet won from O. C. Aylmer, 8 and 7, and Gardner defeated W. P. Torrance, 7 and 5.

W. Willis Mackenzie, of England, had little difficulty defeating Max R. Marston, six and five. The Englishman's golf was superior to Marston's at all times.

Bernard Darwin, an English substitute, by excellent work with his irons and uncanny putting defeated the American captain, W. C. Fownes, 3 and 2. Fownes was erratic. He had announced yesterday that he would retire from the play in order to give another member of the team, Harrison Johnson, a chance to play but the Englishmen requested that all those players who participated in the foursome yesterday should play in the singles.

Augusta Wins 2-1.

Augusta, Ga., August 29.—A scratch hit by Pitcher O'Neil, two sacrifices and an error permitted Augusta to score one run in the ninth inning, breaking the tie that had lasted for six innings and win the second game of the series here from Greenville, 2 to 1. The game was a pitchers' battle between O'Neil and Swartz. Hanson, for the Spinners, hit safely four times out of four trips to bat.

Pels' Rally Wins.

Mobile, Ala., August 29.—After Denny Williams, home run had put Mobile in front 4 to 3, New Orleans rallied in the ninth and won by scoring two runs off Eller and Pope, the visitors winning 5 to 4. Matteson and Bailey pitched steady ball for New Orleans while Henry was hit hard. Knaupp's work at bat and in the field featured, the Pel second baseman driving in the two New Orleans runs in the ninth.

Crackers Lose to Barons; Twin Bill And Trophy Presentation for Today

First Game Will Be Called at 1:30 O'Clock in Order for Barons to Catch Early Train.

Joe Dunn's hard-hitting Barons locked up the five game series with the Crackers Tuesday afternoon in making it three straight from Atlanta, 6 to 3, the Crackers taking possession of the cellar.

Both Napier and Stoner were hit freely, five of the 11 hits off Stoner going for extra bases while the Barons got two triples, three doubles and eight singles off Napier. The Barons played a wonderful game behind the former Detroit pitcher, taking advantage of the breaks and a bad play by Klugman, who in holding Silva's grounder allowed two Barons to score.

President John D. Martin, of the Southern league, who was to have presented the attendance trophy for 1922 to the Atlanta Baseball club, did not arrive in time for the ceremonies, but between today's double-header he will hand out the silver.

Oscar Tuero, one of the hardest pitchers in the league for the Barons to beat, will hurl the first game, drawing Red Bates as his mound opponent. Hymel or Mitchell will twirl the second and either Phil Morrison or Earl Whitehill will be on the mound for the visitors.

The bargain attraction will mark the last appearance of Dunn's smooth working team at Ponce de Leon this year.

The first game will be called at 1:30 o'clock in order to give the Barons time to catch a 6 o'clock train for Mobile.

Crackers Score.

A double play killed the Barons' chances of a score in the first, the Crackers getting away to a one-run lead. Guyon walked and Stoner picked him off first, the play being Stoner to Neun to Stewart. With two gone Mayer singled to left and Klugman walked. Reed scored Mayer with a sharp single to center.

Birmingham tied the score in the second, Taylor leading off with a triple to left center and scoring on Neun's out to Wano. Stoner retired the Crackers in order in the second, the Barons coming back in the third and taking the lead when Stoner doubled to right and scored on Clarke's single to right. Guyon singled and stole second, Stoner bracing and forcing Wano and Mayer to fly to Silva, Klugman grounding out, Achinger to Neun.

The Crackers knotted the score in the fourth, Smith tripling to right and scoring on Moore's double to left. The Barons took a two-run lead in the sixth when Klugman forgot what to do with a grounder with two gone and pried the frame open with his second hit of the day. Stewart was out for failing to make a bunt good on the third strike. Harper singled to left. Taylor hoisted to Mayer. Neun knocked Reed down with his single, filling the bases, Silva hit a grounder to Klugman and he held the ball long enough for Silva to gain life at first, Clarke and Harper scoring.

Silva Robs Locals.

Doc Silva robbed the Crackers of a run in the fifth when with two down Mayer singled and tried to score on Klugman's single to center, Silva's pe getting him by at least a yard. In the sixth Atlanta put over her las. tally, Reed leading off with a triple to right and scoring on Smith's pinch blow to center. Stoner tightened up and from the sixth allowed only one Cracker to get on base, Hock doubling in the eighth.

Stewart tripled to left center in the eighth and scored on Harper's double which hopped over Klugman's head as he started in on the ball. Harper went to third when Wano in attempting to get him at second woke the Crackers up in their dugout. Taylor sent Harper across the plate in running Guyon up against the sign board in left for his marathon fly. With one down in the ninth, Lil Stoner doubled to left and took third on Clarke's third single. Stewart hit to Klugman and was out at first, Stoner attempting to score when he saw Clarke was behind him at third, Mayer throwing him out at the plate.

Double-Header Split.

Pittsburg, Pa., August 29.—Superb pitching featured the double-header which Pittsburg and Brooklyn divided here today. The Dodgers won the first 3 to 2, and the Pirates took the second 6 and 0.

TESTAMENTS FOR WHITE SOX STARS

Philadelphia, August 29.—Hip pockets of the major league baseball players' uniforms are being put to new usage. Many of them now carry a pocket edition of the New Testament. W. H. Strouck, a representative of the business men's council of the Pocket Testament league, appeared at Shibe park yesterday afternoon and presented each member of the Chicago White Sox with a testament. Each in turn signed a pledge to read a passage of Scripture every day. An added condition is that the player must carry the Testament with him always, on and off the field.

According to Mr. Strouck, the Cleveland, Pittsburg, Detroit and both Philadelphia teams have already been presented with Testaments under similar conditions.

A well-known veteran baseball player and soprtsman, he told them, contributed the amount necessary to distribute 500 leather bound Testaments among baseball players.

Yanks Hold Margin.

New York, August 29.—The New York infield gave Sam Jones remarkable support today and the American league champs defeated Washington in the first contest of a three game series 3 to 1. The Yanks hit Johnson freely, especially in the early innings, but needed home runs by Pipp and Ruth to score two of their three runs. It was Ruth's 27th homer of the season. Peckinpaugh collided with Jones at first base in the fourth and had to leave the game.

Issue Back of Struggle Is Vitally Important To Sport-Loving Fans

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON.

There is a merry war being waged in the United States over the control of athletics. The general public knows little or nothing about this conflict, and perhaps care less, considering it merely a row between two rival organizations.

Yet behind this struggle for control or jurisdiction over athletic sports is an issue which is vital to the public welfare, and as widely separated as black and white.

On the surface it seems merely a contest between the Amateur Athletic union on the one side and the National Amateur federation on the other. If it were only two rival bodies seeking control of certain athletic sports the people would not be concerned. But the organizations stand for entirely different ideas. The A. A. U., an old established organization, has had control of athletic contests in the United States ever since athletics became an important part in our national life. It never has concerned itself with the development of athletes, with the physical upbuilding of the nation, nor with fostering or encouraging athletics. Its mission has been to handle, direct and arrange contests between the highly developed specialists.

Now comes the National federation, holding identically the same standards of amateurism, but basing its right to existence on a plan to develop the physical welfare of the people of the United States. Its plan is to encourage and foster mass athletics. Its slogan is "Play for every one." Its plan is to organize the entire United States and to carry athletic training to the crossroads, the small towns and to every community in the country. Their theory is that the champions will develop themselves through such organization. They are not concerned in making champions or in arranging contests, in which the highly developed specialists shall meet. They want every man, woman, boy and girl in America given an opportunity for athletic training. In the National federation are the army and navy of the United States, the National Collegiate association with 320 colleges, the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., the Jewish Welfare and other bodies, the Playground association, the Gymnastic association, the golfers, the tennis players, the Boy and Girl Scouts, the Rifle Shooters' association and many others.

HAS WIDE CONTROL.

The National federation, through its constituent bodies, owns and controls nineteen-twentieths of all the swimming pools, more than that proportion of gymnasiums, more than nine-tenths of the athletic fields. Yet, under the peculiar situation, the A. A. U., which actually controls nothing save perhaps the gymnasiums and pools of perhaps nine of the big athletic clubs located in cities, claims entire power over all track and field meets, swimming meets, boxing, wrestling and gymnastic contests.

It has succeeded in incorporating in the Olympic games rules a rule which compels any American entrant to any Olympic event to have two guarantors—one of whom must be the A. A. U.

In other words, the A. A. U., if it sees fit, can bar any American from competing in the French Olympic unless he or she submits to the A. A. U. government.

Having put this over on the European Olympic directors, the A. A. U. representatives now are in position to tell the army and navy, the colleges, the gymnasts, the fencers and all others that unless they submit to A. A. U. dictation they cannot enter the Olympic events.

When the National federation officials protested they were told that the A. A. U., through the American Olympic committee (which is controlled by the A. A. U.) "would enlist enough mayors, prominent politicians and big men all over the country to drive the federation out of the game." In other words, the wise politicians of the A. A. U. knew that the average prominent citizen, ignorant of the inside of the situation, would lend his name readily to any "Olympic committee" promotion. Then his name could be used to strengthen the A. A. U. stand. The same thing has been worked on the president of the United States, whose name is being used.

The general public would not be concerned at all were it not for the fact that the success of the program for mass athletics and for universal athletic training of Americans is endangered.

NO CAUSE FOR RIVALRY.

The pity of it is that there really is no cause, save the ambition of a few to control everything, for any rivalry between the federation and the A. A. U. The A. A. U. has a definite and well-defined field of activity. It is the logical force to control big athletic meets.

There is no real reason that it should not join the Amateur federation and become one of the leading forces in that organization—taking charge of the highly developed athletes as rapidly as they are developed by the universal training plan of the others.

Just what sports it should control is a difficult problem. It seems hardly fair to the 320 colleges and universities to force them to yield control of track and field athletics, yet a working arrangement could be made that would solve that difficulty. It is unfair, of course, to the gymnasts, who control all the Turner societies and other such organizations, to say they must submit to the A. A. U. and that they cannot hold meets without registering each athlete with the A. A. U. and getting its sanction.

The thing in which the public is interested, however, is to see that no selfish force blocks the movement for sports for every one.

WGM TO FEATURE ORCHESTRA MUSIC

Warner's Aces, Georgians and Royal Club Outfit to Entertain Listeners Tonight.

After making one of their biggest hits with radio listeners last evening, Warner's Seven Aces, The Atlanta Constitution orchestra, at 6 o'clock tonight will follow up its success with another notable program of six numbers in which requests and the latest dance numbers are featured.

Last night station WGM received reports that the Aces had come in on receivers in and around Atlanta better than ever before and that their music was some of the most delightful heard recently by radio. Tonight they have a program that should bring in more reports even than were received last evening.

B. H. Warner, director of the Aces, is preparing big programs for The Constitution and has succeeded in firmly implanting his orchestra in the homes of radio listeners in a score of states in which station WGM is received.

The six numbers by the Aces tonight will be used with the regular Constitution features and an oration, entitled "The Aspirations of the American People," written by R. M. T. Hunter and delivered by H. E. McWilliams, a pupil of the Atlanta School of Oratory and Expression.

For the 9 o'clock broadcasting period tonight The Constitution has arranged a concert by the Georgians, a new dance orchestra here, which is making a name for itself.

The Georgians include Mrs. Louise Hussung, pianist; Colie J. Warren, violinist; A. T. Smith, Jr., saxophone and clarinet; Elmer Gibson, saxophone; Leon Nixon, banjo, and Ernest Ray, drums, traps and bells.

The latter part of the 9 o'clock period will be furnished by the Royal Club orchestra, playing at Roseland, Atlanta dance hall, for a dance. The Royal Club orchestra has been heard a number of times from station WGM and is known as a good dance organization.

LESSON NO. 134

The Life of a Vacuum Tube

When the filament of a vacuum tube is heated to a high temperature the metal volatilizes, that is ,turns into a vapor at a rate which is dependent upon the temperature to which the filament is heated, the higher the temperature the faster the filament volatilizes. If the filament is of the metal type the cross section area is continually reduced by the volatilization process with a resulting increase in resistance. In the case of the coated filament the resistance remains practically constant throughout the life of the tube since the heating current is carried principally by the core of the filament, the oxide coating only, evaporating.

If the metal filament is operated at constant voltage throughout its life, as the cross section diminishes there will be an increase in resistance and a consequent decrease in current. A decrease in current means a decrease in the electron emission, which is an undesirable feature. If the filament is operated at constant current rather than constant voltage the life of the filament will be materially shortened.

The life of a filament of the metal type is also affected by the diameter of the wire of which it is made. The larger sizes of wire, having a much longer life than the smaller wire filaments, may be operated at a high temperature and still last as long as the smaller filament. The life of a filament is greatly shortened by operating at a temperature in excess of the normal temperature.

Since it is not convenient to directly measure the temperature of the filament under actual operating conditions it is customary to rate the tube at a certain filament current which, of course, will gradually decrease as the filament decreases in size with length of service. In the case of the coated filament, "bright spots," or portions of the filament which are at a higher temperature than the rest, may be observed when the filament is nearing the end of its useful life.

The normal life of the standard tube filament in use today should be about 2,000 hours or more with reasonably careful usage. A life of ten times this length is sometimes obtained with tubes used in laboratories in experimental work.

In some types of tubes, especially those of low vacuum, and to a lesser extent in those of high vacuum, there is a certain amount of ionization due to collision resulting in the formation of positive ions which bombard the filament and cause local excessive temperatures. This condition is not so apparent in three electrode tubes as in tubes of the two electrode type and is not so important a factor as the filament current itself which is dependent solely upon the adjustment made by the operator.

A filament of the coated type should never be heated a dull red or reddish yellow and should never approach brilliancy. The metallic filament on the other hand operates most satisfactorily when at a temperature which causes it to become incandescent.

The use of two great a filament current and therefore too high a temperature will result eventually in a black deposit volatilization of the filament and the formation of the deposit. This condition is often the cause of the break down of the insulation inside of power tubes and is due principally to overloading of the tube. It is possible to get as much as 70 watts output from a tube rated at 5 watts but the life of the tube will be only a few minutes. In this case the tube is overloaded several hundred per cent.

ACES AND VOICE NUMBERS OFFERED

Two Numbers Introduced by Radio by Warner's. Hornady Sings at 9 O'Clock.

Two unusually good programs were given radio listeners last evening from Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, when Warner's Seven Aces, The Atlanta Constitution orchestra, were offered between 6 and 7 o'clock and Jack R. Hornady, tenor, and his teacher, Signor E. Volpi, were presented between 9 and 10 o'clock.

With the Ace's program at 6 o'clock were late news flashes from the United News, Constitution features and markets.

The Aces' program last night was one of their biggest successes since they have been playing from Station WGM. Not one of the Aces was at anything but his bst. And as their music went out into the air it seemed to blend better than it ever has before. Station WGM was swamped with telephone calls at the conclusion of the concert reporting that listeners in all parts of Atlanta and this vicinity had received the concert with unusual clarity.

It was a program well worth hearing, too. Two numbers which the Aces played last evening had their radio introduction in the south in the Aces' presentation of them. One was "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean," from Ziegfeld "Follies," with Joe Hudson as "Mr. Gallagher," and Mr. Pittman as "Mr. Shean." The number was the big hit of the evening.

The other number that had its southern radio introduction last evening was "March of the Wooden Soldiers," from "Chauve Souris."

Six numbers were sung on the 9 o'clock program by Mr. Hornady with piano accompaniment by his instructor, Signor Volpi. Mr. Hornady has been heard frequently from Station WGM, but probably will not be heard again soon on The Constitution radio service as he leaves September 1 for Dallas, Texas. In the departure of Mr. Hornady from Atlanta radio listeners lose a singer that has delighted them in every one of his concerts.

Mr. Hornady's feature numbers last evening were the "Sob Song," from "Pagliacci;" "Lullabye," from Jocelyn," "The Stars Were Brightly Shinin," from "Tosca," and "Mighty Lak a Rose," the words of which were written by Frank L. Stanton, Georgia poet and member of the staff of The Atlanta Constitution.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Radio Editor—Will you please tell me how many turns around a four-inch tube it requires to make it a 1,500 meter coil with the average aerial of, say about, 85 feet? —E. M.

If you wind 250 turns on your coil you will be able to get waves of 1,500 meters, and also have a safe margin left over.

Radio Editor—I have a three-stage amplifier for which I have been getting good results. I have been using an eight-battery on the filament, allowing, however, only six volts to enter the tubes. This I govern by the rheostats. In a short time the battery runs down (about one to two weeks) and has to be recharged. I would like to buy a rectifier and would like you to suggest a good one to charge this eight-volt battery. Will a ... do, and if so, what will be the approximate rate of charging?—W. F. W.

The charger that you mention is very good, and also inexpensive. It will charge your battery at the rate of about five amperes.

Radio Editor—I have been told that standard rheostats cannot be used with the aeriotron 16-volt tube. Is this true? If it is, what kind of rheostats must be used?—A. F. G.

Standard rheostats may be used with the aeriotron tube.

LISTENING IN

The approaching autumn will bring with it several radio shows. Newark's annual show is to be held at the Robert Treat hotel on October 4, 5, 6 and 7. The director is arranging a series of motion pictures to demonstrate the action of radio waves and vacuum tubes. Chicago is preparing for a big exhibition in the Coliseum from October 14 to 21, inclusive.

A mysterious spot in the atmosphere which cannot be penetrated by the wireless waves has been discovered in southern California. Amateurs have been preplexed about it for some time and they have come to the conclusion that there is some barrier to the waves that they cannot understand. An aviator undertook to fly through a few weeks ago and his machine became so unmanageable that it fell to the ground. He said that "the air just gave out."

Radio conact has been established between Plattsburg and corps headquarters for the first time. A transmitter, set up on a motor truck, was sent to the army post several weeks ago. At first much difficulty was encountered in keeping in touch with the new member of the second corps radio net because, it is believed, of the peculiarities of the terrain, but now official traffic is being handled regularly.

Rotarians Raise $5,000 to Help Educate Boys

As their first act in a big program of work to be undertaken this fall, Atlanta Rotarians, within a period of three minutes, Tuesday raised a fund of $5,000 to be used in assisting approximately 25 boys through school.

The money was raised by subscription following strong appeals by Kendal Weisiger and Rabbi Marx, who explained the purpose of the proposed fund. Deserving boys who are unable to complete their schooling will be benefited by the fund, which is to be known as the "Rotary Scholarship fund." Beneficiaries of the fund will be required to repay the loans in quarterly instalments after graduation.

As the money is returned to the treasurer it will be available to other borrowers, according to the plan.

Plans for the inter-city Rotary meet to be held in Atlanta in September were discussed by W. E. Harrington, general chairman for the gathering, and Lou Hicks, chairman of the entertainment committee. It was announced that, including approximately 150 Atlanta Rotarians, the convention will be attended by between 450 and 500 Rotarians.

Eighteen out-of-town Rotarians, many from distant cities, attended the luncheon Tuesday.

J. K. ORR TELLS KIWANIANS ABOUT GROWTH OF CITY

J. K. Orr addressed the Kiwanis club at a luncheon Tuesday at the chamber of commerce dining hall on some interesting things he has been able to observe by being 50 years a Georgian and more than 25 years an Atlantan.

Mr. Orr told the club that it had at last obtained a speaker who wanted nothing and had no favors—or votes—to ask for. He told of a recent trip to the mountains of North Carolina, where, he said, the purest strain of so-called Americans live, having been there for upward of three centuries and secluded from infiltration of immigration.

Mr. Orr told of the three outstanding projects he has been connected with that have figured prominently in the life of Atlanta. The building of the Masonic temple, the expansion of the facilities of Agnes Scott college, and the building of the Y. M. C. A.

Visitors at the meeting were, Miss Flora Belle Reynolds, Tom Bass, of LaGrange; Miss Florrie Sullivan, who gave a reading. Music was furnished by the Conn Mandolin club. A feature of the meeting was the presenting of a birthday present to Lee Hagan. The present, a tiny, pink clad celluloid doll, was given to the home for the friendless along with the 25-pound ham which was given by "Bob" Hill. J. Sheppard Kennedy, president of the club presided.

OFFER TO OPEN BOOKS TO AUDIT IS MADE BY NASH

Decatur, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—L. T. Y. Nash, candidate for re-election as county commissioner, in a letter Tuesday to Robert W. Parris, chairman of the investigating committee, offers to allow Mr. Parris' committee to name any reputable certified public accountant to audit, with one to be named by himself, the books in his office.

This came in connection with a letter from Parris in which the investigating committee chairman claimed that Nash had told the DeKalb voters that the county owes less than $80,000 since he has taken over the office.

Commissioner Nash, in his letter Tuesday, said he referred only to the debt of $310,000 left by his predecessor when he made the statement that this debt had been cut to less than $80,000.

Rotate Councilmen On Recorder's Seat While Judge Is Off

J. O. Wood, candidate for the state legislature, will act as judge of the municipal court today in the absence of Judge George E. Johnson, who is on his vacation.

Councilman P. L. Moon, of the second ward, acted in the capacity of "his honor" Tuesday morning. Councilman J. H. Olson, of the eleventh ward, relieved him during the afternoon session.

A. W. Callaway, court clerk, said he was trying to arrange the court schedule so that all the councilmen will have an opportunity to sit on the bench in Judge Johnson's absence.

EIGHTH WARD FORMS TO HELP KEY'S RACE

A "Key for Congress" committee of four consisting of Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, chairman, and Mrs. Norman Sharp, who is vice president of the Atlanta Woman's club; Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie, who is president of the Writers' club, and Mrs. Julie E. Cone, who is prominent in civic work was named at a meeting held Tuesday in the eighth ward.

Mrs. Price-Smith, as chairman of the committee, issued the following statement Tuesday afternoon:

"The 'Key for Congress' committee has very wisely chosen the slogan of the best man for the place! Everyone will admit the fairness of such a proposition and every candidate should be willing to submit his qualifications for the office he seeks. It is because we feel Mr. Key to be the best man for the place that the members of the committee of the eighth ward have volunteered their services in his behalf.

"Mr. Key's achievements as mayor of our city are known to all of us. We believe that he can represent the fifth district of Geargia in congress fittingly, with dignity and in a manner productive of results. We predict, moreover, an overwhelming victory for him in the eighth ward."

JAILED FOR STEALING 30 SUITS OF CLOTHES

Admitting he stole 30 second-hand suits of clothes in the past few weeks, A. E. Brown, age 19, was bound over to the grand jury following a hearing before Acting Municipal Judge J. H. Olson Tuesday.

W. J. Mitchell, proprietor of a second-hand store on Pryor street, was arrested with Brown charged with receiving stolen goods. He was dismissed when Brown testified that he told the merchant the suits were purchased from recently enlisted men at Fort McPherson.

Woman Is Killed On Way to Church By Railway Train

The body of Mrs. A. J. Hammondtree, of Pickens county, who died late Monday night of injuries sustained when a train struck the automobile in which she was riding with her husband and three children Sunday at Jasper, was sent Tuesday morning at 7:30 to Jasper for burial by Harry G. Poole.

After the accident Mr. Hammondtree and the children were allowed to go home, but the injuries of Mrs. Hammondtree were of such serious nature that she was later brought to a local hospital where she died.

The accident occurred while the family was on its way to church Sunday morning, a sharp curve in the road preventing the approach of the train being seen. The father and children are reported as improving Tuesday.

FIRST 1922 BALE FOR COBB COUNTY BRINGS 52 CENTS

Marietta, Ga., August 29.—(Special.)—Marietta cotton buyers paid 52 cents a pound for the first bale of cotton from the 1922 crop in Cobb county, which came to the market today.

This first bale was grown by William Latimer, at Oakhurst, just north of Marietta on the Canton road. It was ginned at McCleskey's gin and was hurried to town. After spirited bidding it went to Dunn, Dickerson & Company at 52 cents. The bale weighed 458 pounds.

Last year the first bale came in four days later and was grown by Lewis Oliver, a negro living on the same farm from which the first bale comes this year. Last year the first bale sold for 20 and 7-16 cents. In 1920 the first bale came in September 16 and sold for 50 cents a pound.

A cuspidor has been patented with removable paper linings that can be thrown away or burned, saving the labor of washing the device.

WHEAT DECLINES AFTER CABLES

Chicago, August 29.—Wheat showed an easy undertone today in sympathy with lower quotations at Liverpool and on local and commission house pressure and closed 1 3-8 to 1 3-4 cents lower with September $1.02 and December $1.02 3-4 to $1.02 7-8. Corn was down 1 1-8 to 1 3-8, oats were unchanged to 1-4 cent off and provisions generally lower.

Liverpool cables were lower throughout the session there and this helped to unsettle the market here. The demand for wheat for export was fair. Country offerings of spring wheat were liberal. Early buying led many of the pit traders to take the buying side but they found support light when they tried to take profits.

Scattered liquidation was on in corn, and at no time was December as high as yesterday's finish. Receipts were large, arrivals being estimated at 300 cars.

There was an indifferent demand for oats and the market was firm with a moderate trade and held close to yesterday's finish. Liquidation in September and December caused a sharp decline in provisions.

SLEPT IN CHURCH; JAILED AS DRUNK

Awakened after an hour's nap during a Monday evening church service, Howard McFarland, colored, stumbled into the street and started home.

A passerby saw him, told an officer he was drunk. The man was arrested.

He told his story to the judge in the police court Tuesday, and was dismissed.

PRICES GO UP AS EASY FEELING COMES TO MARKET

Substantial Recoveries Made in Many Stocks With Return of Faith

BY R. L. BARNUM,
Constitution's Financial Correspondent.

New York, August 29.—Today's price movement on the stock exchange was upward, the uneasiness accumulating over Sunday because of the labor and fuel situation which was responsible for yesterday's declines disappearing. Substantial recoveries occurred in the rails, in industrials, public utilities and railway equipment shares.

It is being realized here more and more that the equipment of the railroads is in bad shape. This means business for the equipment companies.

American Telephone, after declining from 120 to 118 last Thursday on the announcement of the new $115,000,000 stock issue, made a new high for the year today, 7 points above the low for last week. With this recovery the feeling is that the company will make a successful offering to its shareholders of the new stock.

Much interest was displayed in Wall street to the dispatches from the west announcing that the trainmen's strikekon the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern had been called off at 3 o'clock this afternoon the promise being given the men to remove the troops further away from the shops. This strike has for there weeks been tying up this important Chicago district belt line.

Reports by wire from the hearing of the maintenance of way men before the railroad labor board at Chicago for higher wages were closely followed. The men lost in their first skirmish when the board refused to consider only the living wage arguments of the labor leaders. This, however, was to have been expected as the transportation act which created the railroad labor board states plainly that in considering proposed wage increases the wages paid by other industries for the same kind of work must be taken into consideration.

Too Bad for Henry.

It's too bad the way Henry Ford loses money. Today's balance sheet of the Ford Motor Co. as of February 28, 1922, compared with April 30, 1921, shows cash and debts receivable of $148,615,000 against $86,995,000. There is only $17,264,000 stock outstanding; no bonds; notes and accounts payable $33,089,000 against $48,886,000 and a profit and loss surplus of $240,478,000 against $182,877,000.

Northern Pacific made a good recovery from yesterday's low on today's statement of July earnings showing gross of $7,986,000, an increase compared with last year of $109,000 with net at $1,672,000, a gain of $899,000. For the seven months the company shows gross of $49,008,000, an increase of no less than $5,453,000. For the first seven months of last year there was an operating deficit of $2,565,000.

Fuel Outlook Hopeful.

Steel people at Pittsburg and at Youngstown, Wall street heard today over private wires, are more encouraged over the fuel outlook. However, it also was learned that at Chicago both the steel corporation and the independents are in a bad way for coal.

Detroit bankers and business men were reported today as being to a man behind Ford in his efforts to try to stir up the administration at Washington to end the railroad strike, which now is making most of the trouble in the coal shortage. One Detroit banker was quoted here as saying that Ford probably had not overlooked the advertising value of his sensational statement of last Sunday but that whatever his motive was he had called the turn on the coal profiteer.

In this part of the country the passenger service is back to war-time basis and Robert S. Binkerd, assistant to the chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, predicts that it will get worse before there is any improvement because preference is going to be given to the movement of delayed freight.

Going only 20 miles out of New York last night on a crowded comminers' train, your correspondent sat in the train in the station an hour waiting for a locomotive to come in which was being used on another division. That is a common occurrence thees days.

Through trains coming into New York, especially from the south, are anywhere from one to 12 hours or more late daily. Over Labor day there is always an enormous movement of passengers in this part of the country, many summer hotels closing on that date. This year railway officials are predicting a grand mix-up.

President Erskine, of Studebaker, says his plants will not shut down because of lack of fuel; that they are in a position to run indefinitely at full capacity.

Market Regains Losses; Many Stocks Reach Highs

New York, August 29.—Favorable interpretation of current news developments imparted a bouyant tone to the stock market today, active issues recovering Monday's losses and advancing to higher ground on gains ranging from one to six points.

President Harding's assurance that no immediate seizure of coal mines and railroads was contemplated although authority for such action was desired in case of great emergency, combined with reports of increased car loadings and Chicago dispatches which indicated the railroad labor board's refusal to make the so-called "living wage" the sole basis for fixing the new scale of maintenance men, caused a more active demand for railroad shares which advanced from 1 to more than 3 points.

Public utilities displayed marked improvement.

Steel shares also participated extensively in the upward movement, U. S. Steel common making up its quarterly dividend of 1 1-4 per cent on very heavy dealings. Further confidence in the future of the steel industry was indicated by the advance in wages announced by the Colorado Fuel and Iron company. Independent steels as a group followed the course set by the premier issues. Speculative issues, like Mexican Petroleum, Baldwin and Studebaker, also gained, partly in response to short covering operations. The tobacco group exhibited marked strength and coppers rose on the high prices quoted for the metal.

Strength of American Tobacco which rose to a new high was attributed to the stabilization of retail prices which followed the abandonment of the trade discount policy by that company.

Total sales approximated 700,000 shares.

The money market advanced to its movements of the previous day, opening at 3 3-4 percent but advancing to four per cent in the latter part of the session.

Leading foreign exchanges showed further steadiness on the higher range for those remittances quoted by London. Sterling was steady despite heavy offerings of commercial bills. French francs were substantially above previous day's close and the German mark rallied sharply.

Coffee.

New York, August 29.—Coffee futures opened unchanged to 2 points higher and worked 3 to 5 points above yesterday's closing figures during the morning. Prices eased off slightly under realizing, the market closing at a net advance of 1 to 6 points. Sales, about 28,000 bags. September, 9.45c; October, 9.44c; December, 9.42c; January, 9.43c; March, May and July, 9.44c.

Spot coffee steady; Rio 7s, 10@10⅛c; Santos 4s, 14½@14¾c. Cost and freight offers steady. Santos 3 and 5s, 12.80c to 13.40c, and Rio 7s, 10 cents for prompt shipment.

The official cables reported no change in Rio exchange rates with an advance of 25 to 50 reis in the Santos market and of 225 to 325 reis in Rio. Brazilian port receipts, 43,000; Jundiahy receipts, 20,000.

Sugar.

New York, August 29.—Raw sugar was quiet today and in the absence of business prices were unchanged with Cubas quoted at 3 3-13@3⅜c, cost and freight, equal to 4.99c to 4.99c for centrifugal.

Raw sugar futures were more active and firmer. Prices at one time showed net gains of 9 to 11 points, but near the close reacted partially under realizing and were finally 6 to 9 points net higher. Closing: September, 3.40c; December, 3.56c; March, 3.39c; May, 3.48c. Refined futures, nominal.

Naval Stores.

Savannah, Ga., August 29.—Turpentine, firm, $1.15¼; sales, 401; receipts, 729; shipments, 135; stock, 10,826. Rosin, firm; sales, 1,260; receipts, 2,962; shipments, 695; stock, 103,600.

Quote: B, D, E, F, G, H, I, $5.10; KM, $5.20; N, $5.50; WG, $6.10; WW, $6.60.

POWER COMPANY VOTES FOR MORE PREFERRED STOCK

Stockholders of the Georgia Railway and Power company, at a meeting Tuesday morning, voted in favor of an increase in the first preferred stock of the company from $2,000,000 to $2,500,000.

Practically all the voting stock of the company was represented at the meeting and the vote was unanimous in favor of the stock increase. Officers of the company were directed to take all necessary legal steps to secure the issue.

FOREIGN BONDS MAKE RECOVERIES

New York, August 29.—Influenced largely by the better tone of the stock list and foreign exchange rates, today's bond market rallied briskly from yesterday's acute depression, international issues showing pronounced strength.

French municipals rose 2 1-2 to almost 4 points over the low levels of Monday with active buying of the Bordeaux, Lyons and Marseilles group.

American Telephone convertible 6s and 4 1-2s advanced 1 1-2 to 2 points in sympathy with the increased price of that company's stock.

Rails were irregular. Norfolk and Western 6s, St. Louis and Southwestern consolidated 4s and Seaboard Air Line consolidated 6s gained 2 points while Chicago and Alton 3s and 3 1-2s lost 3 1-4 to 4 points while reactions occurred in oils.

Liberties were inclined to ease in early dealings but rallied later with the improvement in the general list. Total sales were $12,850,000.

Money Market.

Poultry, heavy; hens, 1c higher; others, unchanged.

St. Louis, August 29.—Poultry, hens, 18c; springs, 20c; others, unchanged; eggs, 14c.

Chicago, August 29.—Ninety-two score butter on the market was not available under half-cent advance over yesterday's price, due to a scarcity of this grade. Butter scoring 88-91, however, was in liberal supply and was hard to sell except at concessions. Lower scores were well cleaned up. The car market was slightly easier, supplies were more liberal and buyers were indifferent unless goods were offered at a bargain. Quality was running so poor that very few lines ran over 91 score.

Cotton barely steady.

New York, August 29.—The cotton market showed continued firmness today owing to low private condition and crop figures which led to further covering by shorts, a moderate trade demand and rather more active commission house buying in the late trading, December sold up to 22.85, or 47 points net higher and 105 points above the low price of Saturday morning. That delivery closed at 22.70 with the general list closing easy under realizing but from 24 to 36 points net higher.

The market opened firm 12 to 23 points higher in response to relaitvely firm Liverpool cables. Reactions of 7 or 8 points came right after the call but the offerings were soon absorbed and the market turned firm. Trading was comparatively quiet on moderate advances during the middle of the day but later the buying became more active when reports from the stock market evidently encouraged hope of an early settlement of labor troubles. The general list showed net advances of about 47 to 51 points. This carried prices back to within a very few points of the best figures touched at the beginning of last week and the market met rather heavy realizing which caused reactions of 12 or 16 points in the late trading. It was reported that supplemental returns to a crop reporting agency which had issued a condition figure of 57 last week, pointed to a condition of 56 as of August 25 with an indicated crop of only 300,000 bales. Another private report indicated crop of only 10,300,000 bales. Another private report indicated crop 10,770,000 bales. These reports were considered largely responsible for the advance which was also promoted by dry weather in the southwest and talk of rather low temperatures in some eastern belt sections. Exports today 5,139 making 155,687 so far this season. Port receipts 17,440. United States Port stocks 385,436.

SMALL CROP INDICATED IN NEW ORLEANS TRADE

New Orleans, August 29.—Advances ruled in the cotton market today, resulting fundamentally from the deep-rooted conviction that the pending report by the government on the condition of the crop would be extremely low. Private bureau reports of the session strengthened this conviction and, in addition, the weather in the western belt was as unfavorable as ever, the drouth still being unbroken. Opening higher, the market held its gains well and rose to new high levels after mid-session where it stood 45 to 47 points over yesterday's last quotations. The close was at net gains on the day of 33 to 37 points. October traded as high as 22.35 and closed at 22.24.

Better cables than due helped the opening and more or less buying resulted from a private bureau forecast of 56 as the condition figures to be issued by the government Friday. This same bureau was credited with indicated yield figures of 10,310,000 bales. In the first hour of the day prices rose 25 to 30 points, after which there were recessions of 10 to 15 points but with no real easiness being shown.

Highest prices of the day followed a private bureau condition report of 57.9, indicating a crop of 10,771,000 bales against the same bureau's indicated crop figures a month ago of 11,981,000. At this stage the market also received some support from the small recoveries in the rate of German exchange. On the close prices were off from the highest somewhat under realizing sales from the long side.

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letter.

Under the leadership of the equipments, the market advanced in the afternoon session, due more or less to the belief that the labor difficulties were in a fair way of settlement, rather than any other specific news.

We hear favorable predictions for National Lead, Pullman, Gulf States Steel, and the equipment stocks, generally.

A new pool is said to be working in Studebaker and while no immediate rise in this stock may come, one seems to be expected, one hears that it will top its old high before October, but just at present we believe there will be greater profits in purchases of good steels and good equipments, than in motors or other stocks.—Doremus, Daniel & Co.

Cotton Letter.

New York, August 29.—The improved sentiment towards cotton which began in yesterday's market, continued throughout today's session. The attitude of the administration indicating less drastic legislation than recently contemplated played an important part in developing confidence. Aside from these features a better spot demand has been reported in southern markets and certainly the spot sales in Liverpool today show an improved feeling there. The few points loss in quotations just prior to today's closing is no indication that the firmer feeling towards prices has diminished and while this wave of confidence prevails the price level may reasonably be counted upon to be maintained except for reactions to which the market is naturally subject just before any bureau report. October Liverpool due Wednesday, 12.91.—Orvis Bros. & Co.

Cotton Letter.

Additional private reports, showing a low condition, together with the continued drought in west, caused a slim tone to market throughout the morning session.

On the theory that the public mind has been drawn by private reports to the possibility of a condition well under 60, it seems highly probable that the market between now and bureau day will lack incentive for violent moves in either direction, unless, of course, the tropical storm shall arrive in gulf sooner than is now expected.

According to past performances the tropical storm will be due to hit the gulf Wednesday night or Thursday, if it hits at all.

Some observers think there is too much company at present on bull side. We ourselves are of the opinion that the market will afford safer opportunities after the bureau than before it.—A. A. Housman & Co.

Cotton Letter.

New York, August 29.—The Liverpool market was better than due and our market was up some 20 points on the opening call. Unfavorable crop reports continued to come in and we understand from various sources that the spot basis was stiffening slightly, also that there is slightly better trade demand that was not evidenced in the market last week. It appears that the trade are becoming slightly alarmed as to the condition, and it is our opinion that prices will be sustained at least temporarily. The market closed strong after very active buying in the last hour.—Hubbard Bros. & Co.

Liverpool Cotton.

Liverpool, August 29.—Cotton, spot, limited demand, prices steady; good middling, 13.85; fully middling, 13.70; middling, 13.60; low middling, 13.15; good ordinary, 12.30; ordinary, 11.80. (At the Grand.)

It is probably true that a lot of married folks—particularly some of the newer-weds—have seen themselves depicted in rather an embarrassing fashion as tey have attended the performances during the first three days of the week at Loew's Grand theater. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Siegfried act out a litle comedy, "The Home Run," that has many little reminders of the lives of lots of people. It's quarrel and spat—and kiss and make up—from beginning to end, and the curtain descends on the biggest quarrel of all.

Emily Clark comes along, though, with her good voice, her graceful shape, and her pretty gowns, and makes one forget, with her new and popular songs. Wally and Wally, headliners, are clever as Spanish athletes. They tote one another about on the stage hand in hand—just like that. And they're good. The dancing Du Browns whirl themselves into the good graces of patrons with their new dances, and Warden and Mack spring some funny lines and a good song or two. Last opportunity today to see these good vaudeville acts.

Constance Binney in "The Sleep Walker," a highly sensational screen production, in which the star has some close calls that give one a thrill, is the picture for the first three days.

"Up in Mabel's Room."
(At the Forsyth.)

The famous Broadway comedy, "Up in Mabel's Room," which is being presented by the popular Forsyth Players this week, is one of the biggest laugh hits that Atlanta has seen in a long, long time. A continuous avalanche of wholesome, irresistible fun constructed from an ingenious starting point develops into side-splitting situations with dialogue that cannot be beaten.

The play in which the harmless present (a chemise) that Garry made to Mabel before his marriage; the refusal of Mabel to return it when he asks for it; and the jealousy of Garry's wife, are the primae facia of the story.

The Forsyth Players are all at their very best in this funniest of funny comedies, and it would doing an injustice to say that anyone took their part better than the others, and to see this company present this farce will be a treat long to be remembered.

"Grandma's Boy."
(At the Howard.)

The story, which is by Hal Roach, Sam Taylor and Jean Havez, has for its theme a subject as serious as the regeneration of a coward, but its seriousness adds to rather than detracts from the fun.

The cast in support of Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy" presents Mildred Davis as the girl, Anna Townsend as the Grandmother, Charles Stevenson as the rival, Dick Sutherland as the rolling stone, and Noah Young at the sheriff. Fred Newmeyer directed. The titles, like all Lloyd titles, are by H. M. Walker.

MESSAGE TO GARCIA BRINGS D. S. CROSS

San Francisco, August 29.—Major Andrew S. Rowan, United States army, retired, today is officially the man who carried the "message to Garcia." Rowan, who, according to the late Elbert Hubbard, who made the event famous, "stood out like Mars at perihelion in the Cuban disturbance by delivering the message to Garcia, was decorated for the fact at the Presidio here yesterday with a distinguished service cross.

TO RESUME WORK ON WILSON DAM

Washington, August 29.—Funds totaling $600,000 have been authorized by President Harding to enable army engineers to begin construction work on the Wilson dam at Muscle Shoals, Ala., on an extensive scale, pending use of the $7,500,000 appropriated by Congress which becomes available October 1, it was officially announced today.

Brigadier General Taylor, assistant chief of engineers, explained that the $600,000 was authorized from an old appropriation of which an unexpended balance of about $900,000 remained subject to presidential disposal.

Secretary Weeks, acting on the suggestion of Major-General Beach, chief of army engineers, recently asked the president for a decision which would have permitted the $900,000 to be used at Muscle Shoals. The remaining $300,000, it was explained, was reserved and probably would be allowed the agricultural department for use in making experiments with nitrogen for fertilizer use.

Army engineers enstimated that they would be able, with the $600,000 allotted them, to increase operations at Muscle Shoals on an extensive scale and continue until the $7,500,000 became available in October. They said Colonel William Barden, commanding the Muscle Shoals district, probably would employ additional laborers and put machinery in use to the maximum possible under the funds now at his disposal.

NO MUD IS SLUNG AT KIRKWOOD RALLY

One of the most orderly and conservative political rallies held since the city primary campaign began several weeks ago was staged Tuesday night in front of the Kirkwood pharmacy. Complete harmony and serenity prevailed in both the audience and on the improvised rostrum, where more than 25 speakers, including the six maqoralty candidates, concisely stated their policies without mudslinging or indulging in personalities, except in a more or less friendly vein.

The audience of about 500 seemed pleased with the remarks of all candidates and without exception voiced appreciation by applauding each speaker at the conclusion of his address.

Before calling upon mayoralty candidates, John House, well-known citizen of Kirkwood, acting as chairman, introduced candidates for the various city offices, allotting each speaker five minutes.

Tribute to Women.

Dr. John C. White, mayoralty candidate, outlined his platform which he stated, was to give Atlanta a clean, progressive, "free-from-politics" administration in the event he is elected to the office. Dr. White's tribute to the women of the city, considered the oratorial high light of the meeting, was met with vociferous applause, almost half of the audience being composed of women.

Dr. White stated that the time had come for Atlanta to eliminate politicians from the folds of the city government. "If there are any politicians in this audience," he stated, "I want to tell you now that the city government is no place for you to roost."

James R. Nutting, Walter A. Sims and James L. Beavers, the three remaining mayoralty candidates, reiterated what they have already announced in their official platforms, each promising to render his best services should he be elected.

Woodward Speaks.

James G. Woodward was the first candidate for mayor to address the crowd. He told of his past experience in working for the progress of Atlanta. Beginning in 1888, the speaker asserted, he has served Atlanta in more than one capacity. As mayor of Atlanta in that year he offered a measure to council providing free school books in the public schools, only to have the measure defeated by one vote when it was placed before the aldermanic board, he stated.

C. F. Jackson followed Mr. Woodward and told of his experiences in the sanitary department during the last several years. He emphasized the importance of electing a man for the mayor's chair who would judiciously handle the $20,000,000 of the taxpayers' money which will be expended during the next two years, claiming that he possessed such qualifications.

An interesting record of cases brought before him since he assumed duties as recorder of municipal court was disclosed by Recorder George E. Johnson, who is seeking re-election to that office.

Collected $843,000.

"During my eight years as recorder of the municipal court of Atlanta," declared Mr. Johnson, "I have tried almost 100,000 cases. Of this number more than 89,000 have been fined, approximately $743,000 collected into the city treasury from these cases, and aggregately 10,900 cases dismissed for lack of evidence to convict."

Other speakers at the meeting were C. Don Miller, candidate for recorder; Paul Carpenter, who spoke in the interest of his father, Alderman J. L. Carpenter's candidacy for re-election; Sam Johnson, candidate for alderman; W. W. Lotspeich, C. S. Robert and William A. Hansell, candidates for chief of construction; Dr. R. H. Stone and William B. Hartsfield, candidates for aldermen, from the third ward; Alderman W. E. Davis, Jesse W. Armistead and C. E. McJenkins, candidates for alderman from the seventh ward, and others.

CONDEMNED MAN SEEKS NEW TRIAL AT GRIFFIN

Griffin, Ga., August 29.—(Special.) Attorneys for John Henry Walker, under sentence to hang on October 13 for the murder of Frank Epps, have filed a motion for a new trial with Judge William E. H. Searcy, Jr. The motion will be heard October 12. The fact that the motion for a new trial will be heard on the day before the condemned man is supposed to hang, will, in all probability, necessitate the judge granting an extension.

Walker was convicted at the last term of the superior court of Spalding county. The jury was out only a short time and returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, without a recommendation of mercy.

The Dorcas society, an organization composed of ladies of the First Baptist church, has been awarded first prize in a contest conducted by a local newspaper. The first prize was $150 in cash. The second prize was won by the local post of the American Legion and was $75 in cash. Other awards totalling $400 were also made.

Camp Meeting Closes.

The camp meeting that has been in progress for the last week at Mount Zion, near here, came to a successful close this evening. The session just ended was one of the most successful ones ever held at this famous religious meeting grounds. Preachers from all over the state were present to preach. The attendance was much larger than was expected and there were quite a number of converts.

Class Reunion.

The class of 1922 of the Griffin High school held a reunion in the high school building here yesterday. A business meeting was held in which the work that the class proposes to do for the welfare of the school was discussed, followed by a social meeting.

NEW ORLEANS GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY
Office of Vice President and General Manager.

1. Pursuant to the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, described in its order dated October 6th, 1919, (as amended October 4th, 1920) in Docket Ex Parte No. 54, the New Orleans Great Northern Railroad Company hereby requests bids and hereby gives notice that it will receive bids for two hundred (200) wood underframe flat cars to be constructed upon the following terms and conditions:
2. Bids must be submitted and addressed to the undersigned, at his office, by 12 o'clock noon, standard time, September 11, 1922. Bids received after that time will not be considered.
3. Bids must be prepared and submitted on the form prescribed by the regulations mentioned above, which form will be furnished on request, by the undersigned.
4. The successful bidder will be required to enter into and execute proposed contract, Serial No. 3, containing substantially the general terms and conditions, as follows:
The maximum price per thousand feet of pine and oak lumber to be used in the building of such cars.
The maximum rate of pay the contractor will pay for blacksmiths, machinists, welders, wood workers, carmen, painters, common labor, and foremen.
The percentage above the cost of material and labor which the contractor will charge.
Place where the work will be done.
Copy of proposed contract containing complete specifications may be secured upon application to the undersigned.
Such contract to remain in force for a period of one year.
5. The Railroad Company shall have the right to furnish car trucks or any other material required in the building of these cars, such car trucks and other material to be paid for by the contractor at prices to be agreed upon between the contractor and the undersigned.
6. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids, and to accept any part of any one bid.
7. Terms of payment: not less than one-tenth of the total cost per car on delivery, the balance to be payable in equal annual installments extending over a period of nine years from the date of delivery, or sooner, at the option of the undersigned, deferred payments to bear interest at the rate of six per cent (6 per cent) per annum. The contractor shall retain the ownership of such cars until final payment shall have been made.
8. Any further information that may be required may be obtained during the business hours of any business day by any person who may desire or propose to submit bids, at the office of the undersigned.

Dated this 25th day of August, 1922.

HOUSE BACKS VIEWS OF COX ON CREDITS

London, August 28.—Colonel E. M. House in an interview printed by the Morning Post is quoted as having said he was in complete agreement with the suggestion of James M. Cox for finding means to deal with the German situation. He did not know whether Mr. Cox's idea was feasible and could not judge it was likely to be adopted by the American government. He welcomed the proposal, however, as it was obvious something must be done quickly, and Mr. Cox's plan was something tangible.

Colonel House is to breakfast this morning with Mr. Lloyd George and his visit to Downing street, following so closely that of Mr. Cox, is of considerable interest, comments the Westminister Gazette's parliamentary correspondent.

Britain to Pay Debts.

London, August 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Premier Lloyd George in conversation with Colonel E. M. House, who breakfasted with the premier this morning, reiterated Great Britain's intention to discharge her present debt to the United States to the last farthing, Colonel House told the Associated Press.

Colonel House said the premier begged him to tell those at home that Great Britain was not seeking financial assistance from the United States but desired very earnestly her continued moral support.

The conversation between the two men was largely reminiscent and retrospective, covering the war, the armistice period, the peace conference and the war's aftermath. Colonel House said he found Mr. Lloyd George in cheerful spirits, taking an optimistic view of things—sanguine that a solution would be found for the present grave difficulties of Europe, especially if America lent its great influence.

The premier inquired affectionately after the health of former President Woodrow Wilson and spoke in the warmest terms of their associations at the peace conference when Mr. Wilson, Mr. Lloyd George, Premier Clemenceau and Colonel House were throughout in close relations in the working out of the peace terms.

NO DEFINITION ON LIVING WAGE

Chicago, August 29.—The railroad labor board today denied the motion of W. Jett Lauck, labor statistician that the board immediately define the principle of "a living wage" in the case of the maintenance of way employees who are seeking increased minimum rates of pay. At the request of E. F. Grable, president of the maintenance organization, the hearing was adjourned until tomorrow.

The board in its ruling on Lauck's request declared it could not go beyond the transportation act which prescribed the establishment of "just and reasonable" wages.

Inasmuch as Senator Cummins has publicly announced his intention of going before congress with a "living wage" amendment, Grable said, he expects favorable action soon.

Grable told Chairman Hooper that he will probably finish presentation of the maintenance of way men's side of the case late tomorrow or Thursday morning. Railroad executives said that the length of their arguments will be governed by the material incorporated in the maintenance of way argument.

FARM LOANS

Let us suggest that wide-awake farmers ought to know now as well as they will later whether they are going to need money this fall. If they are going to need it, they should apply now, because now we can give the business prompt attention and place the loans quickly. Later on we shall be overwhelmed with business and have to move more slowly. It is so every year.

We have a correspondent in nearly every county in the state. Write us for his name. We are well known to farmers, merchants, bankers and lawyers in every county in the state. We have fifteen millions of farm loans on our books now, which shows we can and do place loans for those who call on us.
